Strange thing about the three scrimmages Biff Jones' Huskers have staged this spring is that of the five touchdowns scored, none has been scored by experienced players.

Ken Simmons, stocky 165 pound Valentine socker, who has already become quite the talk of Husker spring drills, has scored twice-once on a short plunge thru the line, and Tuesday on a 60 yard run. Simmons, a sophomore this year, was carried on the squad last fall, but didn't get into any one of Saturday's scores.

Henry Rohn of Fremont, who turned in a nifty ball-carrying job

Jack Vincent, O'Neill, who ran 60 yards for a touchdown Saturday is in his second year with day, is in his second year with day, is in the freshmen.

Glen Oatman of Lawrence Kas., will be a busy young man this spring. Oatman, a star amateur golfer, will be coaching both the Kansas golf and tennis teams, and the schedule has been arranged so that both teams will have their meets on the same days and in the same towns.

Oatman, who will bring his little brood to Lincoln May 15, was a Jayhawk golf star while in school, having been graduated two years ago. Last spring he coached the K. U. golf team, but this is his first year with the tennis squad. Incidentally, the best tennis prospect at Kansas is Sopho-more Basketball Star Howard Engleman.

Boyce Gatewood, ace Texas hurdler, suffered a leg injury in an early season track meet, and may be lost to his team for the season....two Baylor freshman backs, Parks and Wilson, are being counted on to lead the Bears' attack up here next year Patty Berg is really going to town in that Mid-South golf tournament....her 148 for two rounds is 18 under women's par...she has 75-73 for her first two scores... woman's par is 83. . . . Elmer Layden missed the first day of spring practice at Notre Dame because of illness....the Irish are knee deep in backfield material....Bob Saggau, the Dennison, Ia., flash, will be a junior next year....Harry Stevenson and Ben Sheridan are other returning halfbacks, while Steve Sitko, the boy who called a running play instead of a punt on fourth down against Southern Cal on one momentous occasion last fall is at quarterback...two more vets, Joe Thesing and Milt Piepul are leading the fullback field.... Creston, Ia., whose high school won the Hawkeye state basketball championship, is the home of Husker cager Bud Tall-

Dick Toole, Kansas State sophomore, broke the Wildcat varsity mark as he won that event at the 440 mark as he won that event at the Armour To / relays Saturday ...he did it in 50.6....Toole is but a sophomore, and the win was his first in varsity competition ... his parents had followed the team from Goodland, Kas., to watch him...two former K. U. basketball players were chosen on the all America cage team named following last week's A. A. U. meet at Denver.

Spring grid practice indicates triumphant season for Huskers material for next fall BY DAVID THOMPSON.

If spring practice is any indication, a controversial statement in itself, Nebraska should not be faced with any reserve problem when the grid season opens next September.

Seventeen of the gridders are out for the end positions, 15 for tackle assignments, 19 for guard positions, 9 for the pivot spot, and 30 out to have one of the four starting backfield spots.

Numbers alone do not give great assurance of strength in the ranks of the shock troops, but coupled with the experience among them it paints an impressive picture of what may be expected.

Four of the 17 ends saw some service last year. These include Fred Preston, Raymond Prochaska, George Seeman and Jack Ashburn. Along with Glenn Schluckbeir there is a strong freshman crop of wingmen offering the Biffer plenty of leeway in his choice of ends next fall.

Tackle Prospects Good.

There will be no gap in the tackle situation next fall under normal conditions for names like Forrest Behm, Royal Kahler, Leonard Muskin, Clarence Herndon, Sam Schwarzkopf, and Paul Goetowski belie any shortage of material or experience in these spots. Again a strong frosh group with boys like Vic Schleich, Ralph Whitehead, Francis Leik, and Jack Nelson provides a bulwark to fall back upon.

The guard spots offer least in the way of experience with only Adna Dobson, Arlo Klum, and Warren Alfson back of the top last season guards. However here the freshman team effectively fills the gap with first stringer positions almost three-fourths theirs. These are Hub Monsky, George Abel, and George Stearns, who along with the others on the frosh guard roster will vie for regular berths next fall.

Four Experienced Centers.

centers have picked up part of the necessary experience for strong competition. Bob Ramey, Bob Burruss, Fred Meier, and Dale Ruser fall under this category. Frosh candidates for the center position include Howard Kelly, Louis Burger, and Herschel Pahl.

Veteran ball carriers and blockers back in the Husker backfield are very numerous. Roy Petsch, Walt Luther, Hermie Rohrig, Theos Thompson, Bus Knight, Harry Hopp, George Porter, and Kenneth Simmons. Seriously threatening these vets are freshmen like Henry Rohn, Ray Smith, Jack Vincent, Jacob Ferguson, Francis.

One can well conclude from this and watching their spring performances that the Huskers will go into competition next year with the best balanced squad in many test to Oregon university in the finals of the western regional tournament of the National Collegiate Athletic association in the Treasure Island coliseum of the Golden Gate international exposition Tuesday night.

Sooners lose in cage meet

Drake's men were unable to penetrate Oregon defense effectively, while the elongated Webfeet pierced the Sooner ranks for frequent setups. It was the uncanny ability of the Oregon forwards to make their one hand push shots that proved the nem-esis of the midwest entry.

The Organians led from late in the first canto until the end of Haroid Kennedy, Wayne Blue, and the game, never letting Oklahoma the frosh in eligibility Vike get close enough to seriously get close enough to seriously threaten except imediately after the start of the final period when Sooners came within three points of the winners. Here Laddy Gale, Oregon center took over and sent the winners out to an unbentable lead.
