with Gene Bradley

'Theta Lips'

were not only "smiling" Saturday morning at 5 a. m.; they were also singing, cheering and blowing bugles. No, they were not living over the Rose Bowl rallies or rehearsing for next year's Minnesota game. Rather, they—the pledges of a year ago—were holding their own private party. After singing to the sisters, who were in retirement, they migrated in an all-girl serenade from house to house. Under the leadership of Hap McIntosh, they cheered nearly every fraternity on the campus with song. And the climax: a bugle solo by Lou Reed. The strains of this solo echoed back and forth between the houses, like a shout in Mamouth Cave, until every cat in the block was howling.

Four fine formals

highlighted the weekend. Friday: the Kappa Sigs and Chi Omegas. Saturday: the Phi Psis and ATO's. The entertaining orchestras were, respectively, Henry Mattison, Johnny Cox, Johnnie Cox again, and Nat Towle. The ATO party was distinguished by identical corsages, falling balloons, and dancing ATO's.

Blind dates . . .

were chaperoned Friday night by Beta pledges Harold Salisbury and Joe Sonniland. Through trial and error, they are working out a system. Men, for complete details on this touchy subject, refer to their forthcoming book, entitled: "The Care and Handling of Blind Dates."

True, Kappa Ann Craft does wear the Phi Delt pin of a fellow at Annapolis. However, in spite of this, every evening she accepts a ring from a Council Bluffs man. An engagement ring? No. Telephone.

Saturday night, the Kappa Sigs staged a Founders' Day banquet. The master of ceremonies was Emmitt Gillespie.

Campus headlines:

Gillespie of finance office wows crowd at Kappa Sig formal by hilarious singing and playing on drums. Alpha Phi Marion Bremers plans quick trip to KU. Ice follies in Omaha attract Husker crowd. Nebraska youths frustrated in attempt to line up dates with Sonia Henie. Interfraternity Ball and Theta Formal planned for next two succeeding weekends.

Funeral rites for Lt. Mackay to be Monday

Lieut. Lewis Edward Mackay, Nebraska's first student to be killed in line of duty in the present emergency, will have full military honors accorded at his burial here Monday afternoon.

Major Offley is in charge of the arrangements and Lieutenant Keenan is escorting the body to Lincoln, arriving at 11:30 Sunday night. Rifles fire salute.

Mortar Board-

The presidents of the women's activity groups will meet with the Mortar Boards at 5 p. m. in Ellen Smith Monday to discuss the problem of raising funds for this cause. Any group which has not been contacted should call some member of Mortar Board if they wish to help.

The dormitory, which is being built with money left by the late Don Love of Lincoln, has been planned especially for the home economics students and to be managed in a manner similar to co-operative houses. Money was allotted only for construction. The furnishing and decorating must be financed in some other way.

Planned in units of a living room, bedroom and kitchenette, each group of four women will share a kitchenette and take care of the upkeep of their particular unit. Such an arrangement will make it possible for these students to live in the dorm with the maximum expenses for room and board of $15 per month. If it is necessary to borrow money to decorate and furnish the dorm, the expenses will run higher for students living there.

Fodor-

(Continued from Page 1.) graduate of Nebraska and Associated Press foreign correspondent, "All the newsmen in Europe are excited about Fodor. He knows his material and rates tops on the foreign staff of the Chicago Daily News which maintains one of the best independent foreign services in the nation."

At 4 p. m. a panel discussion dealing with "The Spread of the Revolution to the United States," will be held in parlor XYZ of the Union. In addition to Fodor, the panel will be made up of Bob Aden, Mary McLaughlin, Curren Shield, Olson and Ordal and a few other students.

Barb mid-winter formal features Calame's band

Approximately 250 couples danced to the music of Bob Calame and his orchestra in the Union ballroom last night at the annual barb winter formal. Calame, a former arranger for Lawrence Welk, played "One O'clock Polka" for the barbs for the first time in public. The song was written by Calame, Welk, and John Hefti.

Before the dance, a large number of the barbs attended a dinner in the Union. Helen Elizabeth Claybaugh, barb council president, acted as toastmistress of the banquet, and Blaine Sloan, president of the barb union, introduced other prominent barbs to the diners.

Although the senator has introduced only one bill, he is active as a member of the agriculture, government and labor committees.
