

Huskers thump Iowa State 44-28

By June Bierbower.

Add famous weather sayings: Don Fitz: "This is sure good basketball weather. Even the noses are dribbling."

Phog Allen's Jayhawks, who had the best won-and-lost record of any Big Six team before conference play started, may have the best won-and-lost mark when conference play ends, if their performance in beating Oklahoma 46-26 means anything.

It probably does—Phog Allen's teams are always good, and the veteran Jayhawks must be clicking this year—even if they are a bunch of pore little short boys. Utah U., we understand, doesn't have many tall boys, either, and they take care of themselves.

It was the Kansas defense which shone as Jimmy McNatt, star Sooner forward got exactly one field goal. Guards Kline and Harp, both six footers, of Kansas, got most of the rebounds, and Oklahoma didn't get a good close-in shot all night, press reports say.

Oklahoma didn't make a point for eight minutes, and was behind 25-9 at half time. Ralph Miller's famous knee did all right, and the Chanuter got 13 points as he was the evening's high scorer. Howard Engleman, who last year set a Kansas scoring record of 27 points in a single game, didn't even play. He's been injured.

Don Raurot's decision to stay at Columbia, Missouri, means of course, that the Tigers will have a capable coach next year, but it's good news to those revenge seeking mortals like us, who didn't want Faurot to get away from Missouri just after beating the Huskers twice in a row, because the third time's charm, you know.

The only way to know something is to see it, it seems. We wrote a couple days ago that Don Fitz' last minute basket against Stanford was a one-handed desperation effort, having been under the impression that it was. We didn't see the game, tho, and a fan who did corrects us about it. He says that Fitz' shot was set, and that he was given plenty of time to make it by Stanford which used poor defensive tactics in the closing minutes of the game. Detroit, on the other hand, he adds, didn't let the Huskers get a set shot at the basket, and Fitz against the Titans didn't have time to take a good aim at the basket.

Dale DeKoster, Iowa State guard, who is on the Ames road trip, has risen from water boy to the varsity...he was water boy for the team before the start of the present school quarter at Ames...at that time he hadn't attended Iowa State for the three quarters necessary to make a transfer student eligible...they have a month's vacation at California between terms...it's going on now so the team isn't missing classes...Dick "Dutch" Kelly, our old sports ed pal at California, is taking graduate work there...the Oklahoma Sooners don't seem to schedule easy last games...they played the Huskers this year...next fall its Santa Clara and the game is on the west coast.

Nebraska wins opening Big Six tilt

Cyclones falter as Brownemen pull away after early moments

Nebraska got off to a flying start in the Big Six title race last night as the Huskers tripped a ragged Iowa State team 44-28 after leading all the way except for a short time early in the opening period.

Don Fitz opened with a follow shot for the Huskers, and Dale DeKoster got a free throw before Al Randall potted one to give Nebraska a 4-1 lead. Long Carol Schneider dumped in the first Iowa State basket after seven minutes were gone, and he and Bob Harris followed with buckets to put the Ames team ahead. Randall got his second basket and Harry Pitcaithley potted one to give the Huskers a lead they never relinquished.

Schneider stars

Schneider, six foot six inch sophomore center, kept the Iowans in the game during the first half with four baskets, but the Huskers led 19-12 at intermission.

Iowa State brought the score to 21-17 early in the second period as Schneider got a free throw and a bucket, and Harris a basket, while the best the Huskers could do was a sensational bucket by Bud Tallman.

A cluster of three free throws by Harry Pitcaithley, a basket by Don Fitz, and two fielders by Bob Therien stretched the Huskers' lead to 30-19 as the best the Iowans could do was a fielder by Lange.

Yaffe scores

Irv Yaffe, who had the Cyclones bothered all night, got three points to match a free throw by Nicholas and an overhead bucket by Gordon as the Huskers led 33-22 with twelve minutes gone. Pitcaithley and Sid Held did the rest of the Husker scoring from then on out, and Schneider got the last bucket of the evening to boost his scoring total to thirteen.

Pitcaithley with four fielders and six free throws led the scorers with fourteen points, while Schneider was the Iowans only hope. The remaining team members were "cold" on their shots, as redhead Bob Harris, all-conference star, whose parents were here for the game, got only two baskets during the evening.

Schneider was a power under the basket, as he was about the only Ames player who could take the ball from off the backboard. Fred Gordon, guard, looked good at times for the Iowans, who couldn't cope with the tall aggressive Huskers.

Dean Rufus A. Lyman of the college of pharmacy represented the university at the recent pharmacy section meetings of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Columbus and the annual convention of the American Student Health association in New York City. Dr. Ruth Warner of the student health department was also present for the New York conference.

Schwartzkopf returns home from Frisco game

Sam Schwartzkopf, Husker tackle, arrived in Lincoln late Sunday night from the west coast, after appearing in the East-West game in San Francisco on New Year's day.

Sam, who played nearly half the game, was presented with a blue and gold jacket by the East-West committee, and a wrist watch, along with the other men who were chosen for the game.

After the contest, which the West team won 28-11, the players went to Hollywood where they toured movie studios. Schwartzkopf roomed with John Shirk and Frank Ivy, Oklahoma players during his stay in Hollywood.

Schiechl Outstanding.

Johnny Schiechl of Santa Clara far outshone John Haman of Northwestern in a battle of all-American centers, Schwartzkopf said. Clyde "Bulldog" Turner, Hardin-Simmons center who was reported to have suffered a leg injury that would keep him out of the game, played about twenty minutes, and turned in a fine performance.

Ed Boell, New York university star, came in for plenty of praise from Schwartzkopf. The 210 pounder is a fine all round player, and according to Sam, rivals Paul Christman in cockiness.

Schwartzkopf will appear on the DAILY'S 11 o'clock program tomorrow night at which time he will be interviewed by sports editor June Bierbower about the game.

Missouri Tigers find going tough in early season games

The following is an article on Missouri's basketball prospects for this season, written by Louis Gerdes, sports editor of the Missouri Student, Nebraska faces Missouri at Columbia Saturday night in the Huskers' second conference start. Gerdes, who hails from Grand Island, is a member of the Tigers' tennis team.

By Louis Gerdes

Missouri, co-champions of the Big Six, lost only two cogs in their basketball machine, but in early games the Tigers have found it tough to pick up where they left off last season.

Increased strength of other teams in the conference and the dismal showing of Missouri in the East caused Coach George R. Edwards to hint that unless the Tigers do an about face, they will be lucky to finish fourth.

Memories of the early games in last campaign somewhat off set this statement. Tiger hopes then were much lower than now when Missouri holds a 500 per cent batting average. Missouri usually starts slow and plays best in Big Six competition.

Early reports on the team this year indicated Missouri would be even stronger than last season. The best crop of sophomores in years joined the squad to balance the loss of two valuable veterans, Hal Halstead and Harlan Kiersey.

Outstanding among the sophomores are George Evans, Loren Mills and Herb Gregg. Evans and Mills play guard, while Gregg is a flashy, 5 foot 8 inch forward. Evans takes the place of Halstead as the team's long range shooter.

Coach Edwards usually starts an all-veteran lineup with Captain John Lobsiger and Martin Nash at the guards, Bill Harvey and Arch Watson in the forward posts, and one of two lanky boys, Blaine Currence or Haskell Tison at center. Tison towers 6 feet 7 inches.

Clay Cooper, who was torrid against Nebraska last year, will join the squad again along with Currence. Cooper and Currence played in the Orange Bowl football game.

The Bengals employ the same offensive and defensive formations as they used a year ago. They still stick to close man-for-man when the going gets tough.

No one player has continued to excel for the Tigers thus far. Captain John Lobsiger, an All-Big Six choice, has not been playing as well as in the past, but it is expected that he will be back on his game before the conference race goes far.

Water polo play enters last week

Acacia's, Sigma Nu's, ATO's have each won twice in I-M contests

The beginning of the final week in the interfraternity water polo tournament finds at least two teams tied for first place in each of the four leagues. Heading the list of winners at present are Acacia, Alpha Tau Omega and Sigma Nu each with two wins apiece.

In league 1 which includes the Acacia, Theta Xi, Sigma Nu, Chi Phi and Alpha Sigma Phi teams the Acacia's and Sigma Nu's are tied for first thus far, the former team having defeated Alpha Sigma Phi 8-0 and taken a forfeit from the Chi Phi players, while the latter won over Alpha Sigma Phi 31-0 and took a forfeit from Theta Xi.

Alpha Tau Omega leads league 2 by virtue of a 11-1 victory over the Beta Theta Pi and a 31-12 win over Delta Upsilon. The Beta's more or less drowned Alpha Gamma Rho 43-0, and the latter received a forfeit from Delta Upsilon.

Phi Gam's are tied with Sigma Alpha Epsilon in league 3 the former winning by forfeit from the Farm House and the latter having won 24-13 from Phi Delta Theta.

The end of last week's play found Phi Kappa Psi, Kappa Sigma and Sigma Phi Epsilon tied for first place in league 4 with one win apiece. Kappa Sigma won by forfeit from Sigma Phi Epsilon who in their turn took a forfeit from Sigma Chi. In the only played match Phi Kappa Psi won from Kappa Sigma 23-0.

The schedule for playing of postponed games is as follows: Wednesday, Kappa Sigma vs. Sigma Chi at 8:30; Theta Xi vs. Chi Phi at 9:00; and Phi Kappa Psi vs. Sigma Phi Epsilon at 9:30; Thursday, Alpha Gamma Rho vs. Alpha Tau Omega at 10:00; Chi Phi vs. Alpha Sigma Phi at 9:30; Acacia vs. Theta Xi at 9:00 and Phi Kappa Psi vs. Sigma Chi at 8:30.
