

Nuts from McNutt

By Bob McNutt

This week end will see the migration to the university of one of the oldest of farm community functions—the box social. Out in Colby, Kansas (no cracks) we were accustomed to celebrating in this fashion at least once a week. Of course things were different then. You could bid ten bushels of corn on the cob for a beautiful box, then while you ate the food from the box you could watch some buxom, black-toothed gal eat the corn off the cob thru a picket fence. That's why those Colby socials were such a success; food and entertainment at the same party.

Since these socials have been such a success in the past I sincerely hope that the participating sororities and fraternities have successful parties on Friday and Saturday nights.

Morrie Will Try.

Bidding should be spirited when Morrie Dingwell tries to keep Norrie Anderson from getting Kay Detweillers food; while Bob Miller wishes he were sure of winning out with Cappy Kellogg.

The Theta Phi Psi social should become just a little rough, but the rest should settle down to a nice quiet evening of making money for the WSSF and getting Ronnie Metz to smile again.

Adding to a big week end will be the Alpha Xi Delta "formal" to be held at the Cornhusker Friday night. It will be the last celebration together for some particular boys and girls.

Men are Leaving.

Betty Klingel and Jean Wochner are losing Jack Knicely, Delta Sig and Dale Brockmeier, Farm House, to the air corps. Dorothy Mohr and Carol Gawer will be there too, but Jim Wright, Phi Gam and Marion Hendricke are not leaving for anything.

The Sig Eps will make most of their contributions to the WSSF fund when Boden Portwood and Kenny Ackerman try to separate Dorothy Black from the rest. Of course Bart Baker will try to let someone else get his wife's (former Dorothy Miller) cooking for a change.

Just Like Elmer.

A small barb gentleman with a loud mouth just backed me into a corner and asked me why I couldn't be original like Elmer Sprague. I told him that I was writing a column to amuse and antagonize people, not to make a great literary figure of myself. He says, "The first is possible, the latter impossible, so it's all right with me and the boys if you go ahead," and then walked off in a huff. So now I'll throw away my humor magazines and settle down to the old grind.

Looks like John Baulware, Sig Chi, won't be the same till he finds out what cute little Alpha Chi he has on a negative of a picture he took. He's afraid to develop it now for fear it will be someone who's tied up with another guy.

Howard Hall . . . Coeds Work, Study, Have Fun at Cooperative House

BY RUTH CHATTERTON.
There's a story to be told about Howard Hall.

It is one of the nicest places on the campus for girls to stay—a place that the girls are happy and proud to call "home" during their college days. Those living there all agree, though, that the thing that makes Howard Hall such a wonderful place are the eighteen girls who stay there.

This compatible group of girls are certainly an example of how to make the most out of life at college, by studying, working and playing at the proper times. They all agree that what you get accomplished during the day depends upon how efficiently you arrange your time. All 18 girls, besides going to school, have jobs in Lincoln.

Maintain Requirements.

There are certain requirements of the girls who live in Howard Hall. The girls must be either juniors or seniors, have at least an 80 average, and an excellent character. Last year Howard Hall rated highest of all the organized houses on the campus in scholarship. This was quite an honor and the girls are doing their best to reach the top again this year.

One of the things that makes Howard Hall seem like home to the girls is that they all take turns in doing the housecleaning. By doing this they reduce their board and room bill to $22 a month.

Making bandages for the Red Cross, working on the war council, and selling defense stamps are the major war activities to which the girls devote their time.

Dancing is their favorite form of recreation; so the girls have exchange dinner-dances with the other co-op houses.

in the combatting of which water would be useless and fire departments virtually helpless, he states.

American Inventions.

Dr. Wendt points out that nearly all modern instruments of war are American ideas, including the steel warship, the modern rifle, the tank, the submarine, bomb-sight, super-charger, the airplane, and the machine gun.

As science editor of Time magazine and former as editor of national journal published by the American Chemical Society, it is Dr. Wendt's job to keep in touch with scientific and industrial progress in all parts of the world. His own activities have been so varied that he is in a unique position to understand and report on all phases of science. He has been a research professor, dean, university research administrator, director of one of America's largest endowed laboratories, director of research for several important industrial laboratories, president of his own company, scientist in the government service, as well as an author and lecturer.
