Dr. Bengtson Speaks Today

Central America to Be Subject of Address

Dr. N. A. Bengtson, of the geography department, will present the second in the series of lectures sponsored by the department of romance languages this afternoon in Social Sciences auditorium at 4 o'clock.

The topic of his talk will be "Geographic Aspects of Central America—the Countries and Customs." He will present about 60 colored slides made from his own photos and charts. Across Guatemala from Atlantic to Pacific and back across Salvador, Honduras and Nicaragua to the Caribbean coast he will show the typical features of landscapes and emphasize the different ways of living and activities of making a living ranging from modern to primitive.

Every type of life is typified, in these countries, says Dr. Bengtson, from where the life is the same as it was four centuries ago to highways where life, machinery, cities, and residences are modern. "Within a short distance," states the geographer, "one goes from mountains to plains, jungles to banana lands, and from anti-quiet to modernity."

Pre-Meds Hear Jones Flay 'isms'

Religious Leader Sees Collapse Nazi Regime

Beginning his address to pre-meds, pharmacy, and dentistry students yesterday afternoon, E. Stanley Jones, eminent Christian statesman, said, "There are two ways to look at life, either as a bubble that bursts and disappears or an egg that is creative of life." Dividing the world into five kingdoms, namely, mineral, plant, animal, human and God's, he went on to say that people who put the human kingdom above all the rest are guided in their belief by "humanistic instinct" and are therefore prejudiced.

Describing the "kingdom of God" as a large family with God as father, he went on to prove that the family is the most effective organization by which society can function properly.

Nazism is an organization of race rather than of people; therefore it cannot exist for any length of time. Continuing his attack on "isms" he said communism cuts out other classes while fascism shuts out other nations and both are based on selfishness with the only result being disaster. In ending his address he said that the way of Jesus is the only safe and sane way for humanity.

'Football Not Educational' Says Supreme Court So Uncle Sam Shares Gate Receipts

BY BRUCE CAMPBELL. If there is one party that should not object to the overemphasis of football in the collegiate program that party is the United States government.

The reason why the government should take a friendly attitude toward the gridiron sport is a very sound financial one, inasmuch as thousands of dollars pour into the federal treasury each Saturday from the tax levied on football tickets.

Federal tax receipts from tickets sold to spectators who wish to spectate in the Nebraska stadium amount to a sum varying yearly between $15,000 and $16,000, according to John Selleck, business manager.

This averages down to a tax yield per game of slightly over $3,000.

With Nebraska contributing about $3,000 every Saturday to federal coffers, and about 200 or 250 football games played every Saturday, it can easily be seen that the weekly governmental take approximates the 1/2 million mark which would pay quite a few salaries on the alphabetical bureaus.

Senator's Salary. As Business Manager Selleck pointed out, by citing the Notre Dame-Minnesota game, there are many big games yielding the government more than $3,000. The

'Religious Illiteracy Is High' Says E. Stanley Jones

Students "Don't Know What It's All About"

By Lucile Thomas. Twenty-five hours from Nebraska to New York to speak before a banquet of New York's elite and back to Nebraska! Looking tired from his dash from plane to train to meetings to seminar, E. Stanley Jones, most sought after religious speaker in the world, was still radiating geniality last night. In his clear speech, distinct and slightly British accented, he asserted in an interview that the fundamental weakness in a college student's connection with religion is his almost absolute illiteracy on the subject. "They don't know what it's all about." Delighted to find Nebraska students responsive, he is granting interviews to as many students as time will allow.

Friend of Gandhi, Dr. Jones was the Indian's guest for ten days once. "Just before I left India, I wrote him asking him to come to England with me. His reply was very characteristic. He said, I

Barb Club Organization Nears Record

Six Hundred Students Compose 24 Groups

Barb organization on the campus nears an all time peak with more than six hundred students organized into 24 independent clubs, it was announced this week in the barb bulletin, weekly unaffiliated publication.

A drive inaugurated last week to secure more clubs has produced results and added six clubs to the organization. Twenty-one of the clubs have entered teams in the independent volleyball league.

At the early mass meetings held this fall an organization committee was formed and given the specific duty of drawing up plans for a permanent and effective Barb association and to put the plans into effect. Its actions were deliberately slow, but the members are convinced that they are producing the desired results," the publication points out.

Broadcaster Kaltenborn Has Never a Dull Moment

Adventurous Newsman Talks Here Saturday

No Richard Harding Davis hero is H. V. Kaltenborn, according to an article in Today magazine, yet he ran away from home at the age of 19 to join the 4th Wisconsin Regiment in the Spanish-American War and since then has had a series of adventures, any one of which would be enough to satisfy the average man for a lifetime.

Kaltenborn, who will speak in Lincoln Saturday evening, had perhaps his most exciting escape in the summer of 1936 when he made the first broadcast from an actual scene of a battle in Spain. Crouched like a setting hen in the flimsy shelter of a haystack midway he projected the battlefield around the world in words, pausing occasionally to let the rattle of rifle and machine gun fire serve as exclamation points.

In his nine hours wait before radio connections were completed, shells cut his lines, bombs exploded nearby and bullets whished thru the hay near his head. For his impartial radio reporting of the Spanish Revolution, Kaltenborn was awarded the 1937 gold plaque of the Headliners club.

During an earlier Sino-Japanese fracas in 1927, he was the first American journalist to interview Gen. Chiang Kai Shek who had retreated into China's mountainous interior. Traveling to meet the Chinese commander, Kaltenborn was captured for ransom by Chinese bandits.
