is unable to come because of war service. Taylor, who will teach political geography and meteorology during the summer, arrived on the campus last week after visiting at his home in Oriska, N. D.

Goes to Malaya.
After receiving his M. A. degree from Clark University, Professor Taylor went to Malaya in 1939 to study political geography in connection with preparing his doctor's thesis, and found the position in the school.

It was bombed during the Japanese invasion with several student and faculty casualties and Taylor himself had a narrow escape from shrapnel when he sought protection behind a cement pillar. From the school, which was near the Siamese Thailand boundry, he escaped southward through the rubber plantations and tropical jungle to Singapore, using the main highway which runs down the peninsula.

Runs Car Off Pier.
At Singapore he ran his car off a pier into the sea and caught a small Dutch steamer just before complete Japanese occupation of the city. He went to Java but was soon forced to leave as the Japs moved on. He then went to Australia and later to New Zealand, in an effort to catch a boat home. Returning to Australia he secured passage on a steamer.

Dr. McKim, who will teach geography of Asia and Nebraska and principles of geography has been professor of geography at Chadron state teachers college. He will be chairman of the geography department at Fresno college in California next fall.

Both men are expected to make public lectures during the summer.
