port has been released by the dean of student affairs. A rating of 4 indicates an average of 90, 3 represents 80, 2 shows 70, and 1 point indicates grades of 60.

Dean Harper pointed out that men students will have to maintain high marks to remain in their reserves. Less financial strain this year should raise many students' grades. However the strain and uncertainty of the oncoming school year may affect school marks for the worse, he mentioned.

listments in the various reserves until after registration has been completed. Freshmen near their 20th birthday are advised to see Dean N. A. Bengtson of the junior division.

Quotas for the army enlisted reserve corps were assigned Aug. 6. At that time, 1191 army reservists were allotted to this campus. That figure was apportioned: 472 freshmen, 233 sophomores, 273 juniors, 213 seniors.

705 Unclassified.

The university was also allowed 705 freshmen and sophomores who have an unclassified status but are destined for the navy or naval reserve at the completion of their basic R. O. T. C.

Students who fail to be accepted for the reserves will most likely be drafted when they reach the age of 20, according to the present selective service regulations. This may not apply to those juniors and seniors taking courses preparing for critical occupations, such as engineering, dentistry, medicine or other essential occupations.

When the AERC contracts are signed, the student is in the army! He is liable to call to active duty at any time as the war department sees fit. Further, he must attend college all year under the accelerated program.

The navy, marines and coast guard reserves have not as yet released reports regarding the calling of students out of college.

Basic ROTC Required.

All freshmen and sophomores will be required to take basic ROTC regardless of their reserve status. Advanced ROTC will have a new program in addition to its regular drill courses. Captain Rollins S. Emmerick will be in charge of bayonet drill, obstacle course racing and other special training.

New statements are being issued daily by the war department and university officials are under the impression that present conditions may be changed many times.

The university has adopted a ten-point code. Chancellor C. S. Boucher has stated that the university will cooperate by complying with the war department regulations during the emergency.

A university faculty war committee has been organized to coordinate UN activities with the government. Dean T. J. Thompson, dean of student affairs, has been appointed by Chancellor Boucher to represent the university in this phase.

Thompson has asked Dean N. A. Bengtson to handle the junior division enrollments in the various reserves. An advisory committee composed of Bengtson, Dean C. H. Oldfather, Dean O. J. Ferguson, Dean J. D. Clark and Col. James P. Murphy has been approved by the administrative council.

"Students are urged to be alert, watch the bulletin boards and read the Daily Nebraskan," was Dean Thompson's advice to anxious students.
