

Feber wins Barrowman scholarship

University committee on scholarships Saturday announced the winners of four 1941 awards. The George Barrowman scholarship, created by Dr. George Barrowman of Chicago, and awarded to a worthy student in either chemistry or geology, amounting to $60, was awarded to Roy Chester Feber, junior engineer.

The Jefferson H. Broady $60 prize, established by Dr. and Mrs. John D. Clark, was won by Baird E. Emmons, arts and sciences senior.

Charles D. Lantz, freshman engineer, was awarded the Walter J. Nickel freshman prize, given each spring to the freshman man or woman who has overcome the greatest difficulties in completing his or her freshman year.

The fourth award announced is the Edward Lang True Memorial scholarship of $60, won by Harold Emil Dreyer, Norfolk business administration junior.

Schmidt conducts music exams in Omaha schools

Prof. Herbert Schmidt of the school of music faculty spent Friday afternoon, May 23, in Omaha conducting piano examinations for all Omaha high school students who are studying piano for applied music credit. Brownell Hall students were among those included in the examining.

friends and relatives, will have their last opportunity to meet Chancellor Boucher and other faculty heads before graduation.

Forming the receiving line will be Ellsworth DuTeau, director of alumni activities, Chancellor and Mrs. Boucher, and all of the members of the board of regents who are in town at the time. Also attending will be the deans of all colleges and divisions, while retiring members of Innocents and Mortar Board societies will act as ushers.

Henry Mattieson and his orchestra will provide the music for the dance, at which each senior and his or her friend will be guests of the Alumni association, which is sponsoring both the reception and dance.

laws degree from Harvard in 1915, was admitted to the New York bar in the same year, and is now president of Eastman Kodak company. Serving in France in the first World war, he received the distinguished service cross.

John Chatfield Page, commissioner of the Bureau of Reclamation in western states, will be conferred with the degree of doctor of engineering. After receiving his Bachelor of Science degree in civil engineering, he studied at Cornell and then entered the government reclamation service in 1909. President Roosevelt appointed him Commissioner of the Federal Bureau of Reclamation in January of 1937.

Prof. Arthur Sperry Pease, graduate professor at Duke university in Durham, North Carolina, will receive the degree of doctor of laws. Pease received his bachelors and masters degrees at Nebraska, then received his PhD at Harvard.

A member of Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Xi, the British Society of Experimental Biology, his name has been starred in American Men of Science. In 1929 he was a visiting professor at Kelo university in Tokyo, and in 1930 he went to Duke.

Inventor from class of '97.

Doctor of engineering, the fifth honorary degree, will be conferred upon Karl Chandler Randall, '97, electrical engineer of Westinghouse Electric company. Randall became an instructor in engineering at UN upon taking his bachelor's degree. In 1899 he went to Westinghouse, where he specialized in transformer engineering until 1911 when he became head of the switchboard.

An inventor, designer, and executive, Mr. Randall holds several patents, including the one under which he developed the present company form of oil-immersed, self-cooled transformer tank construction.

To Mark Morton of Chicago, the only living son of J. Sterling Morton, founder of Arbor Day and one-time Secretary of Agriculture, will be granted the degree of doctor of agriculture.

Morton, who, with his brothers, gave Arbor Lodge, the Morton family estate at Nebraska City, to the state in 1923 has set up a Morton fellowship, at present held by a university history student, James Olson, one of the DAILY'S news commentators, and last year placed on deposit with the university the complete correspondence of his father, saved and collected from his youth and through his years as a member of Grover Cleveland's cabinet.

An eye on Girls Sports

By Susan Shaw.

Tri Delts Jean Hazen and Olive Sorenson conquered Jerry Grinspan and Sarah Miller, S. D. T.'s in the final game of the ping pong tourney by the margins of 21-13 and 21-11.

Badminton results have been slow due to two defaults. Mary Bird and Marcy Bauer, Alpha Phi, turned in a 35-20 victory over Frances Bayzann and Frances Dietze, Independents.

While students relax over a coke, instructors Tolman and Thompson find their spare time taken up with their special rendition of the "Skaters Waltz."

With finals starting Tuesday, my column writing days are over. Many thanks are due to Ruth Mathews and Janet Hemphill for their help with this column. That's all for now but I hope I'll be back with "Girls' Sports" next year.
