A Valuable Year..

University officials begin a long series of welcome for both new and old students today, when freshmen attend their first convocation. All students attending such convocation should realize their good fortune in being able to attend this great school during the national emergency.

It is our duty, both to our country and to those at home who have made this year of education possible, to work to our utmost to make it a successful year. More than ever before, students should feel an obligation to take advantage of the facilities which the University of Nebraska is offering them.

We all give a hearty welcome to new students and will do everything possible to make their years at Nebraska profitable and pleasant. Even though the country is at war, there is still a place for college activities and collegiate good times, but they must be kept in their place with the war taking precedent over everything else.

This should be an interesting year at the University of Nebraska. It is a war campus. It will take some time to get used to new methods and programs. All of us will be required to take part in activities for service to the university and to the war effort. This should be done with a spirit of sacrifice and willingness, because under these conditions great work can be accomplished, and great work should be accomplished at every educational institution this year and those following, until the final victory.

We're beginning a new school year. Let's get the most out of college life we can, having a good time as well as studying. But beneath all of this, let's face the facts. We must sit down, have a good talk with ourselves, and realize that we are in school now, preparing for something greater than our own selfish interests, but we are in college preparing ourselves for a place in the great war program.

If we accomplish this, and nothing else, our year at the university will be invaluable.

Fraternity Rush Week Gets Under Way Saturday; I-F Council Meets Friday

With rush week scheduled to start Saturday noon and last until Monday night of next week, the interfraternity council, headed by Ren Bukacek, Kappa Sigma, will hold its first meeting tomorrow at the student union building at 10:00 a. m. to "establish better relations between fraternities on the campus and to see that rushing is conducted on a fair basis."

Invited to attend this meeting are all presidents of fraternities and their representatives. Some difficulty may arise in getting a full attendance, announced Bukacek, since all houses have not as yet elected their president.

Dean W. C. Harper, advisor of the Interfraternity Council, will be present to give a talk on the rules and explain any that members do not understand. The following are the rules:

1. No rushee may have more than one date per day with the same fraternity; nor may he have more than three dates with the same fraternity during rush week. Rushee shall be obligated to fulfill his first date with each and every fraternity with which he has dates registered. All subsequent dates may be broken if he personally files the pledge assumption card at the council's office. If the pledge is broken he can not pledge again for thirty days.
2. No rushee may in any way accept a pledge button until he has filed the pledge assumption card at the council's office.
3. Dates shall in no way be split between two or more fraternities. The full date must be kept with one fraternity.

4. No rushee may remain in any fraternity house at any time other than during his bona fide dates. A rushee may not use a fraternity as his place of residence during rush week, or the preceding two weeks and the pledge may not move into the house until 12:00 noon the day following rush week.

5. No fraternity man shall communicate with any rushee other than by phone except during bona fide dates.

6. Every rushee must file a list of his dates in person, at the Interfraternity Council office, 305 Student Union, prior to his first date. This does not prohibit rushees from making and filing new or additional dates in open periods after rush week starts with fraternities not already dated.

7. Any man who breaks a pledge during the first month of pledgship will be prohibited from pledging any other fraternity until the following semester.

8. A fee of $1.00 must be paid by each rushee at the time when his dates are filed. Those who do not participate in rush week but, who later pledge a fraternity, must register and pay the $1.00 fee at the office of Interfraternity Affairs before pledging.

9. Any man who participates in Rush Week and fails to pledge by 12:00 noon, the day following, may not pledge for 14 days.

10. Violation of any of the above rules prohibits the rushee from pledging for 30 days.
