is destroyed, then until aggression is reborn, America can and probably will abandon its planned economy."

In devising its course of training, the college of business administration assumes first, that business changes will be evolutionary, and second, that private business will continue with a large field for the exercise of private management and of individual initiative.

Students will enter a business world in which, assuming that the planned economy of war has passed, business will be privately owned, decisions of the manager will be restrained and regulated but not controlled by the government, and direct price competition will be taboo, Dean Clark pointed out.

First New Change.

Most important of the changes already begun has been the increasing limitation upon price competition as the prime regulator of business activity, he explained.

In case the post-war period calls for continued concentration on national defense and a planned economy, there will be no place for the collegiate school of business, he declared. Planned economies need trained bookkeepers and stenographers, transportation supervisors and merchandisers, but the essential training of business schools is for management. In a planned economy, schools of engineering will take the place of schools of business, he said, with government as the business manager.

"But because we do not believe that this will be the character of post-war America we have not sense of futility as we plan our effort to train youth as business men," Dean Clark concluded.

Miss Lee Takes Defense Position

Miss Mabel Lee, director of the department of physical education for women, has been appointed representative in charge of women's activities for the division of physical fitness in the seventh region. The appointment was made thru the U. S. office of civilian defense.

The seventh region includes Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wyoming.

"Business on a great scale will continue, and if some have not the ability to meet problems of taxes, labor laws, and bureaucratic regulation, they will only make way for those who can and will meet them."

In addition to the decorating of the rooms, a 16 foot Christmas tree was placed before the fire place and decorated with ropes of lights and yards of silver tinsel.

After the rooms and tree were decorated the guests gathered around the piano in the drawing room and sang carols.

Jean Christie, Joyce Junge, and Joann Emerson were in charge of the dinner, the decorating and selling the tickets.

Cage Crew Is Primed For Opener

Sodak Team to Invade Husker Floor to Initiate 1941-42 Basket Season

Holiday memories were brushed aside in the coliseum Tuesday when Mentor Adolph Lewendowski put his cage squad thru their paces after a four-day vacation.

Lewendowski admitted that "there's a lot of work ahead" but expressed approval of the improvement of several sub cagers. Nebraska finished second in the Big Six race last year behind the Kansas Jayhawks.

Held Leads Team.

The alterations may still be in order before the opener with South Dakota State here Dec. 12, Lewendowski has been favoring an all-vet combination. Hartman Goetze has been filling the vital pivot post, vacated by Al Randall.

Ballhawks Johnny Thompson and John Fitzgibbon have been cavorting at the first forward berths with Sid Held and Max Young barricading from rear court. Held one of the 1940-41 squad's big offensive guns, was an All-Big Six choice last year.

John Hay and Les Livingston saw front line duty on the second team yesterday. Lyle King, lanky center with Charles Vacanti and John Botoroff filling the guard slots.

Outstanding soph candidates included Allan Artman, adept floor man; Bob Heinzelman, All-State sharpshooter from Falls City and Kenneth Elson, clever Curtis satellite.

officers, and nobody has asked them to step out.

Watched Colonel's Sweetheart.

The honorary colonel idea is not a new one, however. With the ball an "established custom"—that's what the Cornhusker said—by 1922, it was decided to select an honorary colonel. Students were tired of watching the colonel's sweetheart march. Pearl Lucille Swanson was the first to be so honored.

Here is a list of honorary colonels in the order of their choice through the years after Miss Swanson: Rosalie Platner, Dorothy Brown, Frances McChesney, Marie Bowden, Laura Margaret Raines, Ruth Baker, Maxine Mathes, Sally Pickard, Jean Rathburn, Jane Axtell, Anne Bunting, Violet Cross, Virginia Selleck, Mary Yoder, Jane Walcott, Virginia Fleetwood, Elizabeth Haugh, and last year Maurine Malster.

The honorary colonel was selected at the fall election and her identity wasn't revealed until the ball at first, but in 1925, she was

Blue Tallies Last Touchdown

Wayne Blue, as shown above, crossed the goal line for the last time of the 1941 season as a climax to a 66 yard runback against the Oklahoma Sooners. Vic Schleicher's extra point was the last score made during the year. Jack Jacobs is shown attempting to tackle the Tecumseh flash.

Girls' Sport

By Susan Shaw

Today is the last day that Nebraska Ball practices are to be held. In order to take part in the tournament, which will begin next week, one practice is required for each player.

Tanksterettes initiated 19 girls last week according to President Jean MacAllister. The swimmers were posted for their abilities in precision, speed, and form swimming as well as diving. The program for the year includes a water pageant, demonstrations, and Co-ed Swim Parties. The new initiates are Dorothy Anderson, Lois Klindt, Helen Gogela, Eleanor Jocka, Margery Kraus, Dorothy Lewellan, Loretta Millis, Shirley Spalding, Marjorie Sorenson, Peggy Stencil, Ann Klavka, Virginia Biskof, Barbara Calmer, Beth Daniels, and Mary E. McKee.

Bowling intra-murals must be preceded by at least one practice per individual. Complimentary bowling tickets may be obtained at the WAA office. Teams must be turned in by the end of this week.
