

Three Fine Arts Departments Collaborate On Uni. Opera

BY JEANNE ROTTON.

The opera, now a part of the university's musical tradition, is rapidly shaping up for this week's performances. It is now common knowledge that this year's production is to be "Robin Hood," staged by all three departments of the University School of Fine Arts.

Miss Katherine Schwake has had charge of the costumes, which just arrived from New York. Posters of the opera scene were made by the art classes under Miss Burry's direction, while the stage scenery was designed by Prof.

Dwight Kirsch of the art department and painted under the supervision of his classes. Mr. Joe Zimmerman has been supervising its construction in the shops of the University Theater.

Runs Emotional Gamut.

The dramatics of the production, which run the gamut of emotional expression, are also under the direction of Mr. Zimmerman. Jo Weaver Kline and Jean Cowden are teaching the dances, and Mr. Samuel Gorbach is directing the 23 piece orchestra. The stage manager is Bob Hyde.

The opera is also radio-speech class project in the speech department under the general supervision of Dr. LeRoy Laase of the speech department. Romula Soldevilla, the chairman of a student committee of five, reduced the dialogue and the lines for radio production in connection with this project.

Business Manager Dave Kinsman and his assistant, Ruth Way, urge students to purchase their tickets from members of the choruses, casts, and the musical sororities and fraternity as soon as possible. The performances will be Wednesday and Friday.

Overseas Vet, Alumnus Speaks On Charter Day

John L. Bouchal, class of 1912, will be the speaker at the charter day services Sunday, February 14, it was announced Saturday by Chancellor C. S. Boucher.

Bouchal, native of Wilber is a veteran of the U. S. consular service and was a teacher in Prague when war broke out in Europe. Ordered not to leave the country after the Germans occupied Bohemia and Moravia, he later was taken in custody by the gestapo and sent to an internment camp.

He and his wife returned to America last June on the liner Drottningholm, being exchanged for Germans held in this country. They have been living at Wilber.

Enlisted Air Corps Expect Call Shortly

UN Students Subject To Immediate Call Under Program as Announced

Members of the air corps enlisted reserve at the University of Nebraska will be called to active duty in the immediate future, according to word received Monday by Chancellor C. S. Boucher.

The information came in a letter from Major Willis S. Fitch, deputy chief for procurement in the air corps aviation cadet section.

Several students as well as some non-students in Lincoln who had been sworn in for cadet training have received orders to report for duty and some already have left for Jefferson Barracks, Mo.

Major Fitch's letter reiterated previous announcements about the calling up of all members of the army enlisted reserve with the following statement:

"It is contemplated that all members of the Enlisted Reserve over eighteen years of age will be called in the immediate future except those who have commenced a semester, term, or quarter before December 31. Those falling in the (See AIR CORPS, Page 2.)

The charter day service will be held at the Student Union at 4:30 p. m. The Sunday service on the 14th instead of the 15th, which actually is the charter day anniversary, was decided upon as a matter of convenience to alumni and others who could not attend on Monday.

NATHAN J. GOLD.

A series of cash awards to be presented annually by Nathan J. Gold, Lincoln business man, to students, graduate students, or any eligible citizen of the United States for the development of chemurgic research within the state, was announced yesterday.

The awards are to be made in the interest of developing chemurgic projects within the state and ultimately extending Nebraska's economic productivity. The most important award, to be known as the "Nathan J. Gold Chemurgic Research Fellowship award" is a total of $1,000 to be used for 12 months of graduate study and research at the University of Nebraska in an appropriate scientific field with chemurgic significance.

Any citizen of the United States, student, graduate student or professional man, will be eligible for the yearly award. Results of the research will be the property of University of Nebraska Foundation. At least one-half time during the issue of the fellowship will be devoted to research, the balance being available for advanced study.

The first fellowship will be awarded on April 15, 1943. Applications must be made at the university before March 1. Win- (See AWARDS, Page 2.)

School Of Music Offers Courses Towards Degree

... During Summer Session

Courses leading to the master of music degree will be offered for the first time by the university beginning with the summer session next June.

Acting on the authority of the board of regents, Dean R. W. Goss of the graduate college and Director A. E. Westbrook of the school of fine arts have outlined the new program.

The privileges of graduate study are open to applicants who are graduates of a university or college of recognized standing whose requirements for graduation are substantially the same as those required for bachelor of music in education in the university of Nebraska.

To Cover All Phases.
Candidates for the master of music degree may major in music education or in some field of applied music.

The courses in music education will cover methods, materials, conducting techniques, and sight-singing. In addition to the development of adequate musicianship, emphasis will be placed upon present trends and prospective tendencies in the teaching of music.

Graduate work in applied music is designed to develop a high degree of proficiency in performance on the major instrument or in (See MUSIC, Page 2.)
