John Loos, history graduate student.

I absolutely do not think the Dies committee should be continued. For one reason the department of justice could well, if not better handle the work being done by the committee. Their efforts are merely duplicative; and there is so much duplication in the government today, which results in increased costs and indirectly increased taxation.

I can't see that the work of the committee has been of any real consequence in that little irrefutable evidence has been collected and no real results have been obtained.

Norbert Mahnken, history graduate student.

I am opposed to continuance of the committee because the characters of the witnesses that testify are not the type that would be accepted in any court of law. The testimony is collected more for the purpose of publicity rather than a serious attempt to gain information. Another reason for my opposition is the past history of the committee. It has always been an anti-labor, anti-progressive group. Rae Simenson, bizad senior.

I am not in favor of Dies or his committee because I believe that it is making a lot of noise about nothing. In my opinion it is magnifying incidents of practically no importance into sensational and only partially true material. Take for instance the claim of the committee that there were "red tendencies" on the campus here. Ralph Worden, arts and sciences junior.

If we are to rid the country of communists and men typifying Fritz Kuhn, the Dies committee should be continued. It is the only present means of removing the undercurrent of agitation against the government.

of two former Nebraska students have been announced recently. Jane Austin, Delta Gamma, will be married Jan. 20 to Harold Hanson of Deadwood, S. D. who was an Alpha Sig. The wedding will take place in Beatrice.

Anna Marie Ruth, Alpha Xi Delta, has announced her engagement to John Lovern. They are both of Pueblo, Colo., and John is a graduate of the University of Colorado where he was a Sig Ep.

mittee proven itself in the past? With the present agitation against our democratic government there should be some means of blocking or at least checking such a move. Warren Watson, arts and sciences freshman.

In my mind it wouldn't hurt anything to continue investigations similar to those made by the Dies committee. Of course a considerable amount of the revelations of the committee is just a lot of hot air but I believe that they are accomplishing something even if all they do is to arouse public interest in government and awaken the public to the realization that the course of good government never does run smooth.

Marjorie Bauer, arts and sciences senior.

It doesn't seem that the committee has done anything of importance as yet except that it has raked up some very interesting and revealing material—the truth of which is not known.
