

Danielsons Bring Square Dances to City Campus In Union Lessons Tonight

A revival of the gentle art of the square dance, popular on ag campus last year, will come this year to city campus.

As a new feature on the Union's activity program, free square dance lessons will be given by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Danielson in the Union ballroom beginning tonight. Instruction will start at 6:45 p. m. and end promptly at 8 p. m.

Six sessions will be held, one each week. To register all you must do is bring your identification card. Because of lack of room in the Union ballroom the class will be limited to 200 and registrations will not be accepted after the first two sessions.

Instructors Taught by Shaw.

The Danielsons were taught by Lloyd Shaw, the country's foremost exponent of the square dance. In his home in Colorado Springs, Colo., Mr. Shaw has organized several square dancing groups who have toured the country. His story appeared in a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post.

At each lesson a typical old fashioned orchestra will supply the music. A group of students from ag campus will demonstrate the dance technique tonight.

UN Freshmen Live Soft Life, Don't Know It

Nebraska freshmen who think they're having a hard time of it don't know how well off they are. Here are some rules freshmen at Morningside college in Sioux City must obey, and members of M club, upperclassmen's organization there handle the enforcement:

1. Freshmen must get off the sidewalks when upperclassmen walk past.
2. Freshmen must carry books and run errands for any upperclassmen who ask such services.
3. Freshman men and women are not allowed to speak to each other in the halls or on the campus.
4. Freshmen must obey the commands of all upperclassmen.
5. The Green caps must be worn at all times except at Wednesday chapel.
6. Freshmen must be ready to sing the college songs, Men of the M and Morningside, or to give any of the college yells at any and all times.
7. Freshmen must open doors for upperclassmen.
8. When addressing upperclassmen, freshmen must refer to them as "Sir" or "Miss."

'Everything Goes' At Harvest Ball This Sat. Night

Bowler hats, overalls, boots, neckerchiefs, aprons, pigtailed, corn-cob pipes, in every conceivable style, shape and color will come out of hiding from the attic on next Saturday night at the "Harvest Ball," all university party held on ag campus.

Every year the fall party features something new and novel and this year is no exception. The theme for the party is to be centered around the early frontier life...so there should be plenty of Indians, cowboys and pioneers there with the latest styles of headgear, boots, "high water" pants and hoop skirts and bustles.

Tickets are now available at the Student Union and Long's Bookstore.

Speakers at Ag Describe Conditions in Britain

By Dale Wolf.

"Calling a person a 'bomb bore' is just about the worst insult a person can receive in England today," said Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Elmhirst of Totnes, England, before nearly 500 students and faculty members Friday morning at the ag college convocation.

An inside picture on how England was holding her own by such ways as keeping the morale of the people high, by stiff rationing of practically all materials and foodstuffs was related.

As an illustration of the humor that still exists with the English populace, Mrs. Elmhirst told of a bombing that took place one night. The next morning, one shop that had been struck by a bomb had a sign displayed "Open as usual." A store next to it that was practically ruined put a sign which read, "More open than usual."

People Don't Mind Rationing.

Since 1938, the English people have been rationed, and today their ration consists partially of the following things; 25 cents worth of meat per week per person, one egg per week per person, only two slabs of butter per person per week, and a very small portion of milk. Clothes are rationed, too, and the women seldom receive more than two dresses and one coat per year. The people are all-
