Last Parade Brings Salute

A tall, straight military figure on this campus will officially revue the Nebraska ROTC brigade this afternoon for the last time. This man has brought to the University of Nebraska the finest in army training and background and has instilled into the cadets a little of the best found in military life. He has brought the rating of the officers' training corps to one of the highest standards ever reached in the history of the corps.

As a result of his fine work, the university is able to graduate well trained officers, send them into active service and feel assured that they have been adequately trained by the officers instructing under the retiring commandant. Because the military department now picks its men on the basis of scholarship and ability it is able to turn out competent soldiers.

This man came to the university with a brilliant record behind him. He has seen service in practically every branch of the army and was ready, willing and able to take over the big job which confronted him when he came here.

Next year a new colonel will become top man in the military department. It should be every cadet's responsibility to keep up the high standards which have been inaugurated under the present military staff and to strive even higher as a tribute to the work which has been done by Nebraska's retiring P. M. S. & T.

We salute Col. Charles A. Thuis. He's done a swell job.

High Prices Checked....

WASHINGTON.—College students, because their "income" is relatively "fixed"—should benefit more than the average person from the office of price administration's over-all ceiling order on prices.

The inflationary spiral has sent retail prices up 19 percent the last year. Were the spiral to continue, students would find it tougher and tougher to compete for goods and services in a market glutted with eager buyers.

The ceiling on retail goods goes into effect May 18, while that on services becomes effective July 1. Retailers then must charge no more than their highest March price. Here is what will happen to some important items in the student budget:

Room and board—If you live in a war rental area room and board will be controlled. Some two-thirds of the nation's population is included in these areas.

Restaurant meals—No price control.

Clothing—Both men's and women's controlled.

Movies and entertainment—No ceilings.

Carfare—No ceilings.

Cigarets, cosmetics, toothpaste, aspirin—Just a few of the thousands of "processed commodities" on the controlled list.

Laundry, dry cleaning, shoe repairing, etc.—Controlled.

Beauty and barber shop services—No control. The government does not recognize beauty as a "commodity" and only services involving commodities are controlled.

You might remember, when ceilings go into effect, that the order does not wipe out price differences between stores. If a merchant undersold competitors last March, he may still do so. On about 100 important cost of living items retailers must post signs informing purchasers of the maximum legal price. Also, merchants must give you a sales slip if you request one.

War....

Quisling's order sending 500 Norwegian teachers off to Finnish labor camps in the cramped hold of the S. S. Skjerstad has aroused storms of protest thruout Norway. The 500 were among thousands who refused to join Norway's nazi teachers' union, Norges Laerersamband.

When the "nazi slave ship" docked in Trondheim, it was reported that all the teachers were sick and two of them had gone mad. Even Quisling satellites protested against resumption of the trip. Provincial Governor Prytz wired Quisling:

"Hygienic conditions on board are extraordinarily bad. Many will not be able to lie down at night. Many of the teachers are ill. The water supply is insufficient. Suggest medical examination for all teachers."

The ship was sent on its way after a Quisling physician treated some 100 of the sick.

Awgwan Slated to Appear Early Part of Next Week

Reaching the stands during finals, the last Awgwan of the year is loaded with spicy stories and humorous takeoffs on final exam week.

The usual new and different cover illustrates Dick Geesaman's method of studying for finals. Too bad the issue comes out after finals are under way. His method might have been beneficial to some of the other cramming UN students.

Norris Anderson's instructions on how to pass final exams might be useful ideas to follow. Outlining his instructions in six big points, Anderson has really tried to aid his fellow students in their last hours of torture. (Wonder if he followed his own system?)

Ivy Day Covers Page.

The illustrated page will be covered with a picture story of UN's traditional Ivy Day. Depicting the colorful pageantry of Ivy Day, the pictures cover all of the high spots of the momentous occasion. (You notice we didn't mention the dampish weather.)

With the ever present possibility of an air raid, the Awgwan gives a humorous version of what to do in such an emergency. Heaven help the student who follows this article's advice.

New Broom Sweeps.

Believe it or not, but someone new wrote the gore column. Filled with its usual insinuations, little digs and straightforward facts, the column should be well worth reading. Maybe your name is there.

The big secret of the publication is the personality of the month. No amount of wrangling, begging, pleading or threatening could bring forth the name of this honored celebrity.

A new curriculum in "American Culture and Institutions" is being offered by the University of California at Los Angeles.

This Issues Memorandum On Enlistment

Students who became ineligible for ROTC training at the University of Nebraska thru enlistment in the naval or marine corps reserve will not be discharged from the university for failing to meet the ROTC requirement, according to a memorandum issued by Col. C. A. Thuis, commandant of cadets, Wednesday.

In order to clarify the situation, Colonel Thuis explained that such students have two alternatives: they may continue ROTC training at their own expense, or they may substitute physical education to meet the university requirements for graduation.
