

The Daily Nebraskan

Vol. 41, No. 142

Lincoln, Nebraska.

Wednesday, May 6, 1942

YW Members Plan Next Year's Policy ... At Meeting Tonight

At the most important mass meeting the Y.W.C.A. has planned during the year, members will decide what kind of a program they want the organization to carry on next year, said YW President Helen Kelley in explaining the purpose of the meeting, to be held tonight at 7.

The membership of the YW numbers about 600 but only about one-third have participated in an active sense this year.

—Lincoln Journal.
Helen Kelley.

can be made. All suggestions of members will be welcomed and referred to the cabinet.

Because of the past set-up the largest percent of those participating from any class has come from the freshmen. The freshman program as planned will be enlarged and will be one of the points of emphasis in the entire program, but the cabinet is anxious to have as large or larger representation from each of the other three classes active next year.

Personal announcements have been sent to each member emphasizing the importance of the meeting.

There will be a short cabinet meeting.

Tonight at 7 p. m. in Ellen Smith all members are asked to meet and discuss this together and hear the recommendations of the cabinet.

The technical organization and staffs will be discussed in an effort to explain how the organization works and what improvements

Students May Leave Cards For Grades

Students who wish to have their second semester grades mailed to them this summer should leave a self-addressed, stamped envelope at the registrar's office in administration hall not later than May 18.

Grades may also be secured by calling for them at the office on or after July 1. All other students' grades will be inserted in credit books and will be available first semester of next year.

Army Group Cancels First Rush Picnic

The spring rush picnic, planned by Scabbard & Blade, has been canceled by Lieut. Col. Walter Gardner, because of inclement weather.

The picnic, previously planned for an over-night encampment at the national guard camp at Ashland was decided to be held at a later date when it was felt that the cold weather and recent rains would prove too much of a hindrance to the activities of the party.

Announcement of the later date will be made in due time to allow all those invited to plan for it, according to Lieut. Col. Gardner, sponsor of the organization.

Scabbard and Blade is an honorary military fraternity for men who are taking the advanced military science course.

First two days of registration have been unusually slow, according to Dr. A. R. Congdon, head of university registration, and students are again advised to hurry in order to avoid long lines later on.

"Registration is far below average for the first two days," stated Dr. Congdon, "and if students don't start coming, they will not get through by tomorrow evening. I further wish to remind students that registration is a day and a half shorter this year, because of the shortened semester."

UN Students To Register For Sugar

All UN students over 18 years of age are urged to register for their sugar ration books during these last two days of registration. It should be emphasized that these books are not only for sugar, but at some later date may also serve as ration cards for shoes, clothing, or any other rationed article.

Students under 18 years of age should bring their parents' attention to the fact that they, the parents, are supposed to register the students who are under the age limit. If a student cannot notify his parents within the two remaining registration days, it would be best for him to apply for his own ration book. In case a student is registered both at home and here at school, one of the ration books can be returned to the rationing board in the city or town where he resides. Students under 18 years of age who are part of no family unit or are self-supporting should register for themselves, as (See SUGAR, page 2)

It was believed by the committee in charge that the reason for the slowness of students was they thought registration was a whole week in length.

Only sections closed so far is the section in Military Science 43. Batteries C, E, and F are closed. Usually several sections are closed by noon of the second day, according to the committee.

All resident students, even if not sure of returning in the fall, are expected to register or a late fee will be charged. To register, students should go to their adviser, where they will work out a schedule of class work and outside employment in detail. This will then be presented to the dean of the college for approval and further instructions.

Since no fees are to be paid before the fall registration period, no hardships will be experienced by any whose plans must be changed. Instead of mailing out statement of fees during the summer as has been done heretofore, students will call for their registration slips at the coliseum during the regular registration days, Sept. 21 to 23. Changes in registration may be made then after consultation with advisors.

Frankforter Talks On Gases Tonight

The methods of protection for yourself and your home against gases, bombs, and incendiaries, will be Col. C. J. Frankforter's topic in his annual speech before Nebraska students and Lincoln residents, this evening at 7:30 in timeliness in connection with the present war.

It was believed by the sponsors that the subject would prove not only interesting but useful to students who may later be involved in the present crisis. Colonel Frankforter will discuss the various uses and their effects upon the victim of all of the major gases and chemicals used in the last World war and the present one.

He has been a member of the faculty for the past 30 years excepting for two years of service in the last World war, when he was connected with chemical department of the infantry.

The colonel's lectures have been attended by an overflow of crowds. This lecture has been recommended by the military department to all advanced drill students, especially those of the engineer unit who are just beginning their study of chemical warfare.

Lincoln Journal.
Col. Frankforter ... tells the whys and wherefores about incendiaries, gases and bombs.

the main lecture room of Avery laboratory.

Sponsored jointly by Corn Cobs and the Nebraska chapter of the American Society of Chemical Engineers, the colonel will illustrate various uses and methods of protection against warfare gases and bombs. The colonel's choice of topic this year was because of its

Mrs. Swenk Presents Gifts To Uni Museum

Gifts have been accepted by the university from Mrs. M. H. Swenk of two valuable private collections of the late Professor Swenk of the entomology department.

An insect collection presented to the department of entomology contains 1,100 specimens including 142 type specimens. One of the largest collections of type material in certain forms, it is rated as very valuable.

A collection of several thousand specimens of bird and mammals has been presented to the university state museum. Comprising a systematic collection of study skins of modern birds and mammals, it is the only series of this kind in Nebraska and one of the most valuable in the Missouri Valley region because of Professor Swenk's painstaking attention to the acquisition and preparation of the specimens. Mrs. Swenk also worked with him in building up the collection.

Pre-Med Group Elects Officers At Annual Banquet

Nu Med will hold its last meeting of the year at a banquet tonight at 6:15 in parlor X at the Union. Dr. Jean Clark, senior medical student at the college of medicine in Omaha, will be the guest speaker of the evening. Officers of the group for next semester will be elected and a short business meeting will be held after the banquet.

Omicron Nu Holds Annual Spring Affair

Omicron Nu, home economics honorary, will have its annual spring banquet and initiation tonight in Parlor A in the Union. Initiation of eight new members, Esther Mae Calhoun, Dorothy Schudel, Aline Richardson, Monetta Newman, Bonnie Bernholtz, Evelyn Menke, Mary Uhrich, and Leah Jane Howell will be held at 5:30 p. m. preceding the banquet scheduled for 6 p. m.

Dr. Rebekah Gibbons, head of foods and nutrition at Ag College, will speak on her travels in Mexico. Many alumnae will be attending.

Committees for the banquet are: reservations, Norma Jean Campbell; menu, Alice Hoegemeyer, Marie Ingalls; invitations, Retha Edeal; initiation, Ruth Gates, Bernice Gates, Bernice Anderson, Gerda Peterson; decorations, Dorothy White, Eunice Jenny, Lucille Jack; program, Ethlyn Findlay and Dorothy Mattley.

Phi Chi Theta Initiates Five New Members

At an initiation ceremonial breakfast Sunday morning at the Cornhusker, Phi Chi Theta, honorary biz ad sorority, initiated five new members.

Initiates include Grace Steckley, Maxine Thompson, Mildred Turner, Hazel Abel, and Dorothy Alexander. After the ceremonies a brief address was given by T. T. Bullock, professor of economics and business law.

Ag Summer School Will Help Farmers

Aiding farmers during the war emergency will be the goal of a summer training school to be set up at the Nebraska School of Agriculture at Curtis when the school year ends.

The courses are primarily for boys in city high schools who wish to learn farm work, and actual experience will be given on the state's farm of nearly 500 acres. A large garden will be planted and maintained by students, and experience will be given in handling farm machinery.

—Courtesy Journal.

Lincoln public schools have had 36 registrants for their special course in farm labor training, which will use ag campus facilities on filed trips to supplement class work.

The summer camp will be held in three terms: June 1 to 27, June 29 to July 24 and July 27 to Aug. 22. Course will be taught by regular college instructors and cost to the student for monthly room and board will be $24.

Applications may be obtained from school principals or the offices of the Nebraska chamber of commerce and must be returned before May 20 to Supt. H. K. Douthitt at Curtis.

Shown in the picture, above, is Don Flory, Lincoln high school junior, learning the knack of putting a collar on a farm work horse. He is one of the 36 Lincoln high school boys now enrolled in the training course.