

Cornhuskers Destined to Have Hard Time

In Big Six . . .

Final Rankings Are As Yet Undecided; Tigers Favored

. . . Win Top Bunting

By George Abbott.

With only three games yet to be played in the conference, the final Big Six rankings are far from definitely established, but the outcome of tomorrow's games may find five of the teams in new positions; the outcome may or may not find Missouri the title winner.

Should Kansas university's Jayhawks win over Missouri, Oklahoma would automatically move up into a first place tie with the Tigers. If, however, the Tigers take the Kansans to a cleaning, which they are more likely to do, the boys from Missouri will be undisputed champs in Big Six Land.

Always an 'if.'

If Kansas State beats the Cyclones at Ames, and the Missouri game goes as predicted, the Iowans will have a cinch cellar position, which means that the standings at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon would read: first, Missouri; second, Oklahoma; third, Nebraska; tied for fourth place, Kansas State and K U; and sixth, Iowa State.

And a week from Saturday, despite the fact that four teams will have finished their conference competition, at least two teams will see their standings changed if tomorrow's games go as predicted. Should Nebraska beat the Sooners in the Big Six finale that Saturday, the Huskers would move up to a second place with the Oklahomans. If, however, Oklahoma beats Nebraska, the Sooners would gain an undisputed second place position, while Kansas U and Kansas State would automatically move up into a three-way tie for third place with Nebraska.

Still Not Final.

Which all boils down to the fact that Big Six final rankings are far from established. Which means that this season's conference standings may see, instead of six rankings, only three.

How? Like this—

If Missouri loses to KU, if Nebraska beats Oklahoma, and Kansas State is defeated by the Cyclones, Missouri on this basis would have four wins and one loss for first place; Nebraska, Oklahoma and Kansas U would each have three wins and two losses for a three-way second place tie; Iowa State and Kansas, with one win and four losses each, would be tied in fifth place.

But we'll leave it like this—a prediction that the final standings will read:

Team	w	l
Missouri	5	0
Nebraska	3	2
Oklahoma	3	2
Kansas U.	2	3
Kansas State	2	3
Iowa State	0	5

Paul Svoboda will appoint an editor from the editors of the various high schools represented.

Conducting discussions in the Union Friday afternoon are Daily news editors Marjorie Bruning and Helen Kelly. Miss Bruning will preside over a panel discussion concerning the problems of publishing a high school paper, while Miss Kelly is directing a group discussion on writing of a society column.

Both individual and group awards will be presented tonight at a banquet in the Union ballroom. Val Peterson, secretary to Governor Griswold and editor of the Elgin, Nebraska paper will address the group. Following the banquet, students may dance in the ballroom.

Tentative tours of the campus and the state capitol have been scheduled, and representatives will end the two day activities by attending the Nebraska-Iowa football game.

Curran Lost As Iowa U Finishes-up

Hawkeyes Primed to End Season With Win; Have Chance for .500 Season

IOWA CITY, Ia., Nov. 20.—Loss of Guard Gene Curran thru an attack of boils was the main news here today as the Iowa Hawkeyes continued preparations for Saturday's joust with Nebraska.

Curran, a regular mainstay since midway in the 1940 campaign, has been Mentor Eddie Anderson's starting left guard choice in every game this fall. 205 pound Del Dickerhoof will replace Curran against the Huskers.

Green Injured.

Another injured Hawkeye was Bill Green, offensive leader who was instrumental in the scare Iowa threw into the Rose Bowl Huskers at Lincoln last year. A hip injury kept Green from scrimmage yesterday and forced him to limit activity to a brisk jog around the track. If the hard-running Green is not ready by Saturday, Bill Strauss will man the fullback position.

Defense was the keynote of Thursday's workout. A scout eleven, dubbed the "Hamburger" team, tried Nebraska plays against varsity with a minimum of success. Even Nile Kinnick, All-American halfback of 1939, had trouble penetrating the varsity pass defense.

Intercepting or knocking Kinnick's tosses down, the Hawkeye secondary performers augured trouble for Nebraska's heavers, Dale Bradley, Roy Long and Howard Debus.

Reserves Checked.

Mentor Eddie Anderson devoted considerable attention to reserve line performers. Tackles John Staak, a 225 pound sophomore, and Bob Knowlton were the center of attention, along with Guards Joe Byrd, Al Urban, and Bob Penaluna.

Other line starters will be Jim Walker and, Bob Otto, tackles; Bill Diehal, center; Ross Anderson at the other guard slot; and Bill Parker and Bill Burkett, who intercepted a pass and ran 77 yards for a touchdown against the Huskers last year, at the ends.

Al Couppee will open at quarterback; Tom Farmer and Bus

Huskers Ready To Stop Hawks

. . . At Top Strength

The Huskers are all ready. They are in top shape, the best of the season thus far, and they are aching to revenge all of the defeats that they have suffered this season.

With Allen Zikmund, Herb von Goetz and Vite Francis back in the fold, they are all set to swamp the Hawkeyes. Francis was declared eligible after passing the necessary tests and the other two have been declared fit by the team physician.

Fred Preston and Fred Meier have been named game captains for the contest and as far as they are concerned, Nebraska will come out on top.

Mertes at the halfback posts; and Green will start at fullback if his hip rounds into condition.

Sweetheart-

Other outstanding skits were those by Alpha Tau Omega, "Army Harmony or Grin an' Barrick," a take off on army life; Pi Beta's Phi's "Wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Swing;" and Kappa Kappa Gamma, given by Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Bill Marsh, union director, acted as master of ceremonies in the place of Karl Arndt, who was confined to his home because of illness.

The presentation of Nebraska Sweetheart and Prince Kosmet was broadcast over KFOR at 8:30. Johnny Cox supplied the music for many of the skits and between numbers.
