

Begin Army Specialized Training Plan March 15?

According to several Associated Press dispatches, the Seventh Service Command disclosed Friday that the army's specialized training program is expected to get under way about March 15.

The first official declaration as to how the specialized training program may operate when it does go into effect, it served only to confirm their arguments in the activation of the ERC. University officials said they had received no word from army headquarters. When questioned further, one official felt that the story appearing in Friday evening's Lincoln Journal, regarding emplacement of college students under specialized training was purely ungrounded information.

Officials Visiting Campus.

A number of army officials have, however, visited the campus recently, visiting various facilities for such purposes, it is believed. It is assumed the new Don Love Memorial library will probably be converted into a dormitory to house the students.

The dispatch further stated that student engineer units will number either 400 or 500 men, divided into classes to study the several types of engineering work most useful in the military service. Six hours a week will be devoted to physical conditioning which will permit most of the schools to maintain their physical education staffs under the terms of the contract with the war department, army officials said. It has not yet been determined what instructions will be used by the army. Most of the details for activation of college

Don't Go Mad: Less Clothes More Stylish

From recent indications at downtown stores, Nebraska students have forgotten how to be in style.

With the trend of the war, it is not the stylish thing, now the patriotic thing, to fluctuate with rationing rumors.

Such rumors are bound to fill the ears of Americans, witness the sugar, coffee, and gas rationing scares before the actual event when stores were depleted time and again.

Don't let Quizzing or Hitlerian rumors make you one of the mad throng of hoarding Americans!

Keep your head. When the government decides to ration anything, it no longer is the stylish thing, nor the patriotic thing, to have such articles, except in the percentage all Americans have them.

here ended yesterday afternoon.

The first day's session featured victory speaking, in addition to debating contests. Winners of superior and excellent ratings were announced at a luncheon given the delegates Saturday noon at the Union. The results announced were:

Discussion

Superior: Frank Mattoon, University of Nebraska; Leland Jones, Denver university; Paul Scott, Nebraska Wesleyan; Bill Rist, University of Nebraska; Morris Coff, University of Nebraska; Ruth Arnold, Augustana college.

Union in London Open To U. S. College Men

The American University Union in London, so successful in the last war as a meeting-place for both officers and men of university connections, offers its services again to the college men who will be with the American armed forces in the British Isles, according to a release from London.

The Union provides reading and writing rooms, a complete file of current catalogues from universities both American and British, a lending library, and detailed information on educational opportunities in Great Britain and Ireland.

V-7 Reserve Open to New Enlistments

Upperclassmen Are Preferable

A plan whereby college upper classmen of draft age who have not already signed up for a deferred enlisted reserve program may continue their college studies on their own campus and then be eligible for commissioning as a naval officer was announced today by the Iowa headquarters of Naval Officers Procurement Office located in Des Moines, Ia.

Known as the SV-7 program of the naval reserve, this plan arranged to have eligible college men inducted into the navy thru selective service channels, then placed on inactive duty to return to the campus for completion of their studies unless an emergency call must be issued.

Men 19 to 26.

Men 19 years of age and not yet 26 years old, who are juniors and seniors majoring in physics, naval architecture, mathematics or electronics or men who have recently gotten degrees in those subjects are eligible for the program at this date. Candidates must be single and pass the usual physical and citizenship tests.

Applications must be made to the Office of Naval Officer Procurement. If accepted, each man will be provided with a letter to the commanding officer of his selective service induction station. The candidate then applies to his local draft board for immediate induction as a selectee. When sent to the induction center, the selection

American Red Cross Campaign Starts on Campus Tomorrow

Having been called upon to send relief to many distant lands, the American Red Cross is launching the largest drive of its history to meet the needs of war victims. The campaign to raise the university quota of $3,000 begins tomorrow and will continue throughout the week.

The first dollar of every pledge goes toward membership in the Red Cross. Everything over one dollar will go to the war fund which goes direct to the fighting men on foreign soil. Relief for these men is valued at more than $63,000,000 and is distributed to millions of men, women and children in Great Britain, China and Russia.

Rallying to the cause are the organized houses on the campus, each of which have a captain in charge of the members' contributions. Membership cards will be filled out as the pledges are received and will be turned in by the captains to the majors, Bill Thornberg and Pat Chamberlin.

Most of the houses have pledged an average contribution of $1.25 to $1.50 from every member.

Unaffiliated students have done a remarkable job of organizing, understanding the im-
