

Summer all-state . . . Musicians end instructive session . . . at university

ALTHOUGH it may not have a lake in the pine woods or any rocky streams splashing through the mountains, the University of Nebraska's all-state high school music course is bringing more than 70 students all of the fun and sound musical training of a summer music camp in the Berkshires.

Proud parents will gather with the general public at the Student Union Wednesday evening to hear the young musicians combined in a final concert featuring band, chorus, and orchestra. When the last chord has faded away, the group will scatter once more to some 56 Nebraska towns as well as Colorado and Kansas communities. But they will take home with them memories of three weeks of intensive musical growth and pleasant times.

Each student takes part in two large organizations—band, orchestra, chorus, or vocal ensembles. In addition the schedule includes two private lessons per week, classes in theory and appreciation, student concerts, recitals, and recordings. And then just to keep busy from 6:30 a. m. to 9:30 p. m. the high school youngsters take out time for practice to swim, play tennis, engage in softball games, and ping pong. Picnics and informal house dances also are popular.

Dr. Arthur E. Westbrook, director of the University School of Fine Arts, conducts the chorus, while Ward Moore leads the band, and Emanuel Wishnow directs the orchestra. Miss Marion Wolfe is in charge of small string groups, and Glen Ewing of Stanton conducts small wood-wind ensemble groups. David Foltz of Mt Carroll, Ill., is choral director and assistant to Dr. Westbrook.

The private teaching staff includes Ernest Harrison, Miss Marguerite Klinker, Herbert Schmidt, Myron Roberts, Hermann Decker, Miss Alma Wagner, Miss Marjorie Shanafelt, Mr. Wishnow, Miss Wolfe, Mr. Westbrook, Mr. Moore, and Mr. Ewing. Miss Constance Cruickshank of Alliance is chaperone for girls living at the Pi Beta Phi sorority house, while Mr. Foltz is in charge of the boys dormitory. They are assisted respectively by Miss Carolyn Kennedy of Nehawka and Alfred Blinde of Imperi.

Two guest conductors have appeared on the course. Arthur Harrell, supervisor of music at Kearney and president of the Nebraska State Music Educators association, was on the campus for three days to work with the orchestra and band. R. Cedric Anderson, supervisor of instrumental music in North Platte schools, is appearing with the band June 27 to 30.
