

A Fortune Necessary If UN Shoppers Would Satisfy Christmas List Friends Men Want . . .

By June Jamieson.

When we canvassed the campus to find out just what the boys in the back room would have in the way of Christmas joy, we found that a girl's going to have to be a millionaire or a magician to fulfill those desires.

Take DU Dick Geesaman, for instance. . . Richard's heart is set on a sorority pin with no preference as to the kind or owner. If that can't be done, he'd like a full bank account, with unlimited reserves. Kappa Sig Bill Robinson wants a four month vacation instead of the usual two week job.

All ZBT Ray Grimes wants is a black convertible roadster with red upholstery and lots of chromium—he isn't even particular about the make, just so it's a Chrysler or DeSota. And ATO T. Miller wants a pair of red and white striped pajamas.

Scheming Huwaldt.

With Eloise Hainline listening from around the corner, Beta Larry Huwaldt shouted that he'd rather have a combination cigarette case and lighter "preferably with the Beta crest and my initials," than anything else in the world. Delt Art Lincoln wants a Japanese house-boy.

When we asked Phi Psi Dave Walcott his preferences in the way of Christmas gifts, he sighed heavily, sang two verses of the national anthem and said, "All I want is a nice shiny rifle, but don't bother getting it for me. I think there's one all picked out for me—and with my name on it." Sigma Nu Paul Svoboda's going cosmopolitan if he gets his Christmas wish. And it'll be a bright blue smoking jacket with a Russian insignia on one pocket. Pink Rag Peterson wants a long cigarette holder and an automatic bowling scoreboard that'll automatically give him 300 everytime he rolls a line.

For those unfortunates who haven't done their Christmas shopping early, here are a few cardinal rules of Christmas gifting which should guide you in the choice of a gift for the one and only, male or female.

If your problem is to give or not to give, then just review the length of acquaintance. A boy may safely bestow gifts after he has known the girl for a fairly good length of time; the girl, however, should wait until she's known the boy for a long while unless, by some sort of crystal globe, she's discovered that he plans to give her something. This is usually more than a problem, so if you're in doubt, don't give anything. It's much better to refrain than to seem too forward about the thing.

The subject of giving pictures is a touchy one, and all authorities agree that pictures should not be given unless they are exchanged or specifically asked for. We're inclined to be a little lax on this rule, tho, and tell you to go ahead if that's what you're giving this Christmas.

Tho it survived the Civil war, the University of North Carolina was closed for five years during the reconstruction period.

Girls Want . . .

By Harold Bremers.

With everything in his Knapsack ranging from a Buick convertible to a fur coat, Santa Claus is going to have a tough time squeezing down Nebraska chimneys. Since this is our last real Christmas until after the war, according to government officials, Chris will probably splurge, by trying to satisfy all campus coeds and wait until next year to tighten his belt. And from the looks of things to come only Santa could satisfy the coeds; for most of their desires are in the high price field.

Take Jo Beckley, Alpha Phi, for example. All she wants is a torpedo Buick convertible with white sidewalls. With patriotic fervor she said when interviewed, "I'll give up the white sidewalls for national defense."

Most fellows on the campus would be very willing to satisfy the first part of Betty Winn's, also Alpha Phi, request. "I'd like a boy friend and a red fox chubby," says she.

"After that football game between the Daily Nebraskan and the Cornhuskers, I don't have much faith in newspaper reporters," said Shirley Russel, editor of the Cornhusker and unaffiliated. "But you can quote me as saying that I would like a portable radio so that I could hear the latest flashes."

Please Send Him What He Wants, Cause She Won't

Please send Joe a necktie for Christmas. There is nothing that that fellow wants more than a red necktie with candy stripes, but do you know what he's going to get? A set of dishes.

I'm writing for him because of the position he is in. You see, he's pinned to a UN coed who won't consider buying him a necktie. She has her mind set on sending him a set of dishes in anticipation of "that" day. And the pinning eliminates presents from any other girls.

So, please S. C., take care of Joe. Send him a red necktie with candy stripes, and to make the hoax complete and to make him happier, sign it Betty. Yours, The Staff.
