

Engineering college adds four defense courses to curriculum

With the addition of four new courses authorized by the United States office of education, the current engineering science and management defense training program of the college of engineering is now being geared to furnish trained students for technical and managerial posts in defense industries.

Courses in beginning drafting and advanced drafting will be open to any high school graduate who is 17 years old or older in the evening sessions. Another evening course in production engineering will be open only to persons who have completed two years of an engineering curriculum. Only new daytime course will be in drafting and shop practice, open to high school graduates.

The new courses will be conducted from Sept. 29 to Jan. 24, 1942, according to Prof. E. L. DeBaufre, director of the university defense program, who has complete information and application blanks for interested students.

Applicants selected Sept. 20.

Selection of applicants for the courses is set for Sept. 20, and Prof. DeBaufre urged that applications be made early since personal interviews are desired.

No jobs are guaranteed upon completion of the course, but students may obtain them individually through civil service examinations, state employment offices or by direct application to industrial firms, DeBaufre said.

Since the cost of the course is borne by the federal government, no university fees will be charged. There will be a charge for textbooks and drafting equipment.

Upon completion of the course, a certificate is granted, but university credit will not be given until students pass a special examination and pay regular university fees.

Bullock designs plan to prevent national inflation

A new wage plan designed to prevent inflation is proposed by Prof. T. T. Bullock of the college of business administration was recently revealed by Robert P. Vanderpool, the Chicago Herald Tribune financial editor.

The plan would, in effect, freeze weekly wage payments and at the same time place workers in a position to receive annual bonuses. At the end of the year all workers would share in excess profits on a proportional basis.

According to Bullock, the production costs would not be af-fectured "even if actual wage payments, including bonuses, should show a marked rise." To the extent that costs influence prices, therefore, this policy would not set in motion any rising price spiral.

As a final suggestion, Professor Bullock says that if the wage bonuses when received were re-invested in either government securities or paid out for consumption goods of which there was no shortage the wage increases would not be an inflationary factor.

CONGRATS and CONDOLENCES with the first for 275 lovely lassies who took unto themselves the respective ribbons of our thirteen sororities and the last for those befuddled boys who will swing into three days of back slapping and palm pumping come this Saturday.

And meanwhile, students, deep within the catacombs of our many halls of learning, grim professors are wiping the dust from their eyeglasses and whittling away at the red pencils for the time is drawing near when classes in readin', writin', and 'rithmetic shall move in to plague the soul and pester the mind.

But pass the prattle, pardner, and ponder this parcel of pertinent information on who's doing what mingled with communiques from the Lincoln merchant front bearing important news for YOU.

ALL GOD'S CHILLUN

got shoes but apparently Theta's Marge Christensen believes she needs a spare pair or two for we ran across her deep in contemplation, at the women's shoe counter in Simon's. She was trying to decide on one among four of the neatest shoe fashions to beckon to a foot this Fall. It's not hard to realize what a quandary she was in, for any fair lady would like to have all four of these selections:

Particularly attractive and promising plenty of hard wear were the California Moccasins—a West Coast rage embodying a new type of moccasin design complete with flag. These neat numbers come in tan, yellow, and brown and are also available with a monk strap in sherry. Price? $4.95 F. O. B. Simon's.

And another number which would whet the buying appetite of any shoe lover is the Jacqueline vogue—very nice with open and closed backs and quite toeless. In this selection you will find suede ties also in embossed calf and black with its half sister Black Bucko. The colors come in brown, blue, wine, green and black and the price tag reads $6.95.

Definitely an eye-catcher is the new toed spectator pump with high and medium heels. Attractive in a large color selection ranging from and along wine, black, blue and brown, this shoe has a lizard trim with further choices in antique tan and blue calf. See these and you will want to put away $4.95 so you can have them in your shoe closet.

And around the campus, you will have to search far and wide to find a knockabout style that can beat the new Squaws which are now being featured at Simon's. This new type of moccasin shoe features a new cross strap on the heel which is both substantiating and casual. For comfort and style, try the new Squaw now listed at only $3.95.

BETA WATCH THIS!

Beta Bob Lichty is away and now the Jim Evinger Delta Gamma Escort Service is underway with Jim at play. You'll see them together here and there in Jim's big loooong black Cadillac which the brothers of his lodge so affectionately call "The Delta Gamma Hurse."

HOTWEATHER ROMEO

Kappa Sig Bill Flory proves himself to be a man of foresight and deep perspective for his summer campaign shows the following assets: One prize Delta Gamma pledge named Carol Robinson who hails from Waterloo completely pinned and all his'n. It's one of these "I came, I saw, and I was conquered" deals.

THE HEAD AHEAD

this fall will be one sporting a hat from Gold's wide selection to be found in the women's hat department. Milady can be well ahead of the current fashion parade with any one of the many many offerings at Gold's. You'll be sure to click in classes if your on the campus ensemble is topped off by one of this season's most popular numbers, the Pigtail bonnet with a Dutch theme. Prim and plenty proper is the Pigtail bonnet with its braided pigtails finished on the end with small bows in any color to suit the taste. The Pigtail bonnet comes in all colors and best of all it can be yours for only $1.49.

Classy and cocky are the new pompadour pork-pies with their casually rolled brims. You'll find them easily at Gold's in all colors of the rainbow fashioned especially for the coed from this season's popular felt.

And might we suggest that you take a tip from Delta Gamma's new pledge, Marilyn Griffith, who looks right nice in one of Gold's velveteen beanies with feathers in front. You too can have one in your wardrobe in your own color for they come in brown, blue and red.

Other nice numbers to keep tabbed are crocheted stocking caps with braided tassels in any colors, and Etonians—snappy jockey caps in brown, navy, and black.

VERA CAMERON

Pi Phi pledge, ala Omaha, Jeanie Browne, Kappa pledge, and the hundreds of other frosh, all of whom are sporting neat timepieces from high school graduation are constant reminders of those of us who have been here for two or three years that we should start the school year out right with a new timepiece or a repair job on the old ticker. Lowell's Jewelry at 143 South 12th can take care of that matter for you.

SOUTH CAMPUS RENDEZVOUS

for cokes and tasty meals at prices designed especially for students is Buck's Coffee Shop, directly across the street south from the administration building. It's here that you can meet your friends between classes in an atmosphere that is definitely collegiate. Put Buck's on your MUST list for the remainder of the year.

BIG JIM ENGLUND,

a chap you're sure to get to know from your coke trips to the Union grill, we've thought so often typifies the atmosphere and pleasantries of the whole building. Behind his milk bar in the grill his competent service chased by that big easy going smile of his makes you feel that the Union is one place where you can settle down and feel "right to home."

Incidentally, the Union is making an "out and out" bid this year to give every student something that suits his taste, caters to his interests, and is easy on the belated purse. Special meal clubs, dances with a ten cent gate and good music, game rooms, ping pong room, good books in the Book Nook, recordings to suit your taste in the Music Room, tournaments of all kinds, and hundreds of other entertainments and services are on the docket for you and you and you to take advantage of during this coming year.

OUT IN FRONT

heading the fall fashion parade of hatwear at the Nancee Hat Shop are the neat Dutch bonnet numbers reflecting the quaintness and primness of Old Holland into our styles of the day. Watch for these hats in your classes, in the Union, and at the games for they are fast becoming campus favorites. At the Nancee, too, the new feathered off the face pompadors seemed to be especially attractive to Theta's Alice McCampbell. They come in this Fall's popular Black and are ideal for day-time for date-time.

For on the campus wear, we might suggest the casual back to school snap brims in either Kelly or Sherry or the new corduroy beanies with feathered trim in all colors at $1.00 each. Drop into Nancee's Hat Shop at 133 South 13th and solve your fall hat problem.

HUB OF ACTIVITY

on the campus this weekend will center around men's Rush Week and more directly around the Capital Hotel, official rushee headquarters it appears, for at this writing rushee reservations were well past the hundred mark. Buzzing with activity will be the Huddle with much talk and weighty decisions being made over cokes; the Coffee Shop with rushees comparing notes at breakfast; and the newly created Information Desk where bewildered rushees can have their problems ironed out by upper classmen who have been through "the Mill."

Monday evening, after buttons have been hung and congratulations passed around, the ATO's will honor their new pledges at a party in the Rockefeller and Zephyr rooms. Yes, there will be much ado about something at the Capital Hotel this weekend in an atmosphere that will be definitely collegiate.

MEN ONLY!

This sir is a message from Garcia—so to speak. Stopped into Harvey Bros. dandy store on O street—it's a good habit to get into—to look over the new fall stock. While browsing among the splendid suit patterns Manager Jack Lofink walked up with his big smile and handshake to remark, "Happy to see you back. To us that means that you were satisfied on your previous visits here. Why don't you tell the new fellows who are coming up to stop in and visit us. We don't want them to windowshop. We want them to come in where they can get the real lowdown on our new fall school stock."

And believe you me, it's a good habit to have when it's one which demands that you stop into Harvey's at least once a month and keep tab on the new styles that constantly flow into their store.

EYE-CATCHER

and a beau-catcher as well is the new POMPY hat designed on Fifth Avenue especially for the Pompy Coif now being featured at Ben Your Hairdresser, 211 So. 13th. The Pompy is the jauntiest little hat, retailing for $1.50 and more, ever popped on a head . . . but it's given to you free when you get your POMPY Vaper—Marcel Machineless Permanent, set in POMPY Coif style, all for $5.00 at Ben Your Hairdresser. For a "Head" start toward a perfect Fall with a combination that is saucy, smart, and casual, stop in today and see the POMPY twins—Hat and Coif.
