

Fraternities Pledge 419; Sigma Nu Leads

Cigaret sales are back to normal, suits are hung in closets for another year and ties have gone the way of all good cuffs as fraternities wound up rushing activities Tuesday noon.

In a history-making achievement Sigma Nu pledged 44 men to lead the 19 other social fraternities on the Nebraska campus as the three day round of parties drew to a close. Phi Delta Theta and Alpha Tau Omega took second and third with 41 and 39 pledges, respectively, followed by Phi Gamma Delta with 37.

With 489 registering for rush week and 419 pledging at its completion, this year's activity was well above last year's mark. Last year 310 registered dates and 292 pledged.

An outstanding feature of the current campaign was the absence of "dirty rushing." In the words of Ren Bukacek, interfraternity council president, "There were no complaints filed. A rush week such as this assures the security of fraternities on this campus."

Dabbling with figures shows

Ren Bukacek...no complaints here that this year, 85.69 percent of those who registered finally pledged while last year, 97.41 percent accepted the pledge pins symbolic to each fraternity.

The following is a list of fraternity pledges:

Registration Shows Students Fit Courses With War Program

Climbing enrolment figures in math, physics, and engineering courses indicated that students who had registered during the first two days of registration are either altering earlier plans or definitely planning their courses to fit the war program, the closing of second-day registration activities shows.

General registration estimates still compare favorably with those at the end of the same period with no complete figures available under the new system of registration.

Previously, students registering in the spring were already recorded in the fall, leaving only incoming students to be registered. All students, to avoid payment of a three dollar penalty fee, must be registered before closing time, 5 p. m. tonight.

The Joseph Simon Memorial Scholarship presented annually by brothers of the late Joseph Simon to a male member of the freshman class who has demonstrated superior qualities of manhood, moral force, scholastic and athletic ability will be given this fall.

Freshmen Hear UN Victory Bell At Convocation

Col. C. J. Frankforter Administers Cornhusker Oath to Entering Frosh

Beanies and caps in traditional scarlet and cream will be much in evidence at the first annual freshman convocation Thursday afternoon.

The Victory bell will lead the procession, which will start at 3:30 in front of the Temple and proceed to the coliseum. There the underclassman will pledge the Cornhusker oath as administered by Colonel C. J. Frankforter.

Included in the program will be a short speech of welcome by Chancellor C. S. Boucher, and speeches by Mrs. Verna Boyles, (See CONVOCATION, Page 3)

Employment Head Sees Better Year

Coed Counselors Entertain 'Little Sisters' at Party

The Coed Counselors' traditional party, to which all new women students are invited, will be held in Ellen Smith hall Thursday, 7:30 p. m. to 8:30 p. m. At this time every "little sister" will meet her "big sister," a Coed Counselor.

During the party the girls will be entertained by games, singing traditional Nebraska songs and be introduced to the sponsors and board members of the Coed Counselors. Refreshments will be served.

Employment for students is plentiful as in former years, according to Mr. J. D. Epp, in charge of student housing and employment, who reported more openings down town than a year ago. Students who have placed their names in Epp's files cannot be reached until their Lincoln address and telephone number have been reported.

The cut in the national NYA appropriation this summer has not caused any unemployment among needy students, reports Carl A. Donaldson, acting director of the NYA. At Nebraska university in 1940-41, 750 were employed by the NYA; in 1941-42 550; and this year only 160. Because of the prosperous crops and the defense jobs, there will be a smaller supply for student help.

Battered Reporter Attempts Obstacle Course Used by Football Team; Discovers Muscles

Managing Editor, Daily Nebraskan.
Dear Boss:

I am whispering this message to a nurse who has promised to send it to you. My leg is above me in a hoist, I am swathed in bandages, but my nervous life insurance agent has returned to his office so I should live.

As you know you assigned me to run the obstacle course in the stadium which the football squad has been traversing in 15 to 20 pounds of equipment twice daily after a three hour football practice. Rumor also has it that the advanced ROTC students will train on this course, and I know now that they will all either come out supermen or physical wrecks.

Since I am six feet, 155 pounds of fighting work I readily accepted this beat at gun's point and set off for the stadium. I walked from the Daily office to the field and across it to the course and sat down to survey my assignment, not that I was tired in the least.

Oh for a Bed!
After I had sat on the grass for 15 minutes I ran up the track in my jog which covers more distance from side to side than forward. I puffed up the steps, ran a few yards, rolled under a barrier a foot and a half high and down the hill. In less than a minute, I picked myself up, gently soothed my cinder bruises and was ready to go on. On home to a soft bed.

I hand-vaulted over a five foot hurdle. I only caught one foot on the top, but this caused my descent to be head-first. The bleeding soon stopped, and I began the 12 foot rope-climb. As I reached the top, and honestly I did, my vise-like grip slipped and I plummeted to the ground causing several insignificant burns on my hands.

I gamely ran with a slight limp up an incline and thru a tunnel two and a half feet high and nine feet long. In route I banged my head and back several times on the soft pine roof. Swinging hand-over hand on a pipe 30 feet long, I discovered that I was further along in the stages of Darwin's evolution than several of my acquaintances had intimated for my ape-like ancestors had left me none of their skill for such tricks of Tarzan.

No Time to Think.

Up betimes from the ground where I had dropped and under an obstacle thru which I was to roll for six feet. Finished my rolling as some one prodded me out with a pole from the spot where I had decided to lay still and think the

It's Really True... No Rumor! UN Classes Begin Half Hour Later... To Relieve Traffic

At least an extra half hour of morning sleep has been assured UN students by the shift of the entire schedule of classes ahead a half hour.

Those extra morning moments in bed have been afforded to the holders of 8 o'clock classes by the order which shifts the initial classes ahead to 8:30 and the following meeting in accordance.

Orders from the chancellor's office were issued for the change in order to alleviate the congestion of 8 o'clock traffic which has perennially offered a problem but now, due to the increased proportions of traffic caused by the war, has demanded rectification.

The change is also advocated, in view of the lighting problem caused by national war-time, to lessen the tax on the power supply in order to release the insufficient supply of electricity for more essential uses.
