What with a lot of people we know not back and slews of people we don't know arriving there are a couple of things possible to say—anyway, welcome, and did you know that there are some three Mortar Boards who are supposedly directing their activities in foreign channels...

Amid the marriages a few pins changed hands, too...like Gene Studt who unspinned a Kappa key from Al Adamson's Sig Nu star, while brother John Ainley's pin was accepted by Ann Beard, KAT...

And the latest bulletin on Bob Burress placing his SAE pin on a Chicago fan dancer is that she also took that off.

Just 50 percent of a lot of mutual attractions back...one prime example is that of the brothers Nelson of the DU domicile, for Bob isn't and his Tri love Olive Spieth is, while Jack is and Pi Phi Agnes Wanek isn't, and query: Does Agnes have a DU pin or doesn't Agnes have a DU pin? Confusing, isn't it.

Oh yes, and from the Alpha Phi house comes the news that Johnny Adkins' DU pin is in the house on Margaret Randall...One steady deal that burned out during the warm weather is that of John Mason, ATO, and Pi Phi Virginia Clemans if seeing Johnny around with Max Fuller also of the Pi Phi house is indicative...

One blind date that opened Bob Livingood's eyes was with Evelyn Clapp, Kappa pledge...the same Evelyn Clapp who caused Stan Truelsen to spill Theta tea all over the place when he saw her rush week.

Temporarily absent the fore part of this week were a number of NU girls, all with destination Omaha, Ak countesses were entertained at the Omaha Blackstone the same day.

Helen Severa, AXID of Nebraska and Northwestern who was college editor for Harpers College Bazaar and one of the five winners in the Mademoiselle contest, is back this year for more Nebraska education.

Brandy Backlund and Emily Hess of the Phi Deltas and Thetas are going across the river and will go to school at Iowa...and we'll end on a matrimonial note for two marriages which are slated for real soon are those of Mary Anna Cockle, Tri Delt ex-editor of the Rag's society, to Dick Woodward and B. J. Ferguson, Chi Omega, to Tommy Schummacher of Randolph Field.

Miss Laura Ann Fellman, infant daughter of Dr. David Fellman, political science professor, is reported to be "very new, very small, and very beautiful" by her father. She was born Sept. 6.

Climax of all sorority rushing is preference night when all the Greek girls stand in front of their respective houses to await their new pledges. The night is quite an event and several thousands come to see and hear the girls scream as the pledges come to the houses.

Fifteen university sororities pledge 230 coeds as rush week ends

Fifteen University of Nebraska sororities pinned their ribbons on 230 coeds in a four-day rush week concluding with "preference night" Tuesday.

Shumate works for Legislative Council

Dr. Roger V. Shumate of the political science department has been occupied full-time again this summer with research work for the Nebraska legislative council. He will return to the campus Monday to resume part-time teaching at the university, continuing in part-time work for the legislative council through the year.

South American students wonder 'Do we ever study?'

"Do American students ever find time to study?" students in Buenos Aires asked Miss Helen Hosp, university dean of women, during her summer sojourn in South America. "Their negative impression of the U. S. study situation is doubtless formed," she says, "by the movies of collegiate life made here which almost never show a student studying, but rather stress campus social life." No social life on SA campuses. Miss Hosp reported that there is no social life on the campuses there, only such forms of recreation as ping pong and tea parties on special occasions. Neither are athletics, dramatics, nor music included in the college curriculum. Throughout her trip, however, she noted that a majority of the students are studying and speaking English, and that South American coeds dress very similarly to girls on the Nebraska campus. She was also very impressed with the courtesy shown her by the students, and in return for the kindness shown her, sent the students of La Plata college a subscription to the Readers Digest in Spanish for their social room.

Miss Hosp spent much of her summer vacation in the countries of our Latin neighbors, visiting such picturesque and historical places as Rio de Janeiro, Lima, Buenos Aires, and Guaruja Islands, and Guayquor, the home of the tagua tree. Apparently there is a friendly feeling for the United States on the South American continent. "The people seemed very cordial, warm hearted, and intensely interested in their neighbors to the north," said Miss Hosp. "They are very good neighbors not only in a business way, but because they have much culture and background to offer us. This inter-feeling should be cultivated and encouraged in every way possible."

Library buys books on foreign situation

The library has purchased a number of new books designed to help the students understand the foreign situation. Books by William Allen White, Upton B. Sinclair, and others are available in the library.

- "Defense for America," by various authors, edited by William Allen White.
"Greek Memories," by Compton Mackenzie.
"French Political Scene," by D. M. Pickles.
"Autumn Journal, a Poem," by Louis Macneil.
"Why Europe Fights," by Walter Mills.
"Confessions of an Individualist," by William Henry Chamberlin.
"Radio Directing," by Earle McGill.
"The Twenty Years' Crisis, 1919-1939," by Edward Hallett Carr.
"Five Centuries of Ballet Design," by Cyril W. Beaumont.
"Mexican Foliar Arts," by Frances Toor.
"Isolated America," by Raymond L. Buell.
"We Who Built America," by Carl F. Wittke.
"Margaret Fuller, Whetstone of Genius," by Mason Wade.
"World's End," by Upton B. Sinclair.
"Mariners," by Sally Salmison.
"The Path I Trod," autography by T. V. Powderly.

English instructor named in book on business letters

Miss Mamie Meredith, instructor in business English, is named by Prof. William H. Butterfield in his recently issued book, "Good Will Letters That Build Business," among those to whom he is especially indebted for assistance. Professor Butterfield studied business English at the University of Nebraska where he received his B. A. degree in the subject. An earlier book by him, "The Business Letter in Modern Form," was published in 1939.
