The Barbs Map Plans

Organization of the Barbs on the university campus has pepped up the more enthusiastic independent students, has put a frown on the collective brows of the younger faction representatives and has provoked only a mild smile upon those "old hands" of campus politics.

Judging from the enthusiasm generated at the first two mass meetings staged by the Barbs, they must have finally hit upon a scheme that will give them their deserved representation.

They have given themselves the name of Barb union, an appropriate sobriquet because it will be the Student union which can afford the Barbs with all facilities for their thoughtful program.

The Barb union's reform movement calls for better housing opportunities, an employment agency and an organization policy in the form of a ward system. Daily Nebraskan Editor Ed Murray last year conducted a survey of Barb housing conditions which did little better than reveal that Barbs were getting a raw deal from the many campus bordering rooming houses. If this year's Barb organization can "bring pressure to bear" upon certain houses and "force them to improve their conditions," they will have accomplished a notable piece of work.

Dissatisfaction with the present set-up has aroused the new Barb union to establish an employment agency, centralized and operated so that Barbs will be at a better vantage spot in obtaining student employment. With neither of these two plans can fault be found, except to point out that concerted effort toward the realization of one at a time would probably net more in the long run. Experience should teach Barbs the lesson never to bite off more than they can chew. Housing and employment are two huge bites for anyone.

Interesting in the light of campus politics is the Barb proposal for the establishment of a ward system thruout Lincoln in an effort to align the independent students. Many attempts have been made for strong Barb organization in politics but with little success in recent years. Barb political leaders themselves have been responsible for the ill fated ventures, since their interests became too subjective. They were concerned only with lining up a following to espouse their candidacies for campus offices. Consideration of the great mass of Barbs of Barbs lasted only until election counts had been made.

The zealotness that accompanied the first two Barb assemblies attested that the interest is not confined to several politically ambitious independent students. That is a cheerful note to those who would like to see the Barb proportion increased to appreciable size. To the Greek letter factions, Barb organization this year should be something to keep the faction sessions in many special meetings.

Final organization of the Barbs with social, service and athletic programs to keep up the interest should be to the advantage of all fraternity and sorority students as well as the indifferent majority of Barb students. Greek letter houses would be forced to keep on their toes to match the progress of the friendly enemy Barb students. Stiff competition is the best tonic for both sides.

Vogue Offers Prix de Paris

Fashion Magazine Again Holds Contest

For university girls interested in careers in writing, fashion, advertising, or merchandising, opportunity for work with Vogue fashion magazine is being offered by its fourth annual Prix de Paris. Two major prizes, each offering a position with Vogue, are being awarded this year to girls who will receive their degrees from universities and colleges next June. Winner of the first prize will receive one full year's employment, with six months spent in the New York office and six months in the Paris office of the publication. Both the first and second prize winners will be eligible for permanent positions on the Vogue staff at the completion of these trial periods. Winner of second prize will be employed for at least six months on the New York editorial staff.

In addition to these two winners the ten next best entrants will be put in touch with various stores, publications, and advertising agencies in their vicinity who have agreed to interview them for possible positions.

The full rules of the contest are as follows:

1. Each entrant must be a member of the graduating class of 1939 in a United States college or university which grants a recognized A. B. or B. S. degree.
2. Each entrant must fill out an entrance blank. These blanks may be mailed immediately, or with the answers to the first quiz not later than Nov. 20.
3. The contest will consist of two parts: First, a series of five quizzes to be answered by the entrants; second, a thesis (not to exceed 1,500 words) on a general subject to be chosen by Vogue.
4. The first quiz of the series, based on the Oct. 1st and 15th issues, will be published in the November 1st and 15th issues. The succeeding quizzes will appear in the issues of Dec. 1st, Jan. 1st, Feb. 1st, and March 1st.
5. Papers will be graded on these points: (a) ability to write clearly and vividly; (b) dramatic presentation of ideas; (c) fashion knowledge derived from a study of Vogue; (d) general information.
6. Answers to each test must be mailed on or before the 20th of the month in which the test appears. Papers received with insufficient postage will not be accepted.
7. Entrants must send answers to all five quizzes and write a thesis in order to be eligible for a prize.
8. Subjects for the thesis will be announced Jan. 1. These must not exceed 1,500 words in length and are due on April 20, 1939.
9. All test papers and theses must be typewritten in double space on one side of the sheet. Name and college must appear on every page.
10. The judges of the contest will be the editors of Vogue.
11. The winners of the Prix de Paris will be announced on or about May 15, 1939. The girls selected by the editors on the basis of test answers, theses and interviews, will join Vogue's staff for the following year. First prize is at least a year's employment with Vogue, six months of which will be spent in the Paris office. The second will be paid from Paris and extended to and from there. The winner of second place in the contest will be employed for at least six months in the New York office of Vogue. Possibility for permanent positions on Vogue's staff will be a factor in the selection of the prize winners.
12. Inquiries and material concerning this contest should be addressed to: Vogue's Prix de Paris, 420 Lexington Avenue, New York City.

"Datability" Base for D.U. Coed Ratings

News travels fast at the University of Minnesota, whether it's about a football victory or the new crop of sorority pledges. About the last named item, the D. U. chapter up that scored a very effective scoop over all other news agencies by means of a neat a news gathering and distributing agency as has yet graced a college campus.

Headquarters for this ultra-successful method were at the fraternity's chapter house, where a huge brightly spotlighted billboard was on display. Prominently posted were ratings used to describe the new pledges, with space allowed for each sorority's score. Most of the ratings were taken from titles of popular songs and reading from the top down were: 1. "You leave me breathless," 2. "You Can't Have Everything," 3. "Small Fry," 4. "Flat Foot Floogie," 5. Hell's Belles, and last and definitely least, 6. Fools!

Posted in front of each sorority house was a judge who, as each pledge went up to the house of her choosing, would make a decision as to the gal's datability and stick up a card with the proper number to correspond to ratings on the score sheet.

This number would then be duly recorded to the accompaniment of a steady stream of comment by an announcer whose quips are reported to have made even the boldest spirits quake, and were the delight of the crowd assembled to cheer and jeer for their favorite gal's club.

Freshman AWS Begins Program

New Students to Hear Head of Mortar Board
