

Slemmons Wins Library Wood Carving Design Competition

Robert S. Slemmons, junior in the architecture department, has been announced as the winner of competition among architectural students for a design of a wood carving to appear on the charging desk in the main book delivery room of the university's new Don. L. Love memorial library, now under construction on the Lincoln campus.

Slemmons' winning design is very conventionalized and architectural. A masculine figure, symbolizing the youth of Nebraska, is the center of interest. His eyes are focused on the torch of learning which he holds in his right hand in front of a scroll. The scroll is inscribed with the motto on the university seal, "Literis dedicata et omnibus artibus"

(Dedicated to letters and all the arts).

Beside the figure is a handle of cornstalks, symbolic of Nebraska's leading agricultural crop, and before it is a sheaf of wheat. To depict the contour of the state, there are hills at each side of the design, as there are in the eastern and western parts of Nebraska. In the foreground between the hills is a plain of wheat stubble with ears of corn below.

The new university library was made possible through a gift of $800,000 in the will of the late Don L. Love, Lincoln businessman. When occupied in late summer, it will provide a much-needed center of study on the campus. The present library was erected in 1891 and has long been inadequate both in book storage and study facilities.

Chicago Art Curator Closes Morrill Art Exhibit Sunday

Meyrick Rogers, curator of decorative arts of the Chicago Art Institute, will close the art exhibit at Morrill next Sunday at 3 p. m. by an art gallery lecture. The exhibit will be open until 5 p. m. Saturday for those students who have not had an opportunity to see the display. The final lecture of the series, "Pictures for Homes," will be given by Miss Schwake tomorrow at 4 p. m. in gallery "A".

The most talked about picture in the exhibit, "The Eternal City" was painted by Peter Blume. A social satire of conditions in Rome thru different eras, this work of art includes history, political science, economics, traditions, and art.

Admission charges for the lecture are 25 cents for anyone who is not a student or member of the Nebraska Art association, for whom there is no charge. Groups of 15 or more will be charged only 15 cents a person.

which has been thrown around young people in love is soon discarded.

In exchange for it, the young couple gets something much better. Dr. Miltzer said that it is impossible to put this "something" into words, but it is certainly there and should not discourage young people from marriage because the moon-struck ideas are gone.

Romantic Dither Bad.

"It would be too bad if people who were in love were always in a romantic dither, for they would never get anything done and society could not benefit," he said.

When two people get married the process of always being with the same person is different from just living with other people, as at home or with a group of students while in school.

The two necessities of happy married life and those which come when a person is emotionally grown up are tact and unselfishness. Both have to learn to accept defeat, not compromise.

Cast as Androcles' robust, hen-pecking wife, Jane Dalthrop carried her role well, while Frank O'Neill, Robert Aldrich, John McCarville, Harold Margulies, Jack Donley, Roy Sheaff, Max Whitaker and Darrel Peters lent an excellent impression of healing, heel-clicking, strong-arming storm troopers paying homage to the Emperor, Richard Putney.

Jean Racine, Rosemary Owens, Priscilla Moseley, Joe Divis and Richard Nash waited their way thru the prologue and two acts in excellent fashion as a group of Christian martyrs.

Also to appear before the home economics clubs' section are Miss Carolyn Ruby, assistant professor of home economics, and Miss Sophie Wakim, graduate student.

Rainy Days

Just aren't the days to find much popping... in fact, from a quarter 'til to five of three yesterday p. m., there wasn't a soul in the grill except three sleepy waiters.

Sensational

If true is the tale which reveals that Kappa Kay Tunison has sent back the Beta pin of Chuck Pillsbury, U. S. A. That used to be one of the more solid affairs... could it be that ATO Hook Lauer had anything to do with it? That affair is daily becoming more solid.

Gruesome Twosomes

Include Jawn Mason and KKG Marie Anderson... they're now going steady, and officially... while Sig Nu Horse Stult can't see anyone but Pi Phi Lou Ide over a coke. Another steady deal that has lifted more than one eyebrow is that of Beta George Loomis and dorm dame Roberta Zulauf... the notorious one, y'know. And Kappa Eloise Rogers has been going steady secretly for a month with Dick Agee. A steady deal that's missed the publicity also is that of Sig Chi Harry Morehead and Gamma Phi Nancy Coe. Back together, and seen companionably shopping the other afternoon, are Delta ditto Ruthie Grant and Tau Bob James. And Beta Don Stewart seems to be fascinated by DG Betty Simodynes lately.

If a Voice

Especially sweet and charming says "Delta Gamma" when you dial 2-7418, don't get excited about any new pledges over that away. It's just the actives acquiring their required quota of merit marks, for the actives and pledges have reversed their status this week. And... listen to this... if they don't satisfy the pledges, the latter will see that the actives just don't date this week-end.
