Representative Interviews Students for Navy Research Monday, Tuesday Next Week

Howard C. Lorenson, representative of the Naval Research Laboratory of Washington, D. C. will be on the campus Monday and Tuesday to interview students for positions in research. Men and women desiring interviews should make appointments at 102 social science before Saturday noon.

Seniors and graduate students interested in research or development of one of the following are needed by the Laboratory: chemistry, physics (sound, physical optics), mathematics, metallurgy, radio engineering, electrical engineering, mechanical engineering, and metallurgical engineering.

Group interviews will be held Monday beginning at 9 a. m., and individual interviews on Tuesday, Dean C. H. Oldfather announced yesterday, and application forms will be given out at the time of the interview.

Recently discontinuing its policy of maintaining all of its scientific and technical personnel in civilian status, the naval research laboratory has adopted the policy of commissioning or enlisting in the U. S. naval reserve its scientific and technical personnel qualified, when necessary or mutually desirable.

In view of this policy men enlisted in the navy V-7 program and interested in research or development, may sign up for an interview.

Iowa Collge Develops New Plastic Product

AMES, Ia. (ACP). Four plastic products developed from farm products and farm wastes in laboratories of the engineering experiment station of Iowa State college, and showing definite commercial possibilities, have been announced by Dr. O. R. Sweeney, research professor of chemical engineering at the college.

In general, Dr. Sweeney says, these products could be substituted at a low cost for phenolic plastics in brown and black and possibly dark red colors. They compare favorably with the phenolic plastics in strength, appearance and water resistance. The first is a soybean meal plastic which has excellent strength and could be molded by compression molding. Two are made from corn cob resins. They have good strength and can be used in continuous contact with water. The fourth is a hydrolyzed cornstark plastic which has excellent strength, good appearance and good water resistance.

In the laboratory, the raw material costs for those plastics ranged from 3 to 6 cents per pound.
