Speech Improvement Lab Headed by Laase Offers Help to Students

The Speech Improvement Laboratory at the university goes into action for its second year this semester in order to render service to all university students who desire help in speech development. Dr. Leroy T. Laase, acting chairman of the speech department, who organized the speech improvement laboratory a year ago, will serve as director of the laboratory which is located in the Temple building.

The speech laboratory was opened in order to give diagnosis and remedial help to all university students who seeked this aid. The services are also available to adults and public school children who have registered thru the extension division.

After the examination of 138 individuals last year a great variety of speech problems were encountered, ranging in difficulty from slightly unpleasant voices and indistinct speech to complicated instances of stuttering, delayed speech development, and dialectic speech.

Plan Lessons.

The re-training program involved going to the laboratory two or three times a week, re-training the speech mechanism thru the lesson plans worked out for each individual, and carrying over into life situations the new methods of speaking learned in the laboratory. Out of 138 individuals who took this course, only sixty were university students.

Co-operating with the speech department and giving valuable aid were the department of educational psychology, the department of psychology, the university health service, the university dental clinic, the state vocational education and rehabilitation department, the state child welfare bureau, and various local physicians.

Assisting Dr. Laase in the speech laboratory this year will be John Gaeth, graduate student in clinical psychology and assistant in public speaking, Mrs. Alta H. Reade, graduate assistant, and Miss Lucile Cypreansen, clinician for the extension work. In addition there will be several senior and graduate student teachers who will receive clinic training while assisting in the laboratory.

The speech laboratory will be under the auspices of the department of speech, school of fine arts, and the department of educational psychology, teachers college.

Arline Fruhauf . . . Clever New York Caricaturist Exhibits Work of Notables

. . . In Morrill Galleries

By Helen Meyers.

Clever caricatures of famous figures of stage, screen, fine arts, and American public life are now on display in Gallery B of Morrill hall. Miss Arline Fruhauf, prominent New York artist is responsible for the exhibition.

Miss Fruhauf has exhibited her work thruout the east and her caricatures of fashion designers recently appeared in Vogue magazine. Her figures are characterized by unusually human qualities with actual depiction of human strength and weakness in facial and body positions.

Most unusual part of her display being shown in Lincoln for the next two weeks is the group portrait and caricatures of the "nine old men" of the United States Supreme court. This is a view of the nine justices in identical costumes but with excellent display of individual differences in facial expression, shoulder slope, poses and shapes of hands. This exhibit is of considerable historic and political significance.

Caricatures of Paintings.

The artists presented in the collection are well-known to Lincoln gallery visitors. Paintings and oil portraits of such persons as Reginald Marsh, Peggy Bacon, Arnold Blanch, Lucille Blanch, Eugene Speicher, and Doris Lee which are included in university collections are shown in caricature by Miss Fruhauf.

Miss Fruhauf's caricatures of dancers, musicians and artists particularly well-known in this city thru recent public appearances here include Charles Weidman and Eva LaGallienne. Others shown are Stravinsky, Mischa Elman, Rachmaninoff, Walter Pach, and Harry Gottlieb.

Works from Actual Sittings.

Penetrating reviews of such famous personalities as Helen Hayes, Alexander Wolcott, Lawrence Tibbett, have been done by the artist with unusual dexterity. Her remarkable results are due mostly to the fact that she works from actual sittings rather than from photographs, as do most caricaturists. Typical color schemes and other minute details are achieved in this manner.

Miss Fruhauf received her training at the New York School of Fine and Applied Arts at the Arts Students' League, where she studied under Kenneth Hayes Miller, Broadman Robinson, and Charles Locke. Outstanding pieces of her work have been reproduced in Musical America, The New Republic, Mademoiselle, Theatre Arts Monthly, and New York papers.

She says that she can offer little advice to aspiring caricaturists because the art seems to have just naturally come to her. She confesses to having done work in production of living figures ever since she could hold a pencil and record her observations in caricatures.

Pharmacists In Demand, Says Lyman

Other States Pay High
Wages for Nebraska Men

Paralleling the general shortage of men with specialized training throughout the country, is a shortage of pharmacists in Nebraska, according to Dr. R. H. Lyman, dean of the college of pharmacy. This shortage is due in part to the defense program and also to higher educational and legal requirements than formerly required, he stated.

Nebraska in particular is suffering from the lack of pharmacists because her men are in great demand by other states, and almost invariably graduate students are placed outside Nebraska, tempted by higher salaries. A call for men has recently been telegraphed to Dr. Lyman from Texas, which he is unable to fill.

A safety conference for farmers was recently conducted at the University of Minnesota.

Regulations for Women

I. Residence Government

1. The house president and three or more additional members constitute a house committee which has jurisdiction pertaining to discipline, social regulations and scholarship of the residence. The house chaperon shall be consulted when necessary and may call a meeting of the house committee.
2. The house committee enforces AWS regulations and penalties. Repetition of an offense is reported to the AWS court by the house committee or house chaperon. Failure to answer summons to AWS court will result in double penalty.
3. Any residence may make these rules more rigid, but may not make them more lenient.

II. General Residence Rules

Dean Ferguson Attends Meeting in Washington

Dean O. J. Ferguson of the college of engineering will go to Washington, D. C., this week for a meeting of the executive committee of the Association of Land Grant Colleges and Universities Oct. 6 and 7.

While in the national capital, he will look up data on desirable national defense training courses which might be instituted here.

Hobby of John G. Tatum, French instructor at Los Angeles City college, is ceramics, the art of modeling vessels and figures in clay.

On the theory that colleges should teach students to use their hands as well as their heads, Dartmouth college has established a student workshop.

changes were made in order to clarify and unify the rules.

One of the new rulings, added in order to allow sorority pledges living in the dorm time to attend Monday night pledge meetings in their respective houses, grants permission to freshmen to be absent from the residence halls until 8:30 on Monday nights. Tuesday thru Thursday, freshmen engagements must terminate at the usual hour, 8 p. m.

A new leniency inserted in the AWS rule list allows freshmen having a weighted 80 average and no delinquencies at the end of the first semester to be granted one 10:30 night a week during the second semester, if they maintain the 80 average and acquire no delinquencies.

The revised rule on late permis-sions gives house chaperons authority to grant 1 o'clock permission on 12:30 nights for the Military ball, Mortar Board party, Junior-Senior Prom, Interfraternity ball, and two other occasions each semester.

"The aim of the rules for women is to encourage high scholarship and to give every girl an equal opportunity for recreation," says the announcement from the dean of women's office. "It is expected that every woman, being a member of AWS, share in the responsibility of maintaining these rules formulated by their representatives. It is only thru the co-operation of all individuals and organizations concerned that these aims may be attained."

The new rules go into effect Monday.
