Gussie Played But No Girations

Dear Pa:

As you know I'm playing in the band. Sure do wish you folks could have let Hank do the milking a week ago Saturday and could have been down here to the game. The band went thru a couple of numbers at the half-time that were the best I've ever seen a band here do. And a lot of other people said so too. I was the fifth man in the third row from the left. I'll bet some of the folks from home up there saw me and are jealous because I'm making so good down here. But don't let them get the best of you.

But to get around to the point, we were to go to Kansas last Saturday. We had a couple of good tricks worked up and would have really showed up that band down there. You know it's getting so there's as much competition between these bands as there is between football teams. I've never heard of Nebraska going out and getting football players to play their football, but you know Elmer's boy that works in the joint in town got a circular this summer inviting him to play in the band down here. That's a good thing, I guess. Anyway Nebraska has the best organized and the most colorful band it has ever had.

But to get around to the point, you know last week ended our first six weeks down here. I guess I got a down slip in one of my courses. But don't worry. One of the guys here at the frat has influence and is going to fix it up.

But anyway, we were going to Kansas and girate. I guess quite a few of us had down slips because the dean said something about us being ineligible. So the band didn't girate. The band couldn't do much down there at Kansas because they didn't have enough players. There's a lot of the guys who are pretty mad about the whole thing—giving their time for something that speaks well of the university and then not getting to girate.

Everyone seems to blame Dean Thompson, our dean of men. But after all, he's only the policeman enforcing the law. I guess it ain't all his fault. People have to be eligible for everything—the football team, the publications, and all other activities. Course, the football players are well known in their classes and everybody wants us to have a good team, so they don't have quite so much trouble. With us band members it's different. I guess it's just one of those things.

But don't worry about the down slip you'll be getting about the end of the week. My frat brothers are pretty influential, and besides it ain't the grade you get, it's what you learn.

Don't worry, GUSSIE.

Dean announces memorial contest

Dean Le Rossignol of the college of business administration, revealed yesterday that Nebraska students are eligible to enter the Boffey Memorial Students' contest in which four awards totaling $500 are given to prize essayists. The awards include a $200 prize for the entry ranking first.

The rules of the contest relating to eligibility and subject matter are as follows:

Those eligible to compete.

The competition is open to regularly enrolled, full-time students in any recognized college or university having a school of commerce or college of business administration.

Scrap Irony Chris Peterson

Went to a meeting Sunday. The speaker gave a lengthy talk on the topic, "A Fool and His Money are Soon Parted," and after he had finished the collection plate was passed.

Well, money can do strange things. In fact, it made my brother the idol of our family. He hasn't had a job in five years.

Ran across some more of money's magic the other day. It's the Scotch cure for sea-sickness; Hold a quarter between your teeth.

Pertinent too, is the fact that so far as a gold digger is concerned, no man is too wealthy to work.

What some people won't do for financial security. Take the case of my uncle. He worked himself to death trying to earn the premiums on his life insurance policy.

Money may not be everything but it's the biggest share of it.
