The gifts given away on Easter are just beginning to come around into the light of day.

Again George Binger makes this column over a high school girl. He took this one for a ride and she liked him.

Le Roy Farmer wants a nice girl to be his very own. He can't find one to suit his taste so he came to us for help.

The candy passings are beginning to come back into style. Just when everyone is trying to lose weight so they will look simply divine in a bathing suit.

SOCIETY

Saturday seems to be the busy day of this week end. In fact, it was so busy that the Kappa Sig's had to call off their picnic at Lincoln because the Sigma Nu's and Sig Alpha's had all the buses in town hired for their field day.

Saturday will bring about the long awaited field day. It has always been customary to have the competition in the fall, but due to a difficulty which wouldn't allow it to be given, it had to be changed to spring.

After an early lunch the affair will start out with a parade. The Sig Alpha freshmen will pull the actives on a hayrack and the Sigma Nu's will use a hearse.

Alpha Omicron is entertaining with a house party Saturday evening. It is open to the public. Announcements were sent around in May baskets.

Engineering executive board is having a dance at the Lincoln hotel on Saturday also. Knowing engineers and the Lincoln hotel, it ought to be a good party in more than one sense of the word.

Delta Sigma Pi, national commercial fraternity, is having a dance at the chamber of commerce ballroom on Saturday.

Officers of Phi Gamma Delta for the coming year are as follows: President, Lewis Leigh; steward, William Graves; recording secretary, Phil Grant; corresponding secretary, Bill Wagner; and historian, Bernard Ingram.

Commerce Fraternity To Hold Spring Party Saturday at Chamber

Earl Hills and his eight piece orchestra will play at the annual spring party of Delta Sigma Pi, professional commerce fraternity, in the ballroom of the chamber of commerce, Saturday evening at 9 o'clock.

Invitations have been extended to the Beta Theta chapter at Creighton university in Omaha who will come in a body. A blanket invitation has also been extended to the Omaha Alumni club, about 40 members who were graduated from this university.

Best story of the week concerns Derrill Harlan, Phi Gam, who had planned a jaunt out to Broken Bow to weekend at Marjorie Melville's home.

The Pi Phi's tell me that they had a candy passing Monday night. But it was a double extra special occasion for one of their cutest freshmen, Delphine Seely.

You've heard of blind dates that turned out favorably, but Val Harper and Myron Tripp are the best evidence. It was two long years ago that Val arrived for a weekend and someone fixed her up with Myron.

Again Betty Van Horne, Helen Rothery and Lois Deitrich were dunked in the Tri Delta tub and finished off with an icy shower.

Tickets are now on sale for the picnic for members of the 4-H and Creative Activities clubs which will be held at Pioneer's Park Sunday, April 24 at 3 p. m.

AG SOCIETIES PLAN PICNIC AT PIONEER PARK SUNDAY

Four-H, Creative Activities Clubs to Place Tickets On Sale This Week.

The members will leave Ag hall at three in an International Harvester truck provided for the group. 4-H club members will make plans for the 4-H club week which will be held in late May and also for the county 4-H club meeting which will be held shortly.

Sponsors of the outing are Mr. and Mrs. L. I. Frisbie, Prof. and Mrs. R. F. Morgan, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Copenhagen.

Prof. C. K. Morse of the extension division will be a delegate to the Mountain-Plains conference on adult education to be held in Denver Monday thru Wednesday. He will take part in a symposium discussion Monday evening.

Dr. J. H. Ennis, assistant professor of economics, spoke last Sunday to the college class of First Christian church on "Relating Oneself to the World thru the Church."

UNIVERSITY BUYS NEW PAINTINGS, SCULPTURE

Additions to Hall Collection Selected From Spring Art Exhibition.

The University of Nebraska has just purchased three paintings and two original pieces of sculpture to be added to the permanent collection established by Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Hall in 1928.

The two pieces of sculpture purchased are "Wandering Three," the sculptured group of three little colts so popular with exhibition visitors, by Heinz Warneke, and "Dolphins" by one of America's most famous sculptors, Gaston Lachaise.

According to the terms of Mr. Hall's will which gave the University of Nebraska the art collections which he and Mrs. Hall had accumulated over a period of years, and placed the entire estate at the disposal of the university for purchases of works of art, it is necessary to obtain the written opinion and consent of at least two experts in the field of art before a work may be purchased for the collection.

Sponsors Plan All-Campus Ticket Sales Campaign for Affair.

Ticket sales are now open to the entire campus for the annual Engineers and Geologists party which will be held Saturday evening, April 23 in the ballroom of the Lincoln hotel, with Anna Mae Winburn and the Cotton Club boys playing for the dancing.

'GOOD PEOPLE' MAY DESTROY CIVILIZATION PREDICTS PHILOSOPHER

machine civilization has, however, been the cause of blessings as well as evils the former Illinois senator pointed out. "Altho the division of labor into white collar workers and laborers, with innumerable subdivisions of each class, has caused great rifts in our social structure, it has nevertheless made possible the creation of many material advantages."

Wed Mind to Muscle.

Bringing into action his philosophical convictions, Smith tendered as a solution to the derogative effects of labor segregation on human personality, the thesis that the practice of a skill is the only opportunity men and women have to achieve happiness. "The mastering of a particular skill necessarily depends upon discipline and training. The individual can hope to become expertly proficient in but a small segment of the world's work."

Birth Control Bill.

As a humorous sidelight on the doctrine of becoming proficient at one particular segment of activity, Dr. Smith recalled how he made a vow before entering the Illinois senate that he would try not to introduce more than one bill. "That I accomplished," he recalled, "even if it was only a bill on birth control. I became proficient by specialization."

In outlining the future of American politics, Professor Smith was able to draw upon first hand experience, having just won nomination for United States congressman at large from Illinois in the primaries held last week.

The congressional nominee defined politicians as "men engaged in compromise who bridge the gap between the fissures in society caused by the division of labor." Talk is the only way to knit together the dis severed segments of society, he argued. One half of the business of the world is done with the mouth, and the politician is the man who does it.

Sativizes "Good People."

Smith bemoaned the too strict adherence to principles by "good people" as the bane of civilization. "It is the good men and not the bad men who will wreck civilization. The good men who would stick to the death to principles suggested by their moral conscience, cannot compromise conflicting principles. They may see two sides of a question, all right, but it always their own, and they wrong one. Therefore, he concluded, to preserve civilization we must have "unprincipled" men to carry on the arbitration necessary. "A politician can compromise an issue without compromising himself. He makes a verbal feint to the left when he means to move toward the right."

Student Writes 'Cobweb College' to Robert Frost

Robert Frost, beloved Harvard university poet-teacher, has a reputation for great teaching and great writing. To this leader of students, Kenneth Leslie recently wrote a poem, had it printed on the New York Times' editorial page. A portion of "Cobweb College," written for Robert Frost, follows:

A batch of freshmen came to Cobweb college; the spider looked them over, frowned and said, "These boys are ghosts of boys, cracked wide with knowledge their dreams dried out and left the dreamers dead. There's not a meal among them, no illusion to sharpen up my tooth on, no romance for me to ridicule to red confusion, no creed on which to stake my poison lance. I've drawn their blood too many generations and spoiled the breed. Their fathers, when I wrapped them in casual web and silken strong equations, would lounge and write, grimacing when I snapped them with categorized claws. These modern schools condition them until they yearn to yield; their wills are like the blown pigskin that drools November muck around a soggy field. They murmur, 'Say, professor, skip the prodding, just dish it out, the ifs, the ands, the buts! who'd question fifty million miles of wadding engendered through the ages in your guts? Welcome the warm cocoon of cozy thought through which we gain the world but lose surprise! we'll answer by your book, old man, but not pretend amazement, thus the pampered flies and those who hope for pampering... the rest nursing a schoolboy grudge within the core of mangy bearded justice are at best a thing and scanty ration for my store."

William G. Leavitt, who graduated with high distinction a year ago and who was an assistant in the mathematics department, has received a fellowship in the department of mathematics at Princeton university. Leavitt will take work for his Ph.D. degree and will receive his master's degree from Nebraska this June.
