

University Asks Men If They Want ROTC in Summer School

A proposed plan to add classes in military science to the summer school curriculum has been submitted to all military science students for their approval.

The survey is being made to determine the feasibility and practicability of carrying military science courses during the long session of summer school this summer. A special form has been designed by the military department and issued to the cadets to obtain a negative or positive opinion from them.

It is felt that this year many conditions which are not normally present will influence students to register for summer school. The military department has taken this action to co-operate with the students in enabling them to procure their requirements for a degree in a much shorter time.

Courses under consideration for summer school will be those usually offered during the spring months of the normal academic year. Open to infantry students are courses: 2, 4, 106 and 108. Open to engineering students are courses: 22, 24, 126 and 128. Open to field artillery students are courses 42, 44, 146, 148.

Under normal conditions it would take eighteen weeks to complete each of these courses. Since the summer school lasts a maximum of nine academic weeks, the number of hours a week that will be necessary to devote to these courses will be: for courses 2 to 44, five hours of sixty minutes each, and for courses 100 to 148, eight hours of sixty minutes each. As to collegiate eligibility to take these courses, it will be necessary for cadets to carry three to six credit hours other than military science courses.

Council Picks Up As Elections Near

Centered around a barb contingent of no small number, last night's Student Council meeting once more began to show a bit of spirit.

Two vacancies in the council membership were filled by barb replacements, both women. After the usual questioning as to their interest in student government, Eleanor Paulson and Rachel Stevenson were both appointed to membership, the latter representing the graduate school and the former being a senior at large.

Having gained these two positions, Bill Dafoe barb leader, seemed still unsatisfied and worried as he suggested that Burton Thiel, president, personally approve further replacements before the election of council hold-overs next week. Thiel, however, assured him that all replacements would be considered before the holdover election.

Politics took a blow when approval was given to a plan for having open-filing among all student qualified for the vacant positions on the Student Union board. A committee within the council will review applications and recommend candidates to the council who will select two men and one woman for the board, all to be affiliated. Filings for these positions open today and will close April 8, any student thus being able to file.

After Thiel became incensed to the point of lecturing the members as a whole for disinterest in council business, next week's meeting with its holdover election promises to see council action finally get hot.

Not a Fence On the Mall —Badminton

No, they're not building a fence on Memorial Mall to make students used to cutting across between Sosh and points north walk around—it's badminton.

With the appearance of nine white posts, each over five feet tall on the mall yesterday, the unanimous verdict was, "aha! a fence thru the middle of the mall," but the posts are their to support nets for eight badminton courts to be used by the girls' gym classes this spring.

Association, Once Hotly Criticized, Again Begins Operations on UN Campus

Winning a decision over the Federal Trade Commission last summer, the Educators Association, incorporated of New York City, has again begun operations on the UN campus after being the target of hot criticism here several years ago.

Last week, the Association's Lincoln representative, Evelyn Taplett, 606 Terminal building, issued a call for 25 students for employment this summer. Work was described as "selling following a period of training."

According to the Lincoln Better Business Bureau, the work entails sales of the association's "Volume Library" over a certain territory. Guaranteed salary is $180 if 576 hours of work has been completed if the student does not violate the contract in any manner. There is also an arrangement for a 30 percent commission system which the student can take advantage of instead of the flat salary if he wishes.

Group of Scholars?

The Association's trouble with the Federal Trade Commission which originally issued a cease and desist order prohibiting among other things, "the representation, thru the use of the trade name 'Educators' Association' and otherwise, that the respondent constituted a group of scholars or educators (See ASSOCIATION, page 2.)

Coeds' Ivy Poems Due Next Week

Undergraduate Women Are Eligible To Enter Annual Ivy Day Contest

Undergraduate women who enjoy writing poetry should get busy and write a poem for Ivy Day. Each year, this year May 2, a May Queen reigns over traditional services when representatives from all women's houses form an Ivy chain, the junior and senior class presidents plant ivy which has never been known to grow and organized men's and women's groups compete in the Ivy Day sing.

In the midst of all the fun and frolic an Ivy Day Poet is announced and steps forth advancing to the Queen's dais—where she reads her poem to the sovereign and is crowned.

Each year scores of poems are received and are judged by members of the English department. This year's judges will be Drs. France, Wimberly and Pound.

Three manuscripts of the poem must be submitted, none of which may have the name of the author on them. The author's name must be enclosed in a sealed envelope which will not be opened until the judging has been completed so that the judging will be impartial.

Groups Hold Annual Ivy Day Sing May 2

Fraternities Must Enter By April 25

All fraternities have been asked to participate in the annual Interfraternity sing sponsored by Kosmet Klub which will be held the morning of Ivy Day, May 2. Last year's winner was Delta Upsilon.

Entries must be in the Kosmet Klub office by April 25 with a list of the participants. Each group may enter 25 singers. Contestants are to be on the mall north of the administration building by 9 a. m. on Ivy Day.

Seniors Have Six Days to Order Announcements

Orders for senior announcements must be filed by April 7, either at the Co-op or Nebraska book stores. This means only six days remain for seniors to secure their announcements, according to Jack Stewart, senior class president.

Coed Groups Register This Week for Sing

Any organized women's groups wishing to enter the Ivy Day sing must have their entries turned in to Mrs. Ada Westover's desk in Ellen Smith within a week. These entries must contain the following:

1. Name of group.
2. List of girls participating in the sing.
3. Name of song.
4. Name of song used last year if the group participated.
5. Leader of group.

Revised rules for the Ivy Day Sing are as follows:

1. Any organized group of women at the University of Nebraska may participate in the Ivy Day sing with one exception. Honorary groups of any kind will be excluded from participation. A division of the women's residence halls into groups which are the same size as other competing women's groups will be made by the AWS board.
2. Not more than 25 girls may represent any group in the sing.

On Ag Campus ... Annual Livestock Judging Contest Is Event of Week

By Randall Pratt.

Big event of the weekend will be the annual livestock judging contest. One of the requirements seems to be ambition since the contest starts at 7:30 a. m. Saturday. All students are invited to compete and special provisions are made for those who haven't had as much experience as others.

A senior division has been set up for those students who have had the following animal husbandry courses; 3, 9, 10 or 11. Members of the senior judging team are not eligible to compete. Those who enter the senior division are required to give oral reasons on eight classes.

Even though you haven't had any experience in judging, there's a place for you in the junior division. Only those who have had no experience or those that have only had animal husbandry I may enter this section. Only written reasons are necessary on four classes, however 12 classes will be judged.

To those that place within the first three in each class will go ribbons. In the entire class ratings will go ribbons to the first five. A beautiful trophy will be given to the winner of the senior division and one to junior division winner.

Don't expect to get any help from your neighbor while you are judging or waiting between classes because five points will be subtracted from your grade for each offense.

To brighten up the contest a little, there will be two girls competing right along with the other men. . . . Of course you know who they are. . . . Pat Chamberlain and Jo Duree. Both will enter the junior division. I wouldn't want to wager much but I'll bet the girls beat out a lot of boys who are supposed to know a lot about judging.

While we're on the topic of contests, it might be mentioned that if you're interested in practicing on judging and identification for the Tri-K contest held in the near future, time available in the Agronomy I class is on Friday afternoons, April 3rd and 10th.

Ugg. . . still more contests. . . Dairy products contest slated for Thursday April 9th in the Dairy Industries building, room 116. It will take place at 5:00 p. m.

Patterson Says Religion Sustains Marriage Ideals

"To most people the church has an important part in two periods of life—marriage and their burial service," said Dr. Charles Patterson yesterday speaking at the third in the marriage series.

"But there is a part to be played between these two periods," said the speaker. Dr. Patterson's subject was the relation of religion to marriage and he was speaking of the common use of the churches by many who attend only occasionally.

Dr. Patterson pointed out the ideals set up in the past two lectures and said that it is one thing to have such ideals about unselfishness and loving one another, but it is a different matter to live up to these ideals day after day and year after year. This is the place where religion has its part.

In a modern translation a passage concerning the Lord reads "I am the rock and the song." Religion is just that, said the speaker, a rock to hold us steady and a song to lift us up.

Religion Is Loyalty.

"The essence of religion is loyalty to something worth-full." This means something to put your trust in and he quoted an article in a popular magazine dealing with divorces and said that in one place in bold face type was printed these words:
