Letterip

Dear Editor:

We didn't want your d...d baby news (?) paper in the first place, but now that we must donate our good dough to the cause.....well, how about delivering to M. A. so that we get a copy occasionally?

However little, we would like something for our money.
The Engineers.

The editor finally rates a letter. Although it is anonymously signed, I am going to print it and make a few suggestions for future letters to the editor.

In answer to the letter from "The Engineers" whoever "they", "he" or "it" may be, we are extremely sorry that no papers have been available in the M. A. building. When the time came to decide which building of the engineering group was most available to all students, it was thought that the M. E. building was used by more engineering students than any on the campus.

It may also interest "The Engineers" to know that papers left in that building have been more than enough to handle the traffic since many are not picked up. It should be obvious, even to "The Engineers" that papers cannot be left in every building on the campus as well as dormitories, organized houses, co-ops, and ag colleg groups.

If "The Engineers" would come out from behind his anonymous name and call on me, perhaps we can make the Daily Nebraskan more available and interesting to "The Engineers". As long as this childish practice of writing unsigned letters keeps up, however it will be impossible for any of us to benefit by student opinions and suggestions.

Sinfonia Again Presents Union Harmony Hour

Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, national music fraternity is again sponsoring a series of recorded concerts known as Harmony Hours. As in the past year these programs take place in the Music Room of the Union and will feature complete miniature concerts with program notes and oral commentary.

The idea of Harmony Hour originated when many music listeners in the new Union Music Room objected to the wide range of variety of music heard during regular request listening hours. Phi Mu Alpha in co-operation with the Union management arranged for one afternoon each week for the special purpose of presenting a well balanced program of music. Throughout the past two years this program has been kept up and many students and faculty members have derived much enjoyment from it. Last year printed program notes were added to the spoken word and helped many listeners to remember the music they mad listened to and thus to ask for repeated hearings.

Harmony Hour is presented each Monday from 4:30 to 5:30. Everybody is welcome to attend. This Monday's program is devoted to the music of Johannes Brahms, featuring his great composer's Academic Festival Overture and his First Symphony in its entirety.

ROTC Cadets Shed Coats; Wear Shirts

Relief is in sight! The military department authorized all ROTC students to wear the cotton shirt in lieu of the coat at all formations and class room assemblies during the warm weather and until further orders.

Cadet officers will wear the insignia of rank on the right side of the shirt collar and the insignia of branch on the left side of the collar each one inch from the edge.

The shirt and slacks will come as a welcome relief from the heat of the heavy blouse.

The Women

By Bob McNutt

Women are what men make jokes about.

A woman is a mass of intuition completely surrounded by an impenetrable barrier of silk, latex and steel. They carry armament in the form of high heels, inch-long nails, and a big smile. The last named is like a motorcycle, it gets them places, but is likely to backfire unless they have the right technique.

Generally speaking, women are of three types: Unmarried, married, and widowed. The first and third of these want to woo men, the second want new men. Wives are of three types: Those won and wooed (as in books), those won and ruded (as more often), those won and sued (as when something is done about the second.)

If you don't comment favorably on her appearance, she thinks you don't appreciate her. You try to kiss her. If she lets you, she always manages to let you know she's doing you a favor. If she doesn't, she says, "Don't be silly!" and what that means is never quite clear.

She expects you to comment on new hat, hairdo, nail polish and lipstick. If you like it and say so, she says, "Yeah?" with frank disbelief. But if you don't like it and say so, she looks at you as if you were Simon Legree. This leaves you no recourse but to be clever at your lying.

If she believes everything you tell her, she is a fool. She talks about her boy friends and you look cold and she wants to know why you don't find her conversation interesting. She expects you to like her girl friends, then gives you the glassy stare when it is turning your stomach to be nice to them.

If she drinks with you, she eyes every drink with suspicion as if unsure of her own will power, of the ability of either of you to hold his liquor. If she doesn't drink, she just eyes you with suspicion.

If you try to treat her as an equal, she says you haven't any manners. But if you make a fuss over her, she makes remarks like, "How Victorian!" or "How quaint!" which she means in the worst sense.

If you tell her she's being silly, she says, "But we have fun, don't we?" from which there is no appeal. But if you tell her how bright you think she is, she is sure that is just what you don't like and turns silly, so you're back to the beginning again.

Remember the next time you see a woman—you are definitely superior to her—you have one more rib than she has.

The Men

By Pat Chamberlin

Men are what women marry. They have two hands, two feet, and sometimes two wives, but never more than one dollar, nor more than one idea at a time. Like Turkish cigarettes, they are all made of the same material, the only difference is that some are better disguised than others.

Generally speaking, they may be divided into three classes: husbands, bachelors, and widowers. A bachelor is an eligible mass of obstinacy entirely surrounded by suspicion. Husbands are of three types: Prizes, surprises, and consolation prizes. Making a husband out of a man is one of the highest forms of plastic art known to civilization. It requires science, sculpture, common sense, faith, hope, and charity—mostly charity.

Women Are Wonders. It is a psychological marvel that a small, tender, soft, violet-scented woman enjoys kissing a big, awkward, stubb-chinned, tobacco and bay-rum scented thing like a man.

If you flatter a man you frighten him to death. If you don't, you bore him to death. If you permit him to make love to you, he gets tired of you in the end, and if you don't, he gets tired of you in the beginning.

If you agree with him in everything, you cease to interest him. If you argue with him on everything, you cease to charm him.

It Doesn't Matter. If you believe all he tells you, he thinks you are a fool, and if you don't, he thinks you are a cynic.

If you wear gay colors, rouge, and a startling hat, he hesitates to take you out, but if you wear a little brown beret, and a tailored suit, he takes you out and stares all evening at the woman—in gay colors, and rouge, and a startling hat.

If you join in the gayeties and approve of his drinking, he swears you are driving him to the devil. If you argue with him to give up his drinking, he vows you are a snob and "nice."

Just the Opposite. If you are a clinging vine type, he doubts that you have a brain in your head, while if you are modern, advanced and independent, he doubts that you have a heart.

If you are silly, he longs for a bright mate, but if you are brilliant, he longs for a playmate.

Man is just a worm in the dust. He comes along, wiggles around for a while, and finally some chicken gets him.

AWS Abandons N Stamp Sale, Asks Bond Purchase

With the suggestion that students put all their pennies into war stamps and bonds, the AWS executive board abandoned the idea of an N stamp sale for this year.

This sale has been an annual money-raising drive for the organization for several years but "now seems unessential," Mary Lou Holtz, chairman of the sale, announced yesterday.

Ag Exec Board Tells Farmer's Formal Heads

At a recent meeting of the ag executive board, Betty Ann Tishamer and Warren Sabs were named co-chairmen of the Farmer's Formal.

Committee members named were: presentation, Kay Huston and Hildreth Gillette; decorations, Alice Mae Booth, Gwen Row, and Bob Oswald; orchestra, chaperons and tickets, Dorothy Anderson and Willard Visek; publicity, Dale Wolf.

The Farmer's Formal is an annual fall party on the ag campus and will be held Oct. 24. The theme of the party has not yet been announced but preparations are in full swing and the outcome will undoubtedly be a novel one.

One of the outstanding thrills of the evening will be the announcement of the Farmers Formal Queen. The Queen will be elected by the male students attending the party from the eligible senior girls enrolled in ag college.

Frosh Women Enter Activities In Three Weeks

Ruling Made by AWS Sets Eligibility at End Of First Six Weeks

No freshman women will be allowed to participate in extra-curricular activities until after the first six weeks reports are out. This ruling, made by the AWS executive board last spring, is in accordance with a plan formulated by the Student Council last year.

A delinquent slip in any subject for the first six weeks will bar that person from activities until that delinquency has been removed and reported to the AWS executive board.

A slip stating that the delinquency has been removed must be recorded with the Dean of Student Affairs, the Dean of Women and filed with the house chaperon.

Janet Curley, AWS president, explained that this six-week period is to give freshman women time to adjust themselves to the study problem and to find the activities most suitable for them.

Activities for freshman women will open with all All-Activities Mart at the end of the first six weeks. All activities for women on the campus are represented at this Mart, sponsored by the AWS. At the same time the new students will register for activities. Mary Jo Latsch, AWS board member, will be in charge of the affair.

Three big organization parties, the YM-YW mixer, the WAA party and the Co-ed Counselor one, which were planned last spring, were allowed to be held this fall. Numerous other plans for the orientation of freshmen women were discarded by these and other activities when the ban on activities went into effect.

This type of program for obtaining research workers has been inaugurated only recently. In the past it has been the custom to keep personnel on a civilian standing, but under the new program, qualified scientific and technical personnel may be commissioned or enlisted in the U. S. naval reserve when it is necessary or desirable.

Men in the naval V-7 enlistment program who are interested in research or development may be interviewed for a position. Appointments for interviews were made Saturday in Dean Oldfather's office.

function, programs, qualifications, training and duties of the various services, group meetings will be arranged and personal interviews may be held. The board will do no recruiting, acting only in an advisory capacity. The group will remain on the campus from Thursday until the following Monday.

The board, one of five operating among the 200 colleges and universities in the Seventh service command, is to visit each school carrying out an accelerated program four times during the school year. Three weeks after the advisory group appears a recruiting contingent will visit the university to recruit students for the enlisted reserves.

Purpose of the reserve program is to create a reservoir from which the services may draw as the exigencies of war demand.
