

Finals in I-M Basketball Will Be Held Tonight

Husker's Les Oldfield Only Winner Back

Backstroker Is Sole 1941 Champ Returning; Big 6 Teams to Gather at Ames

AMES, Iowa, March 4.—Only one individual champion will be defending his honors in the Big Six swimming meet at Iowa State this week end.

Les Oldfield, record holding backstroker from the University of Nebraska, who learned his swimming in his father's horse tank, will be back to prove that he still is the best in the conference. The 21 year old junior set the conference record at 1:45.5 in the back stroke last year but in the duel with Capt. Ward Sear at Iowa State he turned in a 1:44.6 time to indicate he's ready to hand up a new record.

Capt. Jack McGuire of the Cyclones could have the record holding medley relay team back in the race this year but is likely to split the trio. Bill Bosworth, Ward Sear and Fred Musser swam in that order at Lincoln a year ago but Bosworth has turned freestyler this year to break up the team.

Mike Travis, Oklahoma breast stroke star who won the event last year, is in school this season but has not been swimming. Travis hurt his foot early in the year and has not competed. He has been working out all winter, however, and may turn up at Ames this week end.

Five men who placed in two events a year ago will be back to attempt to better their 1941 standings. Yeo and Novak of Kansas State, and Lambert, Edwards and Foster of Nebraska all placed in two events last year. Other point winners from 1941 who will swim at Ames this year include George Wales, Ward Sear and John Slater, all of Iowa State, and McPherson of Oklahoma.

Phys-Ed Head Assures Aid For Program

Cooperation Promised By Clapp in Proposed Non-ROTC Program Plan

In the event of the establishment of the proposed required or voluntary non-ROTC physical fitness program, the full cooperation of the men's phys ed department was assured yesterday by Dr. F. G. Clapp, director of the department.

The Daily, working with the university psychology department and the Student Council, is now conducting a survey of student opinion on this proposal, which is now functioning successfully at the University of Chicago. Dr. Clapp stated that he had been long trying to stir up students on this very subject, and expressed great interest in the Daily's efforts.

Would Prove Invaluable.

Such a physical fitness program would prove invaluable to draftees or prospective draftees, said Dr. Clapp. The chief complaint of the army is that draftees are "soft," and that it is necessary to spend from 6 to 12 weeks developing the muscular strength and endurance of the draftee before he can even begin to start military training. If, however, he has had this training beforehand his chances for advancement and for active service are much better.

With the present staff and equipment of the department, three to four hundred additional men could be taken care of in various activities. Thirteen activities are offered on the present program including competitive games, calisthenics, football, basketball, track, boxing, fencing, and handball.

"Fighting Spirit."

Generally recommended throughout the country and by the army are fast, vigorous calisthenics and apparatus work. Competitive sports are favored to develop the "fighting spirit."

Swimming classes will likewise be taught with an eye to necessity. The men will have to swim wearing clothes and carrying equipment that approximate those of a soldier.

Fijis Slated to Challenge Beta Quintet

Class A Consolations Will Take Place, Also Class B Championships on Tap

By Bob Miller.

New fraternity intramural basketball champion will be crowned tonight when Phi Gamma Delta vies with Beta Theta Pi for the championship on the coliseum court at 8:30 p. m.

This has the makings of an exceedingly interesting cage spectacle since both teams have impressive records in league play so far this season.

Both Win Semi-Finals.

On Tuesday evening, the Betas nipped the Farm House bid in the bud by potting a shot as the time had just expired, winning by a 19-18 scores. The Fijis whipped through the Delta Upsilon five by a 34-12 decision in the other semi-final tilt.

Last year, the Farm House won the class A title by downing the D. U.'s in the finals by a 36-16 final. This insures a new class A champion and the speculation is running high as to who it will be.

Berger and Huffman Best.

In the Tuesday night scraps, Justin Berger and Stan Huffman turned in the best floor jobs for the Betas. Bill Arnot was missing but will be on hand for the Fiji get-together to make things merry.

As for the Phi Gam five, there are several able basket snatchers. Ned Ntuzman dropped through 14 points while Dean Nutzman and Don Andreson were good for nine apiece. The back court combination of Roy Long and Con Healy leaves little to be desired.

A New Champ.

Well, that's it. The new champ will be either the Betas or Phi Gams and there should be plenty of excitements tossed in for good measure.

The once-defeated D. U. team and the Farm House quint will mix to decide third place in I-M standings at 7:30 on the coliseum court. Both games will be of high importance because the I-M Jack Best trophy fight will depend a great deal upon it.

ATO vs. Kappa Sig.

In class B, the Alpha Tau Omega five will test the Kappa Sigma team in the final of that league. This game will be held tonight along with the consolation game on the fershman court.

The former won by a 14-12 margin over the Farm House B on Tuesday while the Kappa Sigs coasted into the finals with the help of a bye.

Plenty of action will be forthcoming and a good crowd would be appreciated by all the tams participating.

Exhibit . . .

The exhibit is divided into sections. Each section is devoted to a particular idea with the entire exhibit building toward a climax.

Outstanding in the section given over to Art and the Negro is an oil painting by Palmer Hayden called "Midsummer Night in Harlem" and a bronze head, "Portrait of Hall Johnson" by Minna Harkavy.

Paintings by Lincoln artists are prominently displayed, including oils by Kady Faulkner and Dwight Kirsch, members of the art department.

Abstract Art.

"New York Under Gaslight" by Stuart Davis is exhibited in the section devoted to Abstract Art. The painting is stark and clear in color and perhaps a little confused in design. Davis is probably America's best known abstract artist.

As up to date as today itself is Art and the War. In this section is a pathetic oil painting done in subdued colors called "The Homeless" by Mitchell Siporin. Miss Faulkner also loaned two lithographs from her own collection to this section.

Dwight Kirsch, head of the art department, asks that university students visit the exhibit not once, but several times. He also suggests that Saturdays and late afternoons are good times to go because there are not so many visitors at these times, and the students may leisurely examine the exhibit.

Spring Sports Are Scheduled

. . . Practice Begins

Director of athletics John K. Selleck announced the 1942 schedule for baseball, tennis and golf as the spring sports got notice by the coaching staff.

Ad Lewandowski, jack-of-all trades, was assigned to the baseball coaching duties in addition to his football chores. Those two jobs are in addition to his basketball coaching job. Which is in addition to his teaching job. The question is whether or not he will be holding the stop watch for Coach Ed Weir's track team one of these days.

15 Games on Tap.

The Huskers spring baseball schedule calls for 15 games to be played with eight games at home and seven on foreign diamonds. The home games consist of four two-game series against Missouri, Kansas State, Iowa State and Colorado.

Practice will begin on Monday, March 16 according to Lewandowski with the first game scheduled for April 24 against Minnesota on the Gopher home grounds. First home series will be with Missouri on May 1.

Oklahoma Aggies Added.

A new addition to the opposing teams for the baseballers is Oklahoma A. & M. Hank Iba's team will be played down in Stillwater.

Three golf and tennis meets have been added to the schedule with a coach in doubt for both sports. A student-coach may be the answer to this question.
