

Grapplers lose to Iowa Teachers, 25-5

Brooks, Littler, Smutz flash form in track 'feelout'

by Earl Hunt.

With only three weeks remaining before the opening dual indoor track meet with Kansas on Feb. 10, Coach Ed Weir sent his charges through time trials yesterday to get an idea on how the Huskers will fare against the Jayhawkers.

If the performances of Gene "Red" Littler, Bill Smutz, and Harold Brooks mean anything, Weir will not be doomed to total disappointment in the oncoming season.

Littler does :06.5.

Littler, the sparkling "dream runner" from Mitchell, captured firsts in the 60 and 440 yard dashes with comparative ease. Smutz ran away with the 60 yard low and high hurdles; and to make the day complete, the Pawnee City flash walked off with initial place in the broad jump. Brooks, the Gothenburg find who will be eligible next semester, ran the mile in the unofficial time of 4:26 which better the Nebraska indoor record of 4:30.8 made by Fred Matteson in 1937.

Littler's time of 6.5 seconds in the 60 yard event bested Lexington's Bob DeFruiter, Smutz, George Abel, Lincoln, and Jack Bengier, Callaway, who followed in that order. The red head won the quarter mile even in 52.9 seconds with DeFruiter hot on his heels. Millard Cluck of Scottsbluff, Gerald Dunlap, Lexington, and Murray Wood, Lincoln, were third, fourth and fifth. Dunlap and Wood are freshmen.

In the high hurdles, Smutz and Clyde Taylor, Lexington freshman, raced neck and neck with Smutz timed in 7.9 seconds and Taylor in 8 seconds flat. Erwin Goldenstein, Elk Creek, pulled up in third place. Bob Kahler, footballer from Grand Island, pushed Smutz to 7.2 seconds in the low hurdles. Taylor, Goldenstein, and Cluck followed in close order.

Jim Dixon, Blair, paced the half millers with 2:05.3, followed by Jim Brogan, freshman from Tilden, whose time was 2:08.7.

Edsel Wibbels, the Wolbach strong boy did 48-1 in the shot, for a fine mark this early in the season. Vic Schleich, Lincoln athlete who is taking another year with the frosh, had 46-1 1/2.

Bob Kahler won the high jump, as he did 5 feet, 8 1/2 inches. Taylor, of the frosh had 5-6 1/2, while Smutz, Bengier, and Dale Nannen, all sophs, had 5-5 1/2. Smutz had the best mark in the broad jump, as he did 21-10.

Ray Tomes wins fall for Huskers

Royal Kahler loses in varsity debut to ISTC heavyweight

by John McDermott.

Coach Jerry Adam's wrestling team fell before a superior Iowa State Teachers team last night on the coliseum mat, 25-5. The teachers won seven of the eight matches, but were able to gain only two falls, winning the remainder of the matches on a referee's decision.

Ray Tomes wrestling in the 165 class was the only Husker to take a decision. Tomes threw Allen Creel in 6 1/2 minutes with a spread eagle and an arm lock.

The Huskers are mostly a sophomore aggregation and show promise altho they did not fare so well in the first meet. The Teachers on the other hand boast two former state high school champions in Kirstein and Isaacson, and Jensen was undefeated in varsity competition as a sophomore last year.

The heavyweight mix between Royal Kahler and Augie Bolinski proved the most thrilling of the evening's program, Bolinski finally winning on a referee's decision.

The Huskers go on a three-day trip in February, engaging Michigan State at East Lansing, Feb. 8, Chicago U. the next night, and Illinois at Urbana Feb. 10.

121 lb. class: Jensen (T) threw Kuska in 3 min. 45 sec., reverse arm lock.

125 lb. class: Breitbach (T) decided McConnell.

136 lb. class: Kirstein (T) decided Cocker.

145 lb. class: Isaacson (T) decided Coppel.

155 lb. class: Hassman (T) threw Clare in 2 min. 4 sec., with double arm lock.

165 lb. class: Thomas (N) threw Creel in 8 1/2 min. with spread eagle and arm lock.

175 lb. class: Roberts (T) decided Milliken.

Heavyweight: Bolinski (T) decided Kahler.

Referee: John Keillogg.

Tight Kansas State defense gives Cornhuskers second conference beating, 32-25

Kansas State put up a tight defense Friday night, and Jack Gardner's improved Wildcat team sent Nebraska home from Manhattan with a 32-25 licking. The Staters led 18-13 at the half.

The Huskers, playing without Don Fitz, left behind with a knee injury, made their poorest offensive showing of the year against the Wildcats, who held their half-time margin until the end.

K-State showed a tight defense and a fine floor game to combat the Huskers' height, and moved out of the cellar in beating Nebraska. It was the first win as against two losses in Big Six play for the Wildcats, while it was the Huskers second loss against one win, and left the two teams tied for fourth and fifth place in the conference standings above the last-place Iowa State team. Iowa State plays K-State Monday night, and Nebraska travels to Kansas Tuesday night.

Kansas State forward Horacek led the Wildcats with four fielders, and tall Al Randall got three buckets and two free throws for the Huskers, who used ten men against nine for the Wildcats. Mel Seelye, stellar K-State guard, caged seven points for the Wildcats, while Harry Pitcaithley and Sid Held got six apiece for Nebraska.

Box score:

Tarkio wallops B's, 67-22

George Lewis scores 26 points as invaders lead 26-10 at half

Faced by their tricky, sharp-shooting guard, George Lewis, who hit the bucket for 26 points, the Tarkio Teachers handed Nebraska's Nubbins a 67 to 22 shellacking, Saturday night.

The Husker seconds held the lead but once, and that on a basket scored by Bob Garey in the first four minutes of the game. From then on the Missourians took complete possession of the contest.

With ten minutes gone and the score standing 11 to 2, Tarkio, Coach "Chili" Armstrong rushed Hay, Livingston, King, Goetze and Vacant, all Nebraska varsity seconds, to stem the tide. This combination seemed no better, for Lewis and company were hotter than seven shades of Hades.

Seconds hold lead.

Coach Newt Kyle sent in his shock troops to give his regulars a rest from making so many baskets, but the seconds upped the count to 26-10 at halftime.

Armstrong left in the varsity seconds at the beginning of the second half, but Tarkio began dunking so many baskets, it seemed as if the first period were only a practice session.

The Lewis brothers, George and Hubert, were all over the floor, and the befuddled Nebraskans could find no sort of defense to stop them. With ten minutes left in the fray, Tarkio had boosted the score to 40-11 in their favor.

Head Coach Fry, Stan Williamson quit at K-Sate

M. F. "Mike" Ahern, director of Kansas State athletics, announced Saturday that both Head Football Coach Wes Fry and Line Coach Stan Williamson had submitted their resignations.

The resignations were handed in two days ago, according to Ahern, but were not revealed in the hope that difficulties between the two coaches could be ironed out.

Floyd Ebaugh, former NU center, stars as member of Wingfoot basketball team

Floyd Ebaugh, 6 foot, 6 inch cage star who played three years of fine basketball for the Huskers at center, and who was graduated two years ago this spring, is still making good as a cage star—now as a member of the Akron Wingfoot team.

Ebaugh is employed by the Goodyear company there, and plays with its Wingfoot team, a member of the National Basketball league. The big game of the season is with their intra-city rivals, the Akron Firestone squad, for the industrial championship of the city.

Second year.

The tall Superior player is in his second year for the Wingfoots, and his coach, Ray Detrick, says Ebaugh is the key man of the team.

With one-third of the season gone, the Wingfoots were atop the standings of the eastern division of their league. Included in the eastern division along with the Firestones and Wingfoots, are teams from Detroit and Indianapolis. In the western division, whose teams meet all the eastern teams in league play, are Oshkosh, Sheboygan, Chicago and Hammond.

The only center in the first nine games who was able to outscore Ebaugh by a decided margin when they met on the basketball floor was Mike Novak, 6 foot 9 inch player from DePaul.

Averages suffer.

LeRoy Edwards, Oshkosh; Homer Thompson, Indianapolis; Urgel Wintermute, Detroit, and a member of last year's national collegiate champions, Oregon; and "Rube" Lautenschlager, Sheboygan, all saw their scoring averages suffer when they went up against Ebaugh. None of them got more than six points against him.

Other men on the Goodyear team are Ben Stephens, high scoring forward from Iowa U.; Bill Lloyd and Howard Vocke from St. John's of Brooklyn; Jake Nagode, Northwestern; Jim Montgomery, Villanova, Gene Anderson, Purdue; and Ray Morstadt and Wilbur Fox.

Stresses speed

Detrick, who coached at Mount Union college and Ohio Wesleyan before taking over the Wingfoots, stresses speed and conditioning, along with accurate foul shooting, instead of setting up blocks or "pickoffs" as do other teams in the league, and thus far Ebaugh and his mates have found Detrick's style of play to their liking.

Gregory publishes paper

"Ideology and Affect Regarding Law and Their Relation to Law Abidingness" is the title of an article by Dr. Wilbur S. Gregory, freshman adviser for the college of arts and sciences, which is published in one of the issues of Character and Personality.

by June Bierbower.

Art Adams, very promising light heavyweight wrestling candidate, has decided to forego wrestling this year. Adams, an honor student and an English major, will take a job in the English department as a reader which he hopes will put him in line for something better later. In order to devote enough time to the job to do it justice he'd have to quit wrestling. . . . and that he did altho it was a hard decision for him to make, because of his interest and ability in the mat game. . . . Dick Stastny, all-university wrestling champ, and a fine heavyweight wrestling prospect, has his scholastic side, too. . . . Stastny is carrying a heavy schedule. . . . and in addition he's registered for the CAA flying course. . . . all of which doesn't leave much time for wrestling.

Seven teams were bidding for the open date left on Virginia's schedule when Chicago quit playing football. . . . George Washington, Tennessee, Detroit, Miami and West Virginia were among them. . . . the decision was left to the football team. . . . said team voted for Tennessee. . . . Roy Petsch, Husker quarterback, is following the example set by two former Husker gridgers in entering this year's Golden Gloves meet. . . . He'll box in the Fremont eliminations, and altho he scales about 190, will try to make the light heavyweight division. . . . Both Les McDonald and Bill Callihan won outstate elimination tournaments, and boxed at the Omaha meets. . . . Mac lost to Carl Vinciguerra three years ago, then took a very short and not too successful sojourn in the pro ranks. . . . Callihan lost to Frankie Jelecki in last year's Omaha finals. . . . Petsch is no slouch with the gloves, having won several meets in western Nebraska.
