UN Coeds Solve Own Wartime Campus Fall Fashion Problems

By Pat Chamberlin. Nowadays much attention is directed on the campus toward "the seamy side of life." If you give the correct interpretation to these words, you will find that they refer, not to "playing," but to fashions.

Since the war has so frightened the silkworms that they are no longer able to convert mulberry leaves to silk hose with their usual alacrity, women have turned to rayon and cotton stockings. Poor as these substitutes are, they are more flattering to milady's leg than those wool, ribbed hose of your pig-tailed, horn-rimmed glasses days, and much more alluring to the manly eye than a dehaired, stretched skin effect.

Cotton Wrinkle.

Complaints against cotton hose are that they do not hold their shape, and cause the sloppy wrinkles about a dainty ankle or smooth knee that turn a man's appetite, not his head.

Rayon stockings with seams are similarly deplored. Rayon is an extremely slippery article, and a woman's leg rather resembles a May pole on the eve of May day after a few hours wear.

Therefore and because of which, seamless rayon stockings have evolved. A rayon seamless can twist and be twisted, and still be an asset, but definitely!

Rayon hose are in the war time reach of the coed's budget, too... $1.25 a pair will buy any of a range of swish fall colors.

And Add Dresses

Another seam among the seams which it seems seemly to mention here is the case of the unseemly dress seams. Have all coeds forgotten the finer points of sewing over the summer?

When viewed from the front the typical coed's ensemble is a model Mademoiselle, but, there is always a but. (For which fashion writers thank their stars, else why fashion writers?)

Milady's nether seams gap! Now a pink slip is an enticing object for jaded eyes, and it does prove you wear one, but it just isn't the fundamental idea behind the wearing of clothes.

For a limited time only and for a purpose, the editors of the Daily's newly instituted Women's page have offered their services as instructors in sewing. The classes will be conducted every Friday afternoon and all day Sundays at the ragged offices. Just try to find them in at that time!

Cheerful Color Keynotes UN Coed's Clothes

By Pat Catlin.

Vivid color—the keynote of Miss Nebraska "Coed's" wardrobe this year. Victory red, Kelley green, purple, and splashes of white combined in soft wools make up many a smooth outfit. Silk stockings are out, but Alpaca wools, gabardines, and soft creeps are definitely in.

Sweaters and skirts lead the fashion parade again when girls such as Peggy Lemon and Toni McQuistan, Thetas, can be seen on campus in sweaters of golden mist with matching corduroy skirts. Betty Dick, Tri Delt pledge, chooses a gray tweed skirt combined with a white English wool tennis sweater while Arda Allan of the Alpha Chi house proudly displays the peach hand knit sweater with socks to match.

Slacks for play and study vary from conservative navy blue and brown to gaudy plaids. Pat Cole buries her head in a book at the Dee Gee house garbed in matching gold and brown plaid slacks and jacket.

Transformation from slacks to the third piece of the suit, a skirt, readies Pat for her numerous trips to the drug. Kappa Jean Kerl stayed conservative and purchased navy flannel slacks made cuffless according to all rules and regulations.

Suits will be especially good this fall and winter because of the de-

Honorary Sets Up Student Loan Fund

Established for the purpose of assisting students needing financial help for a short period of time, the Student Loan Fund, sponsored by Mortar Board, is available to all women students of the university.

Application for a loan is made to Mrs. Ada P. Westover, assistant dean of women. Loans range from $2 to $50, no interest being charged unless the money is not paid back in five months. Interest at the rate of 5 percent a year begins at the end of the fifth month.

Started by the Mortar Board, the fund was first open to both men and women, but in 1940 was changed to apply only to women. Last year the loan fund was much used by women students and proved of real value to those in need of short time loans to pay the unexpected cost of books, and expenses that come just ahead of allowances.

At the end of school no loans are made unless they can be paid by June 10, and there are no further loans until Sept. 1.

Fem Fun

BY HELEN GOODWIN

Hear ye! Hear ye! Sounds like the announcing of a tournament in a medieval stadium, but in reality it is just calling your attention to the activities in sports by females on the campus. You know, supposedly the weaker sex.

Mickey McPherson from Omaha excels in all sports with tennis as her specialty.

When a Junior in high school she picked up a racquet and has made a hobby of swinging it around, and incidentally has acquired several championship titles such as the women and junior girls championship of Nebraska and Iowa for 1941, Omaha City championship 1941 and 1942, Nebraska doubles for 1941 and 1942, runner-up for single champion in 1942, Missouri Valley womens doubles in 1942.

Well, did you get all of that? Makes your head swim, doesn't it?

Girls take notice! This is a frantic plea in behalf of the WAA for sales girls at the games. If you are interested, call the WAA offices. Final application for appointments must be in by Friday, Oct. 3.

Here is an opportunity to see all the games in the Nebraska stadium free, earn some spending money, as well as helping to carry on the spirit of fun at the Husker games.

A general meeting of WAA sales girls will be held at Grant Memorial in the east gym, Friday at 5:30 p. m., for last minute instructions.

mand that classroom temperatures should be considerably less due to a fuel shortage. Alice Louise Becker, Cornhusker biggie, flashes around the Union in a stylish creation of predominately blue plaid. As an example of feminine sartorial splendor, Nina Scott, Delta Gamma plebe, hits the peak with her white wool suit worn over a moss green blouse. The effect is most effective with her raven tresses.

Barbie Stuhlt puts envy into every Kappas heart when she comes forth in her purple feather hat that exactly matches her soft wool dress and gabardine purse. Wilma Schacht sets the fashion pace for the Alpha Chi's by setting off her blonde beauty in a black silk with a draped bodice trimmed with sequins. Red feathers on the brim of her off the face black hat frame her face.

Shirley Anderson caused a commotion in the Pi Phi pledge class when she opened the box from England containing fur mittens to wear in the colder weather. According to the sisters a pilot in the R.A.F. was the donor.

Rationing may cut down on the amount of clothing a coed can procure, but cannot stop Miss Nebraska from being her own smooth self.
