

Frosh Bargain for 'Despised' Caps . . .

Two freshmen are shown above buying their class caps from Bob Schlater, Innocent, and Mortar Boards Dottie Weirich and Alice Louise Becker during registration Wednesday. Frosh men and women bought beanies and caps at the coliseum during the three days of registration. The supply of caps available has been temporarily exhausted but a new shipment is on order. The Daily will carry an announcement when the new supply arrives.

First Rally, Frosh Convocation Today

Annual convocation of university freshmen, one of Nebraska's oldest traditions, together with the season's first pep rally will start the round of campus activities for the school year rolling this afternoon.

four to four-thirty and the rally will be held at Temple building at four instead of three-thirty as previously announced, according to T. J. Thompson, dean of student affairs. All freshmen will be excused from four-thirty classes today, Thompson said.

Highlight of the frosh program will be the administering of the Cornhusker oath to all freshmen by Col. C. J. Frankforter, adviser of Cora Cobs, Chancellor Chauncey S. Boucher, will welcome all new students and short speeches (See RALLY, Page 6.)

Schlater Calls Staff Meeting For Thursday

Candidates for Daily Nebraskan positions are still asked to report to the Daily offices in the Student Union basement. Reporting and working in the advertising department of the paper offer excellent practical experience in sports writing, general reporting and advertising and businesswork.

Candidates for Daily positions need not be journalism students. Bob Schlater, editor-in-chief, has announced that a general meeting of the Daily staff and workers will be held at 7:30 Thursday evening and that reporters will be assigned to regular beats.

Jobs as reporters and workers in the business office lead to paid positions on the editorial and business staff.

Cornhusker Oath

"As a student entering the University of Nebraska, I subscribe to the following:

1. RECOGNITION—of an obligation to parents, friends, schools, and state for the sacrifice made and encouragement offered which enabled me to enter the University of Nebraska.
2. DESIRE—to remain in the university with the firm intention to advance in scholarship and to cultivate those social activities which make for social activities.
3. PURPOSE—to enter classes and other work fully prepared and to give such attention as will ensure satisfactory results, not failure.
4. ORGANIZATION—of time to be devoted to study, recreation, activities and rest, and the pursuit of this schedule with due diligence.
5. LOYALTY—to the administration, faculty, traditions and purposes of the university.

Finally, I will at all times censure and guide my conduct and work toward personal advancement, and safeguard the relation I hold to the welfare of the university and its services to the state."

Window Panes In . . . New Library Nears Completion; Moving Postponed Til Spring

Completion of the new Love Memorial Library is taking shape and final job of moving from the old library to the new is planned for early spring. Window panes were going into the library early in September, and the building is already impressive enough to indicate that it and its tower will dominate the campus in the next few years.

Main entrance of the new building faces north toward the campus, but its southern columns and windows, its slate roof and tower make a new skyline down Thirteenth street. On the first floor will be a student lounge, reserve reading room, and an auditorium.

The second floor will have the main desk, a social studies reading room, a general and humanities reading room, and a browsing room. Reading rooms on third

Dean Boyles Invites All UN Women To Tea At Ellen Smith Friday

All university women are invited to an informal open house Friday afternoon from 3:30 to 5:30 in Ellen Smith as guests of Mrs. Verna Boyles, dean of women, and her staff.

Members of the Mortar Board and a group of senior women will assist in the drawing and dining rooms. This will be an opportunity for new students as well as upper classmen to meet and become acquainted with the dean of women and the members of her staff.

floor will be for science and technology and for education. Fourth floor is for seminar and private study rooms.

R.O.T.C. Notice

All advanced students are to bring their first military class a copy of their class schedule for the present term, announced the military department. Seniors should turn their schedules in to Lieutenant Colonel Zeck's office and juniors to Major Chatfield's office.

Enlistment Advisory Board of Five Officers Will Meet on UN Campus in Two Weeks

To advise University of Nebraska men students upon reserve enlistment possibilities for the army, navy, air corps, coast guard and marine branches, a joint procurement board of five commissioned officers will be on the campus Oct. 8-12.

This board, one of five operating among the 200 colleges and universities in the Seventh Service command, is composed of one representative for each branch.

These representatives acquaint students with the functions and programs of the various types of our armed forces, qualifications for enlistment and training and

Activity Tickets Sale on Monday

UN's biggest game of chance will get under way early next week in connection with the sale of student activity books on Monday and Tuesday of next week.

John K. Selleck, director of the athletic department, has announced the drawing of seats to UN football games will take place at 12:30 Tuesday in his office. Reservations must be turned in before Tuesday noon.

Bob Schlater, editor of the Daily Nebraskan, will conduct the drawing. One member of each group of students, which may range from two persons up, is asked to be present at the drawing.

Students or groups who wish to reserve seats may do so by presenting money and identification cards at Selleck's office. Receipts will be given to them and their number placed in the lottery. Ticket books may be obtained Wednesday by the presentation of this receipt.

Students or groups failing to place reservation before the drawing Tuesday may purchase them later if there are any left over after the drawing. No student is allowed more than one ticket.

The holder of an activity ticket is entitled to a reserved seat at all football contests played on the home field, admission to all home basketball games, track meets, and other intercollegiate sports. The price of the book this year is five dollars.

UN Alumni List Totals 55,000 With New Class

With the graduation of the August class the number of Nebraska alumni has now reached 55,000, it was announced yesterday by the university alumni association.

This means that since the founding of the university 73 years ago when Nebraska consisted of one building, University hall, an average of 750 students have been graduated each year. And, in that time Nebraska has grown to be one of the leading state universities in the United States.

ROTC Heads Set 'Practical Course' Goal

In view of the fact that all cadets in the present ROTC unit are nothing less than members of the regular army on inactive duty, the military officials have lined up a thoroughly practical and compact program of training for this year to comply with that of the nation.

Special emphasis is to be given to a more concise and more strict observance of military customs, courtesies and discipline of the unit on or about the campus it was announced at a meeting of department officials last night.

Because of the fact that some ROTC graduates have been reported deficient, at the time of reporting for duty to service schools and army units, in such basic military subjects as military courtesy, military customs, and in a basic appreciation of military relations existing between officers and men, the present cadet corps will take on the appearance of a service school more than ever before.

Re-registration of May Upperclassmen Indicates Drop of 30 Percent

Students entering the junior division far exceed the number in that division last year according to incomplete figures compiled by Dr. A. R. Congdon, head of the assignment committee, during the last hour of registration yesterday.

Military science, mathematics and physics show a definite increase over last year as does the college of engineering.

Of the many students who registered last May, only about 70 percent have paid this semester's fees, which means that there will be a 30 percent decrease in the number of upperclassmen under last spring's total.

On the whole there are somewhat fewer registrants in the university. There is definitely a lower registration in the graduate school.

Those who have failed to complete registration by 5 o'clock Wednesday may do so at the west end of Memorial hall without late fee from 9 to 12 this morning. Any registering later than this will be assessed a late fee.

Unclaimed Cornhuskers Available This Week

All students who have subscribed to the 1942 Cornhusker, and have not received their copies, should call for them at the Cornhusker office by Sept. 28, according to an announcement by Dave Wolcott, business manager.

officer in charge will act solely in an advisory capacity.

Dean T. J. Thompson, who is in charge of the reserves on the Nebraska campus will organize the meetings. He stresses the fact that since this board has all of the information necessary all students not liable for the draft within the next month, wait until the board arrives before trying to enlist.

In this way, Thompson points out, the student will have a wider field from which to choose.
