Now It Can Be Told

Absence makes the heart grow fonder, so the saying goes, but a summer vacation has made many brains hazy concerning this new fee called "D. N." which is found on each registration receipt. Many students, both freshmen and upperclassmen, have been unable to translate this new secret symbol, and the hubbub it has caused in campus gossip groups is beyond expectation.

This editor has been led to the source of this secrecy and it now becomes my pleasure to inform every student on the campus that "D. N." stands for nothing but the DAILY NEBRASKAN. To new students, the DAILY NEBRASKAN is the official student publication of the University of Nebraska.

Following a student election last spring, recommending that action be taken on universal subscription, the board of regents approved the action, and the paper is now being placed in the hands of every student on the campus. It is the sincere hope of each member of this staff, that we may have a loyal following of every person enrolling here this fall.

Due to our increased circulation, we are more conscientious than ever in our effort to make your paper as interesting and helpful to you as possible. A student newspaper should be more than a bulletin of meetings and convocations, it should act as a coordinator of all activities which are being carried on, or which should be undertaken on the campus during a war year. This is the aim of your publication.

It is your paper. You paid for it. We will do our utmost to make it one of the best bargains you've ever received.
