

Sneakers plus serenaders infected fraternity row Monday night. The Phi pledges did one of the more bold stunts by bringing out of Lincoln fire department—four trucks and the chief. The penalty is $5 a truck, and no telling at what amount the chief values his putt. Also they slept with stiffs in a mortuary.

Chi O pledges swiped all the tooth brushes, silverware, and various other little necessary items including the waiters, and cook for breakfast; kidnaped an active or two off the Beta front lawn and dumped them out on 67th and Havelock to get home as best they could.

Kappa pledges roomed at the Cornhusker, and in the course of the evening got the best of the activities with the help of the Tau's. And then there's a good story connected with this. When the KKG pledges were serenading the Beta's a well-known Tau came over and started singing "I'm an Onion" drowning out the pledges. Finally one of the Beta's was so enraged that he took him on for a regular fight, which ended rather drastically.

Eleanor Collier, Alpha Xi, and Royal Kahler, of the football team, were listening to the phonograph in the Campus Inn when Royal decided to part with two nickels. When he came back to the booth after depositing his shekels Eleanor asked him what he chose. He said that the first was his favorite piece and the second he punched at random to be a big surprise. It turned out "You Have to Be a Football Hero" and he claims it was all an accident.

Elizabeth Shearer, Theta prexy of a few years back, is making the rounds of parties in honor of her marriage which will take place October 26. The groom will be John Gepson, Phi Psi. Both are of Omaha.

In a psych 70 course, the class was discussing the phenomena of the brain, and the specific topic of loss of memory. They all became quite intimate, and began telling of their various cases. Finally Ivan Spurlock asked the teacher: "How can you explain my going to high school for two days once and not remembering anything?" Prof. Dyainger replied, "That's nothing. I went to high school for four years and don't remember anything."

Ruby Magee and Jo Ley, AOP's are charter members of an "Eight Ball Club" which is growing in membership by leaps and bounds. The club takes care of man troubles and school troubles, emphasizing the first.

Social Majors Hear Thomas

Psychiatrist Clarifies Professional Attitude

Miss Dorothy Thomas, who received her M. A. degree from the university in 1928, addressed 20 senior social work majors on a phase of Psychiatric Social work at a luncheon held Monday in the Union. Dr. Hattie Plum Williams introduced the speaker.

Miss Thomas is a member of the social service staff of the St. Elizabeth's hospital in Washington, D. C. The hospital, a federal institution, was originally intended for army and navy mental patients, and is now being used by the District of Columbia, housing 6,000 beds and using 1,700 employees who are hired on a civil service basis.

The speaker described the medical treatment offered by the hospital and explained the part of psychiatric social workers in the admission of patients and particularly in the follow-up work which often lasts from 6 to 12 months after the patient leaves. St. Elizabeth's is known to have one of the highest recovery rates in the United States.

Miss Thomas returned to Washington Tuesday night after spending her vacation in Lincoln with her parents.

Library To Fill Thesis Requests

Reference Room Handles Congressional Material

A letter to Miss Clara Craig, of the University Library Reference department, from the head librarian of the Congressional Library, urges college students to make all requests for information and material thru their University library.

According to the letter, many students have in the past written to this library for bibliographic aid in the writing of a thesis, preparing of debate material and many other such projects. The Congressional librarian feels that a large amount of this material could be taken care of in the University library and thus save them a great amount of unnecessary labor and expense.

Hereafter, application for material from this source must be made thru the Reference Department of the University library.

Former N. U. Man Writes Book at William, Mary

Prof. Albion G. Taylor, who was a student in business under Dean J. E. LeRossignol of the University of Nebraska twenty years ago, who is now assistant dean of the Marshall-Wythe school of government and citizenship at William and Mary college, has just published a book entitled "Labor Problems and Labor Laws" which, he says, was in a great measure due to the dean's inspiring leadership those many years ago. In his preface, Professor Taylor recognizes the Nebraska educator and declares that he owes his early interest in this field of business administration to Dean LeRossignol.

Corn Cob Actives, Pledges Meet Tonight

Corn Cobs will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock in room 313 of the Union for an important business meeting. All actives and workers are urged to attend. Plans for Friday night's rally will be completed, and assignments for next week's work will be distributed.

Sixty Enter Social Work

Graduate Student Body Shows Wide Diversity

With a highly diversified student body, the graduate school of social work enters its second year with an enrollment of 60, a further increase over last year. Courses are so much in demand that considerable pressure is being exerted to secure evening extension classes both in Omaha and Lincoln, according to Dr. E. F. Witte, director.

Included in the student body this semester are: A woman M. D. from Chile who has had five years in the practice of medicine in that country in connection with maternal and child health; a blind girl who was graduated cum laude from Hastings college last year and whose home is in Salt Lake City, Utah; a deaconess from the staff of the Immanuel Deaconess institute in Omaha which operates the Immanuel hospital and home under the auspices of the American Lutheran conference in charge of social work training for the institute; a Roman Catholic priest with his Ph. D. in philosophy from the Georgian college at Rome who is studying social work in order to take over supervision of Catholic charities in the diocese of Lincoln; a graduate of Nebraska, class of 1918, who has taught in the public schools in Tokyo, Japan, and has been doing occupational therapy in Honolulu; a former district supervisor of the state department of assistance and child welfare who has been supervising work in some 12 counties in the state; a former county assistance director, a former case worker with the Missouri social security commission; and several members of the state staffs of assistance and child welfare departments who are taking part time work in the school.

Debaters Compete In Open Contest

Bibliographies Placed On File In Library

Bibliographies for the open debate competition to be held Oct. 27 may now be obtained at the University library, according to Prof. H. A. White, debate coach. The contest is open to all men students interested in debate. No previous experience is required.

The question for the contest is one of vital interest: Resolved, That the United States should cease to use public funds for the purpose of stimulating business.

The contest will be run off at 7:30 the evening of Oct. 27, in University hall. From 10 to 12 more men will be selected this year than in previous years, according to Professor White.

To represent Nebraska at the annual student assembly held at Topeka on Dec. 7, 8 and 9, several men will be chosen from those debating in the open contest.

OLD FATHER ADDRESSES CLASSICS STUDENTS

Dean C. H. Olafather of the history department will speak on "Augustus, Duce and Fuhrer," at the opening meeting of the Classics club this Wednesday in parlor X of the Student Union. Mary Elizabeth Kienholz will sing "Only a Rose" by Primal Games, group singing and refreshments are on the program which will begin at 7:30.

Poultry Club Plans Meet

Sets Oct. 22 as Date for Judging Contest

Poultry Science club will sponsor its second annual Poultry Judging contest Saturday, Oct. 22, in the judging pavilion in animal husbandry hall.

Ten classes of both production and exhibition judging will be offered in Leghorns, Rhode Island Reds, White Rocks, White Wyandottes, and Buff Orpingtons. Ribbons will be awarded the three high men in production and in exhibition judging and five ribbons will be awarded to the high men in the entire contest.

A practice judging contest and demonstration will be conducted from four to six Friday, Oct. 21, at the poultry plant by Professor H. E. Alder of the poultry husbandry department.

The contest is open to all students of the University. It is believed that the contest will be of especial interest to vocational education students because it will offer them an opportunity for judging not offered in the required poultry course for such students.

The club is making arrangements for a bronze plaque on which it is planned to engrave the names of the two high men in each contest. This will make a permanent trophy which will be on display in the Poultry office.

Russell Bierman and Mac Newberry are in charge of arrangements for the contest. Professor H. E. Alder will make the final placements on all classes in the contest.

400 Attend Ag Festival

Social Council Party Draws Half of Campus

More than 400 people, half the number registered in Ag college, attended the all-Ag fun festival held at the student activities building on the Ag campus Friday evening.

The event, sponsored by the newly created social council on the Holdrege street campus, was the first of a series of novelty mixers and get-acquainted parties to be held under the sponsorship of this group during the year.

Novelty choices of partners, circle dances, a rally led by the Corn Cobs and Tassels present, and ballroom dancing made up the program for the evening. Informality was the theme of the whole party.

Milton Gustafson, president of the council, pointed out that the festival, held for the express purpose of furthering acquaintance among students on the Ag campus, gave the council's plan an auspicious start with more than half the students turning out.

In commenting on the success of the event, Gustafson explained that the party is the first of a series of novelty events planned to promote more successful social relationships among the Ag students.

According to members of the council, the next all-Ag festival will be held within three or four weeks, with a novel theme to be carried out.

Chaperones were Prof. and Mrs. M. A. Alexander and Prof. and Mrs. L. K. Crowe. Committee in charge of the party was Helen Scheve, chairman; Peggy Sherburn, Mylan Ross and Rex Brown.

Night Class Roll Grows

223 Students Register For Evening Instruction

Two hundred twenty-three students registered for evening class work during the first week of classes. This number represents the largest first week of evening class registration recorded at the University Extension division in the last decade.

Most popular courses were accounting, business law, principles of economics, curriculum of the secondary school, statistical methods, freshman composition, business English, English literature, graphic arts, short story, beginning German, mental hygiene, elementary psychology, delinquency and crime, and the American Indian.

Registration continues during the day, throughout the week, at the offices of the University Extension division. After October 15, a late registration fee of one dollar per week per course will be charged.

Patterson Talks

Vespers Topic Centers On Faith in America

Dr. Charles H. Patterson of the philosophy department will talk at the Y. W. C. A. Vespers today at 5 o'clock. Speaking on the topic, "The Faith that is America," Dr. Patterson plans to tell why the greatness of America can be attributed to the things in which she believes. That our democratic civilization is based upon the trust which human beings have in each other, will be explained.

Mary Bullock will be in charge of the devotionals.

Harper Speaks

Sigma Xi Hears Talk By Math Professor

Dr. Ford S. Harper, assistant professor of mathematics spoke on "The Certainties and Uncertainties of Life" last evening at the first fall meeting of the University of Nebraska chapter of Sigma Xi. Dr. Harper gave a non-technical discussion of the historical background of life insurance and life annuities, the general development of these subjects and their relationship to every day life.

Word has been received that John C. Page, who received a degree in civil engineering from the university in 1908, was elected to the national council of Sigma Tau at the recent Boulder convention. Page is now chief of the engineering division of the federal bureau of reclamation.

Miss Zabriskie Plays Today

This afternoon at 4 o'clock Miss Betty Zabriskie, noted cellist and instructor at the University school of music will present a cello recital in Temple. She will be accompanied by Herbert Schmidt, piano teacher.

This University instructor has performed with leading orchestras of the middle west and this year she will appear with the Lincoln Symphony orchestra as one of the soloists. She is also well known for her teaching abilities.

Classes taught by Dr. D. A. Worcester, Dr. Winona Perry and Dr. Warren Baller, all of teachers college, visited the Iowa school for the deaf at Council Bluffs recently. Dr. B. Clifford Hendricks of the chemistry department will appear on the North Platte program of the Nebraska State Teachers association Oct. 28.

Stars and Stuff

Looking over the records today, Bob Hope came through with the pertinent observation that comedians are purely accidental.

As a comedian, Hope himself is an accident. So, he claims, are all the other funny men of screen and radio.

"Look!" argues Hope, "You always hear of young men studying to be lawyers, doctors, dentists, plumbers, but never hear of any young man whose ambition is to be a comedian."

To bolster his case, he ran through the list with Martha Raye on the set of "Give Me a Sailor," their new Paramount comedy.

There's Jack Benny, the buckaroo of "Artists and Models Abroad." He started as a violinist, began interspersing his tunes with a little talk, then finally drifted to talk altogether.

Jugglers Joked.

W. C. Fields started as a juggler and Eddie Cantor as a juggler's assistant. Even Fred Allen was first a juggler Jack Oakie was a broker's assistant, then a song and dance man.

"And," continues Hope, "Charlie McCarthy began as a tree."

Hope hoofed a nifty "off to Buffalo" in theaters large and small, and, like Benny, began putting in a little "patter."

"There really isn't any way for an ambitious youngster to study to be a comic. The only way you can ever find out if you're a comedian is to get in a situation where comedy might help."

Rufe Davis, Paramount's hillbilly comic, started making those "human sound effects" that have made him famous, to entertain the babies in the family of 12, of which he was the eldest.

Peace Action Group Meets

To make plans for "translating peace into the best language—votes," the public is invited to attend a meeting of the Peace-Action committee tonight at 7:30 at the Unitarian church at 12th and H streets, according to Meredith Nelson, chairman.

Attorney Nelson's belief is that "taking peace seriously means taking peace politically," and plans to discuss candidates and take action to place the committee's endorsement.

Patterson Gives Vespers Talk

Philosophy Professor Discusses U. S. Faith

Dr. Patterson said that the greatness of America rests on its great convictions, such as those expressed by our transcriptions. Those on the silver dollar are examples of the faith that is America's. These three transcriptions, "In God We Trust," "E Pluribus Unum," and "Liberty" are the expressions of our inherent faith that has made our greatness.

Mary Bellek was in charge of the devotional period and Margaret Ann Osborn played a piano solo, "To a Water Lily," by MacDowell.

STARS

MORE PLEASURE for millions

More smokers everywhere are turning to Chesterfield's refreshing mildness and better taste.

It takes good things to make a good product. That's why we use the best ingredients a cigarette can have—mild ripe tobaccos and pure cigarette paper—to make Chesterfield the cigarette that smokers say is milder and better-tasting.
