morning at 11 o'clock in an open forum on the recent developments in Czechoslovakia.

To be held in parlors X, Y, Z of the Student Union building, the forum will attempt to trace the events leading up to the central European crisis of last week, and invite the opinions of all students in attendance who wish to enter into an informal discussion of the affair.

Dr. Fellman, instructor in political science, has been studying the developments in Europe with more than the usual interest of the average newspaper reader, and the Council committee planning the forum believes that he will be able to present an enlightening as well as intensely interesting conception of the situation.

The Student Union is cooperating with the Council committee in offering this monthly series of forums during the school year. Noted Lincoln visitors as well as local authorities will be invited to participate. There will be no admission charge. Bob Waugh and Emma Marie Schuttloffel, co-chairmen, and Dick deBrown comprise the committee in charge.

Oury Names Committees

Eleven Chairmen Start Military Ball Rolling

Nebraska's biggest social event, the 30th annual Military Ball, which opens the 1938-39 formal season, will be held in the coliseum December 2 this year, Col. W. H. Oury announced yesterday. At the same time, the Colonel listed the eleven big committees of the Ball, committee chairmen and members.

A number of well known bands have been considered by the music committee, but no decision has been made at this time. Hand in hand with other preparations for the Ball is the opening of the annual contest to choose the best plan for presenting the honorary colonel. The winning idea earns a prize of $15 for the originator.

In 1937, Jane Walcott was presented as Honorary Colonel to a crowd of more than 6,000. Preceding her entry, R.O.T.C. cadets traced in pagentry the history of Nebraska's R.O.T.C. unit, and the crack squad of Pershing Riflemen drilled on the coliseum stage. Joe Sanders brought his band to play at the Ball.

Among the patrons and patronesses of the colorful spectacle last year were General J. J. Pershing, Governor and Mrs. R. L. Cochran, and many faculty members.

Following is a list of the newly announced committee chairmen in charge of the Military Ball of 1938:

Introduction of Honorary Colonel, Brigadier Colonel John W. Cramer; Music committee, Lieutenant Colonel Martin W. Oelrich; Stage decorations, Lieut. Coy. Harrison A. Epperson; Sale and Handling of tickets, Maj. George E. Meier; Main floor decorations, Maj. Joseph T. Stephens.

Students to Have Say On Library Donation

A campus-wide poll to determine what type of book appeals to the average student will be taken in near future by the Student Union Book committee, which met yesterday to decide what books will be purchased with the $1,000 donation given to the Union library by J. C. Seacrest, publisher of the Lincoln Journal.

It was also decided at the meeting to conduct a contest among the students to choose a design to decorate the book plates, which are to be placed in the front of all the books.

Helen Elizabeth Claybaugh was elected chairman of the Book committee, composed of all student members of the Student Union board, at the meeting. Others present were Jean Morgan, Mrs. Vera Mae Yinger, new social director of the Union, Bob Simmons, and Director Kenneth Van Sant.

YMCA Hears Dr. Arnholt

Slides Will Illustrate Physician's Talk

Causes and cures of venereal diseases will be discussed by Dr. M. F. Arnholt, superintendent of the City Health commission, at the Y. M. C. A. meeting to be held this evening at 7:15 in the Student Union ballroom. Slides will illustrate the superintendent's remarks.

Causative factors, means of transmission, and curative control methods of venereal diseases are some of the subjects to be discussed in the talk. Present day statistics indicate that one of every ten Americans is infected by syphilis alone.

Dr. Rufus Lyman, of the University Student Health Service says syphilis has been known for more than 34 years. Control measures have been known for a longer time, although modern cures are shorter and more effective.

All university students are invited to attend this meeting. The lecture is the third of a series presented in recent years on the University of Nebraska campus.

Graduation Just 100,000 Miles Away

When Richard Vance, William Stewart, and Dorothy Crandell are graduated from the University of Nebraska, they will have established some kind of record for 'running around,' having traveled 100,000 miles in pursuit of education.

These three students live at Wymore, Neb., make the trip to Lincoln for classes each day on the train. Inasmuch as their fathers hold railroad passes, this daily trek saves board and room expenses.

Although train riding is now a routine part of these three U. of N. student's schedules, two hours of studying done while underway keeps boredom away.

Pfeiler Prefers 'White Spot' to Nazi 'Hot Spot'

Number of Uniforms Amaze Language Prof

Foreign shores are nice to visit, but it's nicer to be in Nebraska, considering last week's unpleasant war threats in Europe, says W. K. Pfeiler, associate professor in the University of Nebraska's department of Germanics, and former German citizen who spent the summer in the world's hot spot.

Although primarily interested in interviewing recognized modern German literature authorities to obtain supplementary information for his study tracing the German war novel's development, Professor Pfeiler also studied the recent foreign situations.

"The first thing that impressed me when I landed in Hamburg was the great number of uniformed people, as well as the display of party buttons on coat lapels," Pfeiler commented, explaining that the buttons signify membership in some German organization.

"Everything is organized, and almost every German is a member of some recognized German society," he said.

In traveling through "Deutschland," Dr. Pfeiler asserts he became increasingly aware that changes were taking place. The sky was literally filled with German aircraft; fresh rolls were not served on Sunday; eggs were marked to facilitate tracing back to their marketer; each German farmer and producer is allotted a defined amount to contribute.

Despite these economic measures, there was no shortage of food in hotels, private homes or in food shops. Stores, however,

September "Auwgan" Makes October Debut

Frosh Face Fronts "Truck Strike" Edition

Honoring the class of '42, the September Awgwan, first issue of the school year, hits its reading public right between the eyes today, only five days late. "This," hastily reiterates Business Manager McGinnis, "is due to a truck strike in New York which delayed the printing." And so comes the humor magazine with one strike called on it already.

Staring at the reader from the front cover is a tough but battered freshman by Jim Foreman, cover artist. This freshman, according to the editor, is the toughest thing under a red cap from Maine to McCook and back to main again.

The dedicatees, this year's freshman crop, both male and female, come in for a major share of the limelight in cartoons, jokes, pictures and gore. In fact, practically the entire gore section is devoted to short paragraphs telling the merits of pledges from every Greek house on the campus, while each sorority is further represented by a picture of its favorite freshman.

Football comes in for a plug in a short history by Brus Kamel, Bruce Campbell, ex-editor of the Awgwan. Imposingly entitled "Fun on the Gridiron or How Football Began," this history in a nutshell traces the evolution of our present day sport—or business—back to and cartoons. One of the more in-time when Homer was just one of the boys in the press box.

As usual, the magazine is replete with wit and humor, jokes

White Chooses Debate Subject

Tryouts Begin Oct. 27 On Business Question

Since debate teams in other states who will compete with students at Nebraska, the University of Nebraska this year will be debating the subject, "Resolved, that the United States should cease to use public funds for the purpose of stimulating business," Dr. H. A. White, coach, announced that this will be one of the important subjects for the university debating league. In fact, he said, it is the most popular subjects this year.

Dr. White has invited prospective debaters to meet for the initial tryout Thursday evening, Oct. 27, in University Hall. Any student enrolled at Nebraska for a year is eligible. Those who make the team as the result of this first competition will be sent to Topeka early in December for the annual student assembly held there each fall where debaters from five or six states will gather for the two day conclave.
