DAILY controversy draws contemporary comment

Friends of the state university will be glad to note that this year's row over the Daily Nebraskan has resulted in a victory for the student editor.

The question was whether the editor had violated the release date on a news item sent out by the publicity department of the university, and on that question of fact we have no information. But there was involved also the natural enmity between newspaper men and press agents, and upon that subject every newspaper man has opinions.

Press agents, publicity men and public relations counsel are a necessary part of the modern world. Their calling is an honorable one. The causes for which they labor may be righteous and their souls may be pure. But still their goals are not the goals of newspaper men.

For a good press agent is trying to obtain publication of "news" which is slanted, while a good newspaper man is trying to publish news which is absolutely without slant or bias.

Doubtless the university needs a publicity department and doubtless it is doing a good job. But it should be kept as far as possible away from the office of the student newspaper.

For if a university newspaper is required to confine its energies to carrying the torch and beating the drum, then it becomes a sort of Americanized Izvestia. On the other hand if it is left free to report the news of the campus without regard for artificial "release" dates, then, equally with other American newspapers, it has an opportunity to serve its community.

Union initiates new hobby groups

Three hobby groups are featured on the Student Union program this week. Tap dancing sketch classes and a book review are the three groups.

The tap dancing class, sponsored by the Coed Counsellors and the Union, will meet Tuesday afternoon at 5 in Union 209. All beginners and those who have had some tap are invited.

Sketching classes start Thursday at 5 in Union 315. Sponsored by the Union, all materials and models are provided free. Members of the fine arts department will teach the class.

John Steinbeck's best seller, "Grapes of Wrath," will be reviewed by Mrs. W. B. Romans Thursday at 7 p. m. in the book

Some call it preamble to Hell; others call it the Student Union Madhouse. This is a free country and you can say anything you damn please. But it's still the DAILY offices:

Offices where the editor is so particular that he throws a fit when he finds a period upside down.

Offices where two lady exchange editors have gone crazy reading of bargains in cities a thousand miles away.

Offices where some people clean up by sponging off of others.

Offices where a girl with curves is always cornered.

Offices where when it comes to swearing, it seems that people just use naughty words as a matter of course.

Offices where it seems that everyone, including the editor, puts his problems aside for a brainy day and then sits around waiting for it to come.

Offices where time and tide wait for no man—and neither do the women.

Offices where the cost of furniture breakage exceeds that of the World war.

But we wouldn't give them up for anything.

93 bandsters go to K-State

Ninety-three band members made the trip to Manhattan Saturday, according to Dean Thompson's office.

Seventy-one of the senior band (sophomores or above) had clear scholastic records and were approved. Sixty of these were eligible from the start, 19 ineligible. Of these, eight had removable conditions and incompletes from last year and were excluded. The remaining 11 were allowed to accompany the band.

The dean's office had requested that the list of 36 freshmen who have been playing with the Varsity Band be approved as to eligibility. Checking the list, the office found that 7 had delinquencies in scholarship, so the expenses of only 29 freshmen were paid. Scholastic requirements for freshmen band men are the same as for footballers.

Two graduate members and one student with exceptionally high grades but less than a 12 hour schedule also made the trip. A number of members without clear records went anyway and paid their own expenses.

Eligibility rules for participation in activities were quoted by the office. A student must:

1. Be carrying at least 12 hours satisfactorily at the time of participation.
2. Be credited with at least 12 hours for the last semester that he was registered in the university preceding participation.
3. Be credited with at least 27 hours for the two semesters preceding participation.

Dr. Pound edits literature text

Dr. Louise Pound of the department of English is one of the authors of the College Book of American Literature, a textbook containing the "significant utterances" of important figures in American literary history.

Miss Pound edited and contributed the material on the literature of the 19th Century. Her long experience as a teacher aided her in deciding what students like and dislike and the kind of material most effective in teaching.

Although just published, the book is already being used in English courses at Wisconsin and other universities. Prof. Milton Ellis of Maine and Prof. George W. Spohn of St. Olaf College are the other authors.

The book also contains biographical data and descriptions of social backgrounds out of which the literature grew. It is 1,000 pages in length.

The review has been arranged by the Coed Counsellors and the Union.
