

Huskers drop 53-45 cage finale to Sooners

Ames retains swim crown

Oklahoma nips NU in race for second

Paced by Sophomore Roger Adams, who hails from the Panama Canal Zone, the Iowa State swimmers had little trouble retaining their Big Six crown by submerging the field in the conference get together in the coliseum pool Saturday.

The Cyclones amassed 70 points to finish 31 points ahead of second place Oklahoma, with 39. Nebraska ended in third with 35, while Kansas and Kansas State brought up the rear with 18 and 10 points respectively.

Adams and Pete Hagelin, Husker student coach, each took top honors in two events, Adams in the 50 and 100 yard dashes, and Hagelin in the 200 and 440 freestyle events. The former broke the only loop record when he covered the short sprint in 24.1 during Friday's preliminaries. The old mark was 24.3.

The biggest surprise of the meet was pulled when Ralph Worden and Ervelle Younger, Nebraska entries in diving, both beat out Jarrett of Oklahoma, defending champion. Worden received 305.9 points to finish 25 points ahead of his teammate.

With Iowa State putting on a one team show, Oklahoma and Nebraska engaged in a dog fight for second place honors. The Huskers took the lead after Hagelin's victory in the 220, only to see the Sooners win the final event, the 400 yard relay, to grab the runner-up spot. Summaries:

300 medley relay: Won by Oklahoma (Clegern, Surber, Chism); second, Iowa State; third, Nebraska; fourth, Kansas; fifth, Kansas State. Time 3:22.3.

220 freestyle: Won by Hagelin, Nebraska; second, Egenes, Iowa State; third, Gibbs, Iowa State; fourth, Walker, Oklahoma; fifth, O'Reilly, Oklahoma. Time 2:30.6.

400 freestyle relay: Won by Iowa State (Adams, Hargreheimer, Haldeman, Armstrong); second, Oklahoma; third, Kansas; fourth, Kansas State; fifth, Nebraska. Referee and starter: Cliff Cunningham.

Yaffe leads late rally by Nebraska

Bruce Drake's Oklahoma team took a 53-45 game from the Huskers last night as the fast traveling Sooners, led by Jimmy McNatt, who scored 15 points, piled up a 33-18 halftime advantage, and were never seriously threatened by the Huskers. The Sooners came tie Missouri for the Big Six championship now by defeating Kansas State at Manhattan Monday.

For 30 minutes the game was feated by the Sooner team which was as hot as the Huskers were cold. The fast breaking Oklahoma squad in the well known lurch as McNatt and Garnett Corbin in particular poured in shots from every angle, and increased their halftime lead to 47-26 with slightly less than ten minutes to go.

Huskers Quicken Pace.

Then the Huskers got hot. A junior-senior outfit, playing with two and sometimes three reserves, went to town, and brought the count up to 48-41 with nearly five minutes left, although the Sooners protected their lead from then on out.

Coach W. H. Browne's seniors must have been a bit flustered by the pre-game ceremony in their honor, and took a back seat during the game to the combination of forwards Yaffe and Thomas, guards Pitcaithley and Fitz, and centers Randall and Therien.

Yaffe turned in his best game as a Husker, scoring 11 points, 9 of them in the last ten minutes, and harrying the Sooners with a fine floor game. McNatt, who scored eight points in the first few minutes of the game, led the evening's scoring with 15, while Corbin made 12 and Roop 9 for the winners.

Bill Callihan led the Nebraska all-stars to a 28-23 victory over the Husker frosh in the opener as he sank six fielders. Summary:
