

Co-ed Counselors Will Help Frosh Women Get Set at UN

All freshmen women will be under the supervision of Co-ed Counselors for the first six weeks of school this fall, the Associated Women Students has decided.

In past years all organizations made plans for the freshmen women as soon as school started, giving them no time to become acquainted on the campus or to learn the traditions of the university.

The job of orienting all freshmen women has been turned over to this group of about 150 women. Members of Co-ed Counselors are chosen by the Co-ed Counselor board from the group of applicants on their interest in other students and desire to help freshmen.

Registration Guides.

Each woman entering the university for the first time will be assigned to a Co-ed Counselor who will meet her and talk with her as soon as registration is completed.

During registration Co-ed Counselors take the new students thru the coliseum and to their assignment committee and give general information.

After the first six weeks the counselors keep a room in Ellen Smith hall where women may stop and rest or talk with others. This room has just been furnished and decorated by the organization.

Mother-Daughter Banquet.

Each spring the organization sponsors a Mother-Daughter banquet where the counselors eat with the freshmen women they have advised during the first six weeks and worked with thru the year. This banquet has become a tradition on the campus and last year set the attendance record with about 300 women present.

Coed Counselor officers are Anne Kinder, president; Dorothy Weirich, vice president; and Phyllis Holebrook, secretary-treasurer.

may move in anytime after receiving their invitation.

Sororities have been limited in their expenditures because of the war and groups will have to use their ingenuity in planning all rush parties. There will be no flowers at any of the parties, and no favors will be given to the rushees.

Panhellenic rules as set up for this fall include among other hold over rules the stipulation that all rushees must attend the rush meeting prior to the first open house and once a rushee has started attending the open houses she must complete the series.

Write Mrs. Schmelkin.

Any questions which a rushee has should be sent to Mrs. Ruth Schmelkin, Panhellenic office. Mrs. Schmelkin is the chairman of the advisory board.

During the summer each rushee will receive information from the Panhellenic office including the completed rushing plans and rules.

Lots of Room For Aspiring News Hounds

Five thousand people make a lot of news. Chemistry professors write books. Beautiful girls entertain the boys from home. Zoologists keep raccoons for pests. Deans issue warnings about the danger of liquor. Colonels install complicated military systems. Proclamations are issued about informal military balls.

In short, 5,000 people on the Nebraska campus means a newspaper, a daily newspaper with spot news, features, fashions, editorials—a campus newspaper put out by students for student benefit.

Complimenting the DAILY NEBRASKAN is the year book, the CORNHUSKER, put out each year under student control. The year book is a permanent record of the more pertinent happenings and events on the campus during the year.

The route to success on these publications is a comparatively simple one—but is definitely straight and narrow. For instance, if you want to be editor of the Cornhusker, do some work while you are a freshman, secure a staff position when a sophomore, get a managing editorship in your third year, and then move into the editorship your last year.

If you want to be editor of the NEBRASKAN, start as a reporter while a freshman, get a news editorship as a sophomore or junior, move up to managing editor when you are a junior or senior, and get the editorship in your fourth year.

Ability Essential.

This is simple but here is where the straight and narrow comes in. Ability in newspaper lines is essential to the beginning cub reporter but more importance is persistence and that quality which, in polite society, is commonly called "nerve."

But it all means gold in somebody's hills. Almost $500 is paid out each month to members of the two staffs. Approximately 25 students share in the money.

The NEBRASKAN payroll includes the following: Editor and business manager, $40; two managing editors, $30; five news editors and two assistant business managers, $20; sports editor, $15; circulation manager, $25; assistant circulation manager, $15; a bookkeeper, $12.50; and a secretary, $5.

The CORNHUSKER payroll: Editor and business manager, $30; photographer, $10; three assistant business managers, $5; two managing editors, $7.50. Bonuses included are for business manager and editor, $230; assistant business managers and managing editors, $50.

Rush Week . . .

If the rushee resides in Lincoln, she must register with Panhel during the summer, also. All registrations must be accompanied by the $2.50 rushing fee.

Rush week activities will begin Sunday morning when late registration will be completed at the Panhellenic office. This will be followed by two periods of open house. During these periods each rushee will have an opportunity to visit every sorority house on the campus.

Chancellor to Speak.

Sunday evening there will be a general meeting for all rushees at the Student Union. Chancellor Boucher will speak at this time and welcome the rushees to the university.

Parties begin on Monday with a brunch from 10 to 12:30. Tea will be served in the afternoon at the parties from 3 until 5 and the evening party will begin at 8 and last until 10:30.

Tuesday's parties include coffee, 9 to 11 a. m.; a sandwich spread, 1 to 3:30 p. m.; and the evening party, 7 to 9. Each rushee will file her preference in the Panhel office following the party.

Preference Luncheon.

Wednesday invitations will be given out from Panhel during the morning and at noon a preference luncheon may be held. However, this had not been put definitely into the plans. Upperclass pledges may move into sorority houses any time after the luncheon, provided it is held, otherwise they
