

Educators attend summer session teaching clinics

A series of seven administrative and teaching clinics, climaxed by a two week WPA education training conference, was conducted this summer for midwestern teachers and educators attending the university summer session.

Educators representing schools in Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri and Colorado attended weekly clinics on subjects ranging from safety education to standardization of requirements for teachers' certificates.

Rosenlof speaks.

Dr. George W. Rosenlof, university registrar, spoke at the first clinic session on the work and aims of the Progressive Education Association. Following the opening session, the educators met for a conference on certification and standardization. Purpose of the conference was to standardize and simplify the requirements for teachers' certificates and to develop better relationships between the states in regard to certification.

Other speakers in the conference series were Herman F. Weigel, NYA state employment director, who spoke on the need for education in government; Dr. Ray J. Bryan, Kansas Wesleyan, who spoke on the public relations activities of small schools; Philip H. Mitchell, superintendent of schools at Arapahoe, who spoke on vocational training in high schools; and Miss Louise Cottrell, consultant in safety education for the schools of East Orange, New Jersey, who spoke on safety training in the elementary school.

Summer students get 288 degrees; pass former records

Largest number of degrees and certificates in the history of the summer term were granted by the University of Nebraska at the close of the 1940 session. The 288 degrees presented brings the number granted during the last school year to 1,383, also a record surpassing 1939's high mark of 1,324. Fifteen certificates were presented.

All colleges except dentistry and engineering showed increases in number of degrees awarded. Total summer session enrollment reached 2,238, six more than last year.

Every state and 47 foreign countries are represented in the Harvard University student body.

Author Thomas Mann has been named honorary rector of the University of Dubuque.

Screen Vogue Millinery

Inspired by The Paramount Picture "I WANT A DIVORCE" starring JOAN BLONDELL

Hollywood inspired, excitingly feminine hat fashions to give your costume an audaciously different Fall viewpoint!

$2.95 and $3.50

VERA'S HAT SHOP

116 No. 13th

Alumni will grant four club charters

Four new alumni clubs in principal U. S. cities which have sent petitions to the alumni association will soon be granted charters. The new clubs are located in Kansas City, Washington, D. C., Houston, and Los Angeles. Dallas, Texas, alumni may organize a fifth new club.

Nine clubs have been granted charters since the organization of the association. Cities having chartered clubs are, in order of their formation, New York City, Chicago, Milwaukee, Council Bluffs, San Francisco, Indianapolis, Lexington, Ky., York, Neb., and Denver.

Lawrence Ely All-American center from Nebraska was instrumental in the formation of the new club in Kansas City.

To receive a petition a new club must have a minimum of ten members and show a willingness to follow a national rules set by the Association. The national board, meeting in Lincoln, has divided the country into eleven zones. Each zone with the exception of the Nebraskan zone elects two members to serve on the national board. The Nebraskan zone has a total of ten members making in all a board of 32 members.

Norwich university was the first military-collegiate institution in the United States.

Omicron NU tops second semester scholarship rating

Top scholastic honors for the second semester of last year went to three professional sororities, according to a report released by the office of the dean of student affairs.

Omicron Nu, a home economics sorority ranked first with a rating of 3.291. Mu Phi Epsilon, a music group, was in the number two spot. Another home economics sorority, Phi Upsilon Omicron, placed third. The same relative positions were held by these groups the previous semester.

With a ranking of 3.043, Wilson Hall, women's cooperative house, rated at the top of the women's halls and fourth in the entire group.

Mining group first fraternity.

Heading professional fraternities is Sigma Gamma Epsilon, a mining and geology organization. In the second position is the men's journalism group, Sigma Delta Chi.

Gamma Phi Beta led the social sororities and Beta Sigma Psi the social fraternities. The latter's ranking jumped from twelfth place during the first semester of last year.

Coeds showed scholastic superiority over men students, the all women average being 2.516 while the all men average was 2.273. Sorority and fraternity averages dropped slightly below their records of the previous semester.

Morse speaks before Louisville Lions club

Prof. C. K. Morse, assistant director of the university extension division, addressed ladies night at the Louisville, Neb., Lions club Friday evening, Sept. 6, on "Balancing Your Accounts."

Werkmeister reviews book for July Ethics

A review of Joseph Maier's book, "On Hegel's Critique of Kant," has been written by Dr. W. H. Werkmeister of the philosophy department and appears in the July quarterly issue of Ethics, international journal of social, political, and legal philosophy published by the University of Chicago.

Split Pompadours Are News!

Our experienced stylists have made a study of the pompadour in all its numerous guises and are now ready with the New Split Pompadour to enhance your face and personality.

A Fashion-Right Shampoo and Fingerwave

Are Surprisingly Just 75c, 50c, 35c

Nebraska Beaute Salon

219 No. 12th St.

Open Evenings By Appointment.

2-2796

SHE'S a Nebraska Girl

SHE'S young, full of ambitions, fun to be with . . . we cheer her, because we believe in her, just as we cheer and believe in her football hero when we file into the Nebraska stadium this fall. We like to serve YOUTH.

SHE'S a wise miss. She wants her hair to shine like gold, to look natural but never stringy, so she starts out right with a new PERMANENT WAVE at Miller's Beauty Salon. Right now she can get a machineless one for $4, which, of course, includes her shampoo and hair dress.

SHE wants her clothes to look as if she dressed without an effort, to be casual, without being sloppy. So she chooses sport togs with flawless tailoring . . . at MILLER'S she invests in a host of sweaters; she's brave about color. Slipons are only 2.29 and matching cardigans that keep their shape, at 3.29, second floor.

SHE'S careful of the money that comes from home, and she's happy about the shoes she finds in Miller's new shoe shop on third floor. Here are young shoes, shoes with snubby toes for walking places, pumps to wear dancing, the pair only 3.95.

WHEN in doubt, she asks for MILLER'S CLOTHES CONSULTANTS, second floor—two girls who understand college girls' needs and have all the answers!

SHE matches her socks to her sweaters, and buys them at MILLER'S where she can find that color she wants. The pair—29c and 50c, on street floor.

MILLER & PAINE