Sigma Delta Chi prexy new Flash business head

Ed Wittenberg, arts and science senior and president of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity, was appointed business manager of the Awgwan Flash, campus pictorial magazine, for the remainder of the semester at yesterday's publication board meeting.

Third edition of the Awgwan Flash will be on the stands Wednesday, and according to George Frischer, editor, it will revolutionize the reputation of the new pictorial magazine with the exclusion of "smooching" camera shots.

Air force cadet board due here

Examiners to see all applicants Dec. 16

A special flying cadet examining board will visit the university on Dec. 16 to conduct physical examinations of senior students who are interested in becoming army flying cadets, according to Col. C. A. Thuis, commandant of cadets.

Although the board is primarily interested in students who will graduate either in January or June of 1941, it will examine sophomore and junior men who at the end of the present semester will have earned one-half of the necessary credits toward graduation and who plan to terminate enrollment in the university at the end of the present semester for any cause such as entrance into selective military service.

"It is not desirable, however, to have students leave school expressly for the purpose of becoming army fliers," stated Colonel Thuis.

Students applying need not be in the ROTC, and applications will be considered of graduates and former students who have left school with a minimum of two years college work. Applicants who wish to receive the university's recommendation for service should stand generally above the average in their respective colleges, Colonel Thuis stated.

Men interested are advised to leave their names with the military departments in Nebraska hall before noon, Dec. 12.

Private investment future popular with 300 economists

"The future of private investment" was rated as one of the most popular subjects of 300 economists throughout ten midwestern states in a questionnaire sent out by Prof. J. B. Kirshman, chairman of the economics department.

Effect of the defense program on business, federal debt and its effect on banks, war and social gains of labor were among other subjects which held the greatest interest for economists of today.

Professor Kirshman is using the results of the questionnaire to plan a program for the convention of the Midwest Economics Association of which he is president. The convention will be held in Des Moines in April.

'Bobby' Owens

Pioneer engineering prof dies; organizer of EE department

Dr. Robert Bowie Owens, an early member of the university faculty, died Nov. 1, following an illness of several years.

Dr. Owens organized the present department of electrical engineering and established the work in electrical and steam engineering during the nineties. During his years at Nebraska, Dr. Owens' energy and enthusiasm led to the building of an electrical engineering laboratory and collection of about $40,000 worth of equipment—the latter without cost to the university. Familiarly known as "Bobby" Owens, he was a pioneer in the field of electrical engineering education and gained widespread recognition in the field.

Dr. Owens served overseas as a major in the signal corps during the first World war. He was secretary of the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia from 1910 to 1924 with the exception of war years. Later he served as director of the Bartol Research Foundation, Philadelphia, and director of the Maryland Academy of Sciences.

Law society gives smoker

Group hears Peterson at first affair of year

First Law association smoker of the year will be held tonight as a Thanksgiving celebration on the traditional Thanksgiving date, Bob Simmons, association president, announced. Main address of the evening will be given by C. Petrus Peterson, Lincoln attorney recently elected to the state legislature.

The entire program other than the address will be furnished by the association, including a skit which will be presented by the five law college girls. Refreshments will be served. The smoker will be held in law building 101 at 7:30 p. m.

Traps forestall mouse blitzkrieg on library books

A new library building will soon be built, but the librarians aren't taking any chances of unforeseen circumstances—or animals—causing trouble.

Baited mouse traps greet the few students prying in the dark corners looking for seldom used books. In the reference room alone 2 mouse traps are set to insure that nothing happens to the books before construction of the new building is completed.

The only thing that has librarians worried is the fear that a few hungry students might try to beat the mice to the cheese. So far neither have tried anything.

Barbs to give autographed ball at hour dance

As a special feature of the hour dance to be held following the Kansas State-Nebraska game Saturday, a football autographed by the entire Nebraska team will be presented as a door prize.

The football will be given away at 5:30 p. m., while the dance will begin at 5. Holder of a lucky ticket given at the door will receive the football.

The dance, sponsored by the Barb council, is open to all university students.
