

Hill Declares India Next Jap Objective

Weather, Internal Strife
To Afford Opportunity For New Offensive

That India will be the object of the next Japanese offensive is the opinion expressed by Norman L. Hill, professor of international affairs.

"Warm weather and internal disturbances in India are inviting to the Japanese. An invading army could expect stiff opposition from the British but would find the Hindus uncooperative but unopposing.

"Such an offensive in India would have the advantage of slowing up production of war material vital to the allies. Beside slowing up production this move would cut off the transportation of goods from India to China.

"If this maneuvering should be successful China would be without aid from the allies except that which could be obtained from Russia.

"By extending their lines thru Persia, Japan would be close enough to the German army so that exchange of equipment would be possible. The military advantages of such an offensive are inviting."

Altho some commentators have thought that Japan would move next into Siberia, Mr. Hill, believes this too impractical because of the unfavorable weather conditions. The Russians are not planning to encounter the Japanese in Siberia for they have withdrawn many of their troops from this sector.

The Japanese as well as the Germans run their war with the element of surprise as an effective weapon. Therefore, Professor Hill, says, it is impossible to be certain of any military movements.

"It well might be that final registration figures for this semester will eventually reach from 4,800 to 5,000, if not more," the registrar stated.

Another half-day was given Thursday morning to those who had not completed registration within the assigned time. Graduate college students have until Oct. 3 to pay fees, and final figures will not be available until that date.

Weirich Adds Welcome.

Dorothy Weirich, as president of the Mortar Board, encouraged the freshmen to enjoy themselves while making the university their home for the next four years. "Our parents, our country, and its citizens are fighting for the very things which we have access to on this campus and are privileged to enjoy.

Postpone Shop Mathematics Drafting Class

First of Two Fifteen
Week Training Courses
Start September 28

The new war course in drafting and shop mathematics at the University of Nebraska has been postponed and will start on Monday evening, September 28. This course is the first of two, each to last fifteen weeks and to be held on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

The purpose of these evening courses is to train sub-inspectors for aircraft assembly, and it is expected that all who satisfactorily complete a course will be employed by aircraft assembly companies as inspectors.

To be considered for the course in Drafting and Shop Mathematics each applicant must be a high school graduate with at least one year of algebra and one year of geometry.

No Fees Charged.

No University fees will be charged, the cost of these courses being borne by the Federal Government. Each student, however, will be required to furnish his own textbooks costing about ten dollars and to deposit ten dollars for use of drafting equipment and one dollar for loan of key. No University credit will be obtainable.

Application is discouraged unless the applicant is certain that he will finish the two fifteen week courses, and is willing to take a job upon completion of these courses.

Application may be made to W. L. DeBaufre, Director of Defense Training, in Bancroft Hall.

Women are especially urged to apply.

tion—is what our parents and our soldiers are denying themselves for us right at the present time," cautioned Miss Weirich.

Must Stay in College.

Chancellor C. S. Boucher in his speech to the freshmen also reminded them that "we are permitted to remain in college only because the government thinks we can prepare ourselves better for war time activity in future years."

Both Dean T. J. Thompson and Col. James Murphy urged the students to keep "their feet flat on the ground and study in earnest." "We are a country at war," commented Colonel Murphy, "and when the time comes for us to be called, we will go; but until that time we have a job to do and that is to get the most we can from our textbooks."

Maintain Activities.

The campus, while maintaining war time schedules, will continue to have the same extra-curricular activities and all the fun that goes with them. Many of the frills will be dropped, but the members of the group were urged to adopt the same spirit that has always been characteristic of a Cornhusker.

Leading the freshmen in the triumphant march were the red-skirted, white-bloused Tassels, and the red-sweatered, cheering Corn Cobs. The procession assembled at the Temple theater and started at 4 p.m. The march down R street to the Union, up 14th to teachers' college two blocks further north, then back west entering the south doors of the coliseum.
