Ever since Katy Gartersnap won the national exspectoriating derby you've been hearing that an athletic hero has to measure up to certain standards. To heck with the Granges, Sinkwiches, and Hillenbrands—we want to tell you about some real heroes.

Such grid greats as Jimmy Beam and Tommy Collins, the heroes of THE Fame, would change the entire complexion of the gridiron map if they had been permitted to finish their careers.

We refer first to the case of Jimmy Beam, Pow-wow '07, who gained yards of newspaper publicity every time he carried the ball. Beam was a big youth who never played football in high school. Instead he specialized in rugby, golf and gold panning in the wild hills outside of town.

Beam entered Pow-wow State Teachers college and was immediately put on the team by his uncle, who by chance was grid coach. His career thereafter was marked by hairbreath gallops, bullet passes, savage defensive work, and fumbles. His grid career came to a frigid climax on a windswept field in 1908 when he led his mates to an 86-0 victory over Notre Dame. He was described as the greatest gridder since Buckwheat of Hay Center.

Only difficulty with Beam was that he failed to measure up to the standards fate had set for him. He was playing jackstraws in the street in front of his home when a steam roller ran over him. As the local police slid him under his mother's door, it became evident that his grid career was squashed.

Our boy Tommy Collins made a name for himself as the greatest passer of his area. His famous floater toss which enabled him the pivot to center the ball, block out three incoming linemen, and trot down under the ball still ranks with the Eight Wonders of the world.

One famous Collins feat which has never been forgotten occurred against Siwash in '09. There he tossed his famous floater pass over the entire length of the field, paused on the fifty-yard stripe to autograph a Geisha gal's chapeau and caught his own toss over the goal line.

New Kansas State Coach Starts Work

MANHATTAN, Kas. Owen L. (Chili) Cochran, ex-Kansas State football great, has begun workouts for his 1942-43 basketball squad, drilling the Wildcat cagers daily in K-State's Nichols gymnasium.

Cyclones Open With Simpson

AMES, Ia., Dec. 1.—Louis Menze opens his 15th season as basketball coach at Iowa State when the Cyclones meet Simpson college, 1942 Iowa conference champion, at Ames, Dec. 2. The game will start at 7:15.

At the halfway mark in his second decade on the campus, Menze labels his 15th squad as "interesting." In that non-committal way, the imperturbable little veteran answers questions about prospects. He lost three all-Big Six performers from last year, in addition to a pair of reserve guards. From a residue of two major lettermen and a minor letter reserve, plus a host of sophomores, Menze must fashion a team capable of competing in the fastest basketball loop in the nation.

For Simpson it will be the second start of the season and the second, oddly enough, against a team from the Iowa State campus. Monday night the Redmen took the measure of the Typhoons representing the Naval Training school quartered at Iowa State.

ances by the Pershing Rifle "crack" squad and silent platoon. The grand march will be led by Cadet Commander Colonel Arnold and Ann Craft, honorary colonel.

Practice Thursday.

Practice for the march will be held Thursday evening at 7:30 in the coliseum. All officers and their companions in the march must attend this rehearsal.

Colonel Murphy will witness his first ball at Nebraska since he took his post last summer, transferring from the University of South Dakota. Among honored guests at the ball will be Gov. Dwight Griswold, Mayor Richard Johnson of Lincoln and Chancellor C. S. Boucher.

Library Features New 'Books Are Weapons' Display in Reserve Room

The new display of bookjackets on the bulletin board at the entrance of the reserve reading room is "Books Are Weapons." These words are an excerpt from President Roosevelt's speech of May 6 of this year when he said: "In this war, we know, books are weapons."

Books on the war such as John Hefshy's "Men on Bataan," H. W. Baldwin's "Strategy for Victory," and John Steinbeck's "The Moon Is Down" are now being used in the display. The jackets are changed periodically, but the topic of the display is retained for a period of several weeks.

Library Receives Aviation 'Who's Who' Directory

"Who's Who in Aviation," an entirely new publication on this subject, has just been received by the reference room of the library.

The book is a publication of Ziff-Davis Publishing company, the publishers of "Flying" magazine. It was compiled by the writers' program of the Works Projects Administration, under the sponsorship of the Illinois Aeronautics commission.

The aim of the editors of the book was to create a biographical directory of the living men and women who have contributed to the growth of aviation in the United States.

The compilers of the book have endeavored to make the publication cover all branches of aviation, both civil and military. The book is now available to students in the reference room of UN library.

Authors Address Church Luncheon

Speaking at a Thursday noon luncheon at the Presbyterian student house will be Glenn Clark, professor of English at MacAlister college, St. Paul, Minn., and Starr Daily of California.

Both men are nationally known for their books and conferences on "Personal Prayer," the topic for their luncheon discussions. They are appearing in Lincoln this week only, and this will be their only meeting on the campus.

Students may place reservations until Thursday noon by calling 2-4441. The price of the luncheon is 25 cents. It begins at 12:30 and will end in time for 1:30 classes.

McGovern Still Paces Scoring

Eddie McGovern of little Poly Tech, whose team completed the season two weeks ago, still held onto his national scoring lead after Saturday's frays.

In third place is Missouri's Bob Steuber with 114 points, followed by Sinkwich of Georgia with 96.
