

John D. Clark becomes bizad college dean

LeRossignol retires under regents' new plan; becomes dean emeritus

John Davidson Clark, former director and vice president of the Standard Oil Co., and author of a text on the Federal Trust policy, succeeded J. E. LeRossignol as dean of the college of business administration on Sept. 1. Dean LeRossignol was one of the first to be effected by the retirement plan recently passed by the board of regents.

DR. JOHN D. CLARK
—Journal and Star

Professor Clark received his B. S. degree from this university, his LL. B. degree from Columbia university in 1907, and in 1931 he received his doctor's degree with Phi Beta Kappa honors from Johns Hopkins university. He then became professor of economics at Denver university, and in 1934 he joined the University of Nebraska faculty.

As an undergraduate, he was editor of the Daily Nebraskan and associate editor of the senior year-book. He is a member of the American Bar association, American Economic association, Phi Delta Phi, and Chi Phi fraternity.

Professor and Mrs. Clark created the Jefferson H. Broady scholarship in 1928 in honor of Mrs. Clark's father.

Dean LeRossignol, who was in the bizad college since its organization in 1919, will serve as dean emeritus and continue as a part time member of the faculty.

Bullock receives request for copy of student survey

Secretary for the Federal Trade Commission Otis B. Johnson has requested a copy of the survey on the opinions of Nebraska business men on fair trade laws recently completed by university students in economics and business law.

Prof. T. T. Bullock, under whose direction the survey was conducted, received the request. An equal division of opinion on the question was reported among business and professional men of this state.

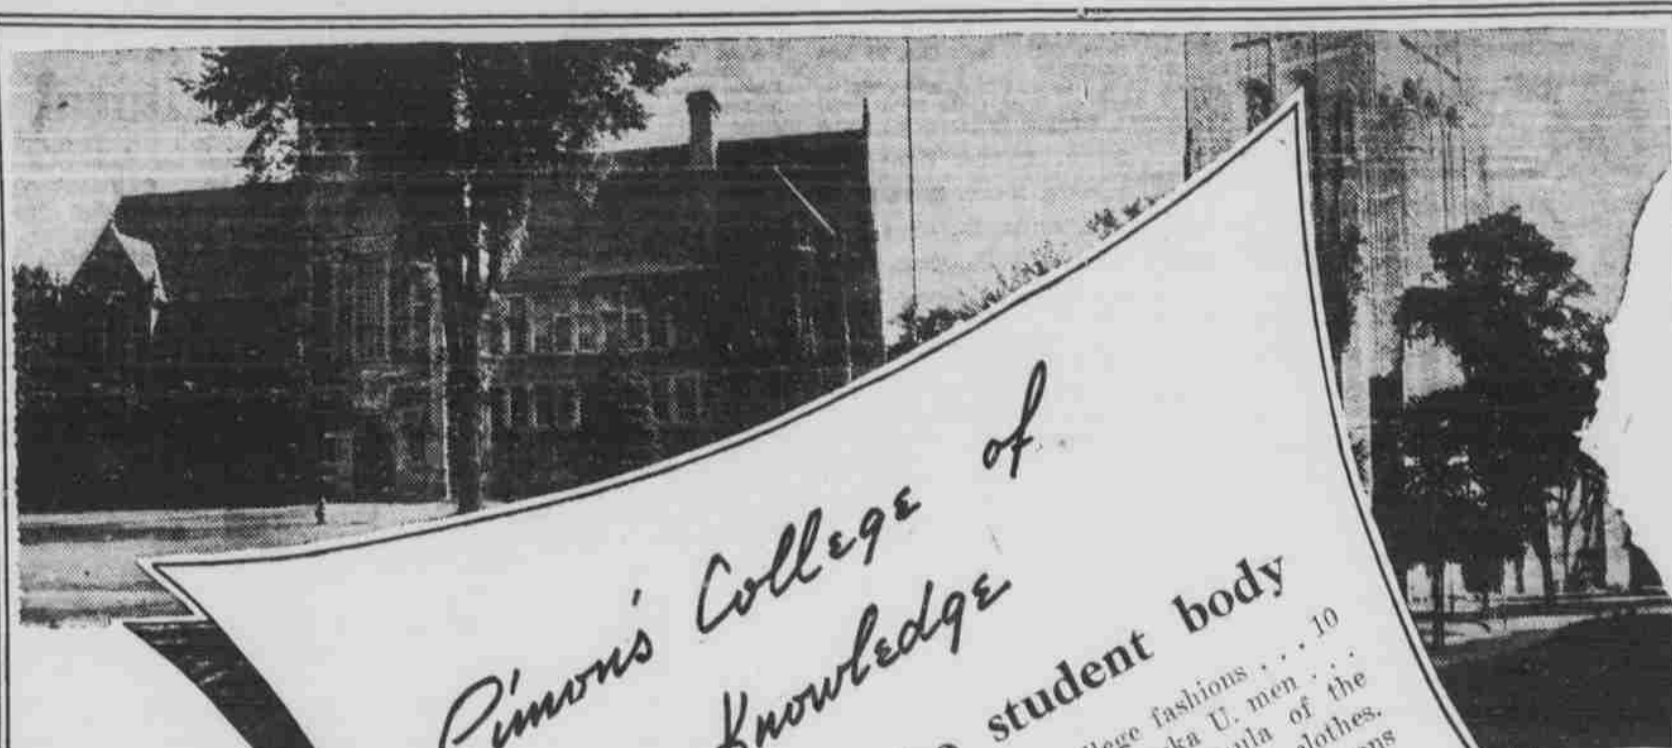

More calls from firms for graduates of the bizad college were received last month than for any previous August in the records of the college's committee on placements, Prof. Bullock reported. On the other hand, business concerns are insisting upon higher standards of qualifications among prospective employees than is usual in demands received at this time of year.

Ray Essman graduates from naval air station

Raymond Essman, of DeWitt, who attended the university from 1937 to 1940 was graduated from the United States naval air station at Pensacola, Fla., Aug. 5. Essman will serve with the patrol squadron 22 at San Diego, Calif.

Boyles--

(Continued from Page 1.)
tar Board alumnae. She served on the panhellenic advisory board in Lincoln and was an alumnae member of the student union board in 1939-40. Last year she was chairman of the regional panhellenic meeting at Boulder. She is a member of Westminster Presbyterian church in Lincoln.

Simon's College of Fashion Knowledge

covers the student body

Simon's have a faculty for college fashions . . . 10 Nebraska U. women and 10 Nebraska U. men . . . are now translating the fashion formula of the Husker campus into Simon's campus going clothes. You get what you want at Simon's because Simon's College of Fashion Knowledge knows what you want . . . see these 20 collegians round and about campus and Simon's.

20 SMART COLLEGIANS ARE AT YOUR SERVICE

As shown in vertical rows

- Row 1— Betty Cox, Don Steele, Martha Whitehead, Jack Moore.
- Row 2— Alice McCampbell, Gene Whitehead, Lois Seofield, John McCarthy.
- Row 3— Pat Knuth, Nick Douvas, Mary Bird, Betty Ann Green.
- Row 4— Betty Krause, Peggy Lemon, Alex Mills, Joe Kirschenbaum.
- Row 5— Jerry Thompson, John Mackey, Mary Jean McCarthy, Marvin Athey.

SIMON'S COLLEGE GOING TOGS

Campus Shop—Coed Shoes—Millinery . . . 4th Floor
Young World Shop . . . 3rd Floor Campus Men . . . 2nd Floor

Ben Simon & Sons