

After tomorrow—stadium seats

Porter, back—Dobson, fullback—Seemann, end—Ashburn, end—Ramey, center—Herrmann, guard—Schwartzkopf, tackle

These seven men play their last game for Nebraska tomorrow

George Porter, back

George Porter is the only out-of-stater of the lot. Porter came here three years ago from St. Regis high in Denver, Colorado, where he was an all-city back, and a baseball and basketball star. Porter, a triple-threater, was out nearly all of last season as a result of an injury sustained in the Iowa State game. However, he didn't let it stop him, and came back eager as ever this fall.

Porter, a fine passer and punter, was game captain against Kansas. Lack of speed has prevented him from playing more time than he has this year. He's a senior in teachers' college, is six feet one inch tall, weighs 175, and is 21 years old.

Adna Dobson, fullback

Adna Dobson, another man who came up from Lincoln high, played two years at guard before he was switched to fullback this year, from which spot he captained the Huskers against Kansas State. Dobby played guard, tackle and fullback at Lincoln where he was an all state lineman. He won mafor letters as a guard his first two years in school.

A wealth of guard material forced him down the list in the line until he was moved into the backfield, where he came into his own against K-State. He's a good line backer, and can get that vital yardage through the middle, not having lost a single yard this season.

He's married, and is a second semester senior in arts and sciences. Dobby's a fine student, is 21 years old, stands 5-11 and weighs 195.

George Seemann, end

George Seeman, like many another Cornhusker great, is an alumnus of Omaha Central where he was an all-state end and state wrestling champion in the heavy-weight division.

He entered Nebraska in 1935, and won a minor letter as a guard in 1936. A bad knee kept him inactive in 1937 but he came back last year in old end position where he crashed the starting lineup, sticking there ever since.

A smashing defensive player, he came into his own toward the end of last year. Last week against Pitt he played a great game as he stripped interference and made countless tackles. He's a senior in the college of business administration, is six feet, one inch tall, weighs 195, is 22 years old and lettered on the wrestling team last year.

Jack Ashburn, end

Jack Ashburn, six feet two inches tall, and weighing 185 pounds, will start at right end for the Huskers tomorrow, as co-captain with Schwartzkopf. Ashburn also led the team at Iowa State.

He enrolled here in 1936, winning a "B" team award as a sophomore and a major letter last year. He stepped into a regular's position after the Minnesota game this fall.

Jack is a brother of Cliff Ashburn, Husker end a decade ago and now coach of Curtis Aggie teams. The younger Ashburn, although he hasn't been used often on pass plays, is a good receiver, and has come through with some fine defensive performances this year. He is a senior in teachers college and 22 years old.

Bob Ramey, center

Bob Ramey is another senior lineman who finishes his varsity football career tomorrow. Bob, a rangy 190 pounder, stands six feet two inches tall and will be graduated from the college of business administration at midyear.

Ramey played with Schwartzkopf at Lincoln high and then enrolled with Sam at Nebraska. Bob won major letters in 1936 and 1937, although he was Charley Brock's understudy. Last year he remained out of competition as Brock finished his varsity career. Bob is 23 years old.

This year Bob has divided snapper-back duties with Bob Buruss and Freddie Meier. Although he's been working out in a sweat suit this week, he should be ready to go in his last college try tomorrow. He was captain at Indiana.

Bill Herrmann, guard

Bill Herrmann, reserve guard from Osceola, is the oldest man on the Husker team, having passed his 26th birthday. Herrmann enrolled here in 1935, and won a minor award his sophomore year. He was out of competition in 1936, but started a number of games last year, earning a major letter.

A galaxy of speedy sophomore guards has kept Bill on the bench for a good part of the season, but he always comes through with a fine defensive performance when called into action.

Herrmann, who was born in Texas but who has lived in Nebraska most of his life, is a senior in teachers college. He's six feet tall, weighs 180, and captained the team at Missouri.

Schwartzkopf, tackle

Sam Schwartzkopf, 202 pound Husker right tackle who is co-captain tomorrow, is a home town boy, having come up from Lincoln high school where he was an all-state tackle five years ago.

Sam took two years with the freshmen, and won a major letter in his first year with the varsity. Illness and injury limited him to a minor letter last year, but he jumped into a starter's position after the second game this season. He captained the Huskers against Baylor, and was co-captain in last week's Pitt game with George Seemann.

NU, Oklahoma hope for Kansas to upset Tigers

BIG SIX STANDINGS

	W	L	Pct
Missouri	4	0	1.000
Nebraska	3	1	.750
Oklahoma	3	1	.750
Kansas	1	3	.250
Iowa State	1	4	.200
Kansas State	1	4	.200

Nebraska and Oklahoma play tomorrow, probably for second place in the final Big Six standings, and, perhaps for a possible share in the conference title.

Missouri plays Kansas Saturday, and if the Tigers win, they'll breeze through undefeated to a championship, no matter what Nebraska and Oklahoma do. Should they lose to Kansas, the winner of the Nebraska-Sooners game would tie the Tigers for the championship.

Missouri will win the title if they tie Kansas. If Missouri loses to Kansas, and the Huskers and Sooners tie, the Tigers will still win the crown, for they will have only one loss to a loss and a tie each for the Sooners and the Huskers. All in all, Nebraska's only hope is to beat Oklahoma and bank on a Kansas upset; the Sooners' hope is to beat Nebraska and pray for the underdog Kansas against Missouri.

Coming grid rally to honor NU seniors, prep stars

The seven senior gridiron heroes who don the Scarlet and Cream for the last time against Oklahoma Saturday, are to be honored at the all state football luncheon given by the junior chamber of commerce Friday, Dec. 8.

The luncheon will be part of the fourth annual all state football rally held in honor of Nebraska's outstanding high school senior players. Senior members of Nebraska Wesleyan football squad will also be guests. Last year 250 athletes and coaches, representing 51 communities were in Lincoln for the rally. An even greater crowd this year is predicted by Dr. Donald Edwards, chairman of the junior chamber of commerce committee sponsoring the rally.

Held with clinic.

This will be the first year that the date of the rally coincides with the university's basketball clinic for high school coaches and officials.

"In past years," Edwards explained, "the affair has been held on a Tuesday, which forced the coaches to make two trips to Lincoln the same week if they desired to attend both rally and clinic."

Invitations to the rally are issued to the coach, superintendent, team captain and one senior player from each Nebraska high school. As part of the day's program the group will be conducted on a tour of the university campus. Athletic events, dinner, and entertainment at the Student Union are included in the schedule for the visiting prep stars. To top off the day the boys will be guests at the opening basketball game of the season, Nebraska versus South Dakota university.

Sig Alphas win I-M volleyball

Sigma Alpha Epsilon, winners of last year's Jack Best intramural trophy, won their first championship of the season last night as they beat the Phi Psi's in the volleyball finals, two games to one.

The Sig Alphas went through the season undefeated as they won League 4. In last night's semifinal playoffs, they won two games and lost none from the Beta's. The Phi Psi's advanced to the finals with a 2-0 win over Sigma Alpha Mu. Members of the Sig Alpha team are Jack Fate, Bruce Duncan, Harold Osborne, Jack Wunderlich, Dale Lawrence, Bob Martin, Paul Brown.
