Phi Delta Theta, fraternity intramural champion, placed three men on the all I-M team to beat out Farm House who landed two. Sigma Phi Epsilon, runnerup to the Phi Delts placed one along with one for Beta Theta Pi. Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Delta Upsilon.

There are nine positions including two ends, one tackle, two guards, center, quarterback, fullback and halfback.

Ends were Stan Huffman, Beta, and Bob Gillespie, Phi Delt, both of whom were chosen because of pass catching ability and offensive and defensive blocking. Howard Zorn of Farm House was a big reason for the Farm House victories this fall due to his head-up playing, thus gaining a place on the all star team.

Bob Poe, Phi Delt, and Jack McPhail, Delta Upsilon, demonstrated power to get through and nail opponent backs and so gained their places. Clark O'Hanlon, Sigma Alpha Epsilon was a stand-out on pass defense and was particularly able in getting the ball to its destination.

Backs stand out

The backfield was a problem because there were many outstanding players but the final selections came after due consideration of all candidates for the honors. At quarterback Don Fitz was given the nod after he had shown that he could not only call good plays but that he could also carry his plays into operation with deadly blocking and fine pass catching.

Joe Ryan, Phi Delt, was an outstanding passer and also his educated toe spelt the margin of victory for the Phi Delts over the Sig Eps in the championship game. He drop kicked the extra point that made it 13-12 for his team in addition to throwing both touchdown passes.

Bob Searle, Sig Ep, was the player that was continually running back punts for touchdowns and playing good defensive ball at all times so he got picked at the fullback spot.

The selections were a composite of fraternity pickings and personal opinions developed after watching games during the complete intramural season. The second team and also honorable mention players were constantly pushing the first team candidates and in many cases the selection of a position was very hard.
