

German Refugee Talks at 4 Today

First in a series of Union-University sponsored convocations will be held today at 4 p. m. in the Union ballroom when Franz Schoenberner, refugee from nazi Germany, speaks on "Germany in the Post-War World."

An ardent opponent of Hitlerism, fascism and communism in the late '20's, Schoenberner continued his campaign even in the first months of Hitler's chancellorship as the editor of the famous "Simplicissimus," a political and satirical weekly.

Following the burning of the Reichstag, when every kind of opposition was paralyzed, Schoenberner's office was demolished.

FRANZ SCHOENBERNER
... interned and released.

The final number of "Simplicissimus," showing a front page cartoon of the burning Reichstag, was prohibited.

To a concentration camp, or change of ideas, the speaker chose exile and escaped to Switzerland in 1933, and from there he travelled to France. For eight years he published anti-Hitler reviews as well as political, philosophical and literary articles in the French and emigration-foreign press.

When war broke out Schoenberner was interned, liberated, interned and liberated again. Danger of a general occupation of France and the possibility of being delivered to nazi authorities made it imperative that he leave Europe.

Lincoln Alumni Club Plans UN Campus Beautification

Co-operating with the university campus beautification committee, the Lincoln Alumni club has formulated a campus beautification committee to landscape the major portion of the now barren campus.

The campus beautification program is constructed in such a way that immediate results of the landscaping will be seen within a year or two and over a long range period the entire campus will present a picture of a tree framed, beautified campus. Plans have been made for landscaping to be developed around all of the newer buildings and on the mall and quadrangle.

Landscape Library.

One of the first projects to be undertaken by the Lincoln Alumni club, head by T. B. Strain, president, will be to landscape grounds of the new library with trees and shrubs, arranging the plantings in semetrical design to set off the building to the best advantage.

The old Seymour plan for the campus layout did not include landscaping with trees over a major portion of the campus. (See ALUMNI, Page 4.)

Harper Tells ... Alarm Signals Warn Lincoln Citizens Of Blackout Dec. 14

... Lasts 15 Minutes

"An alarm signal sounded by police and fire sirens, whistles, and reproduced over all local radio stations, will warn Lincoln citizens and university students of the beginning of the first blackout practice, Dec. 14, at 10 p. m., in the midwestern states."

At that time, all lights should be turned off immediately, emphasized W. C. Harper, assistant dean of student affairs and member of the university emergency defense committee who spoke last night at the first meeting of volunteer university air raid wardens, held at social sciences auditorium.

Take Care.

People in their homes should not pull the master switch at the meter, but simply turn out each light, he went on to say. If it is necessary to keep a room or rooms lighted, care should be taken to cover all doors and windows with heavy material so that no light can escape. Ordinary shades and Venetian blinds will not blackout.

More rules to observe include keeping the radio tuned to a local station for announcements. Calls should not be made on the telephone, but it should be answered if it rings. If necessary to use a flashlight in the house, keep it pointed to the floor. Do not smoke, strike a match or use a flashlight out-of-doors.

Park Cars.

People riding in cars at the time of an alarm must immediately stop at the curb, turn out all lights and stay in the car. Under no circumstances continue to drive. If in a congested area where no (See BLACKOUT, Page 2.)
