

Huskers go against Baylor tomorrow

UNDEFEATED BEARS THREATEN NEBRASKA IN INTERSECTIONAL TILT

Game rated as tossup; NU outweighed by big Texan forward wall

Nebraska's Cornhuskers will attempt to remain among the nation's leading teams tomorrow afternoon as Morley Jennings' undefeated and untied Baylor Bears furnish the opposition. The game, rated pretty much a tossup with a possible edge going to the Huskers because they are playing at home, will be the first between the two schools.

The Huskers will have to be improved over their letdown at Iowa State to win, Baylor scout Douglas having told Coach Jen-Kahler, 215 and game captain Sam'l Schwartzkopf, 197 at tackles; Ed Schwartzkopf, 175, and Warren Alfson, 190 at guards; and Bob Burruss, 195 at center. That line averages 193, and 194 from tackle to tackle.

The Huskers' regular backfield, with Roy Petsch, 182, Herman Rohrig, 197, Butch Luther, 178, and Vike Francis is slated to start. The boys average 192, six pounds heavier to the man than the Baylor backfield which lists Milt Merka, 190 at quarterback, Jack Wilson, 195 and Jim Witt, 175 at halfbacks, and W. J. "Red" Grumbles, 185 at fullback. The Huskers as a team average a little less than 193, while the Bears hit 198.

Both teams are in fairly good shape, altho Bus Knight, who has played lots of quarterback for the Huskers, still has an injured shoulder, altho the Husker trainers said he would be able to play. Hermie Rohrig is still bothered with a sore foot, and Harry Hopp was working at his post Thursday, during the active work.

Pa Schulte, former Husker track coach, and one-time line coach, visited practice last night, renewing acquaintances around the school which he served for years.

Baylor in good shape.

Wimpee and Wilson picked up charley-horses in the Arkansas game but both will probably be in at the starting lineup. Wimpee's substitute is Jack Iummus, who Frank Marx, Bennett Edwards, nings that the Bears could win handily should the Huskers play at their Iowa State pace. However, there is a long afternoon in wait for the Texans if the Huskers show the form they showed against Minnesota.

Important game.

Fans of both the middlewest and southwt are watching the game. Baylor, the "dark horse" of the Southwest conference after their 19-7 win over Arkansas last week, has been looking forward to the Husker game, and Baylorites believe they will have a fine season provided they can get past the Huskers. The Bear game is expected to show how much of a factor the Huskers will be in the Big Six race, and if Nebraska comes through in this game, it means a high ranking at present for them nationally.

The Bears will have a tremendous weight advantage over the Huskers, as the veteran Waco line averages nearly 205 pounds from end to end and 208 from tackle to tackle. Bob Nelson, the best center in the southwest, weighs 210, and the tackles Frank Marx and Bennett Edwards are 215 pounders. Capt. Bob Taylor is a 190 pound guard, while Leonard Akin, his running mate, weighs 210. Sherman Barnes at one end weighs 197, while W. J. Wimpee tips the beam at 195. The average weight from tackle to tackle for the Bears is 208 even.

Same lineup.

The Biffer will probably start the same lineup which took the field against Iowa State. It includes George Seeman, 194, and Jack Ashburn, 183 at ends; Royal recovered a Porker fumble for a touchdown Saturday, while little Dwight Parks, a 158 pound passing demon, can fill in for Wilson. Both are sophomores.

Statistics show Cornhuskers outdowned, though have come up since Indiana game

BY JOHN McDERMOTT.

Fourth game of the Husker season is coming up, so with one-third of the season gone, we're taking a look at the Huskers' statistical side. The Cornhuskers have come up, after a slow start against Indiana. They have piled up a total of 29 first downs in three games, in comparison with the 28 made by their opponents. Nebraska has held its own in the last two games, but Indiana outdowned the Scarlet, 12-6. The Huskers, although out-downed, have done better than their opponents in first downs gained by rushing, having piled up 17, to 15 for their opponents. Minnesota had seven of these, and the Huskers got eight against the Gophers.

Outyarded at Indiana.

The Huskers were outdowned and outyarded at Indiana but have been on an equal basis in the last two games. The Huskers have picked up a net yardage from scrimmage of 352 yards, and their opponents have netted 519 yards. Indiana got 220 of those yards, holding the Jonesmen to 71. The Scarlet passing game has netted 149 yards in seven completed passes, while the opposing teams have gained 187 in 14 attempts.

Nebraska has thrown but 15 passes in three games as against their foes' 48. The Huskers have completed seven for a .467 average, while the three teams the Huskers faced hit 14 times for a .290 average. The Hoosiers completed 10 out of 21 attempts, but the Huskers have tightened up in their aerial defense against the last two weekends.

No laterals.

Razzle dazzle has been missing in the Husker running attack, for they haven't attempted a single lateral pass. Six laterals have been tried against the Jones boys. Only two passes have been used by the Scarlet in the last two encounters. One was good for five yards against Minnesota, and the other was grounded against Iowa State.

Nebraska kickers have been doing a nice bit of foot work, averaging 39 yards from scrimmage in the first three games. The Husker backs have kicked 39 times, excluding kickoffs and placekicks.

The opponents have been forced to boot the ball 34 times, and have bettered the Nebraska average, getting an average of 44 yards. The Scarlet have attempted two field goals, making one good against the Cyclones. Their opponents have attempted two, but neither was good.

Ten fumbles.

The Huskers have fumbled the pigskin 10 times, six of them coming in last Saturday's game. Their opponents have dropped the ball four times, recovering three of them. The Huskers pounced on their own fumbles seven times.

Nebraska has equaled its opponents in number of penalties, having nine against them in the record book. The Scarlet has been set back 75 yards as a result of penalties and their foes have been penalized the same distance.
