

Board Vetoes Plan For Missouri Game

... No Date Agreeable

GLENN PRESNELL.
... No Game.

Plans for the prospective spring football game between the football squads of Nebraska and Missouri were abandoned Saturday because of the inability to find a date agreeable to both teams, it was announced by Glenn Presnell, director of athletics and head football mentor at the University of Nebraska.

Missouri and Nebraska athletic officials were wholeheartedly behind the idea asserted Presnell, but couldn't come to a popular decision as to the date of the game.

Coach Don Faurot's Missouri gridders had a month jump on Presnell's Cornhuskers in spring training. The Tigers opened drills in February while the Scarlet forces didn't start whiping the pigskin until the middle of March, causing a difficulty in game schedule matters.

Remainder of the Husker spring practice campaign will be marked with general toughening drills and several inter-squad games.

M. K. Elias Takes Position On Geological Committee

... For National Research

M. K. Elias, associate professor in research with the conservation and survey division of the university, has been named to a committee which will attempt to coordinate certain national research in the fields of genetics and geology.

Mr. Elias has attained national and international recognition for his work in a new branch of botanical science, called paleogeology and concerned with the study of fossil grasses. He is author of a lengthy paper on the subject recently published by the Geological Society of American and entitled "Tertiary Prairie Grasses and Other Herbs from the High Plains."

Tertiary Period.

Seeds of the late tertiary period (age of mammals) are fairly common in fossilized form throughout the prairie states, Dr. Elias found. The most common among these show close relation to the most typical modern grass, the spear grass or Stipa, which has world-wide distribution.

Home Ec Students Organize Rule Group

A permanent student group whose duty it will be to discuss and draw up future rulings of the home economics department was planned at Friday's open meeting of home ec students, sponsored by the Home Ec club.

To be elected by a vote of the home ec department this next week, this group will be composed of 12 students and four faculty members, who will be chosen by the student members. Three students will be elected from every class, freshmen, sophomore, junior and senior. Election date will be announced later.

Over 60 students were present at the Friday meeting, called by the home ec council, in order to discuss and revise the recent rulings made by the faculty of that department which had caused much dissention among the girls.

A platform was drawn up at the meeting which stated the feelings of the student body toward faculty rulings in the future. The statement reads:

"The students of this council, representing the student body, believe that the majority of the students are in college with earnest purpose, therefore, we believe that university regulations concerning all students give us freedom to pursue our goals and at the same time give us sufficient leverage to maintain good standards."

"At the same time, realizing, that in every department of the university, there may be a few students with no definite purpose or se-

Norris Speaks at Convo

Former Senator George W. Norris will come to Lincoln Thursday, April 2, to address a university convocation on "America's Role in Post-War Reconstruction." He will speak at 8 p. m. in the Student Union ballroom.

His appearance is being sponsored by the university convocations committee, of which Prof. Karl M. Arndt is chairman.

Norris made an impromptu address before university students on March 11 at an affair arranged by students to honor departing members of the army enlisted reserve corps.

Aviation Cadets Get 2,000 Hangers Today

Contributions of clothes hangers for the new group of aviation cadets who will be stationed in the new library will be collected this afternoon, according to Estella Lennemann, chairman of the newest ar Council project.

At least 2,000 wire or wooden hangers must be obtained for the aviation cadets in order to fill their needs stated Lt. L. T. Bacon of the College Training detachment. If more than the requested number of hangers are collected, the surplus will be sent to the Lincoln Air Base, as reports from there indicate that these soldiers are suffering from a similar shortage.

No Collapsible Hangers.

However, only wire and wooden hangers will be acceptable—collapsible hangers will not do.

The army is furnishing the transportation for the collection of these hangers from all the organized houses, ag college, the theaters and the Student Union. The student committee in charge of collection includes Warren Jeffrey, Levi Arehart, Virginia McDonald, and Roberta Collins.

Contact All Houses.

Every house and organization has been contacted during this past week by letters and asked to collect as many hangers as possible from members, alumni and townspeople. Notification committee for the project includes Amy Colburn, Evelyn Kuhne and Nina Nix. Phyllis Dodge is in charge.

'Black Magic' Enters Union Tonight at 8

... With Conjurer

Magic conjurer, J. Elder Blackledge, will appear on the Union ballroom stage tonight at 8 to display his powers as an expert in the field of magic and the supernatural. He will appear under the sponsorship of the Union in one of its convocation programs.

A magician of 28 years' professional standing, Blackledge bases his performance on a review of magic down thru the years, illustrating his program with optical illusions and legerdemain.

Besides being an expert in the art of magic, he has become a well known authority on the history of his profession. He has collected an extensive library on magicians and their feats.

A former pupil of E. Maro, well known American magician of past years, Blackledge abandoned a career of architecture to follow his boyhood attraction to magic.

He has performed before many outstanding audiences, including one at the white house where he was invited for a special appearance by President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

YWCA Holds Spring Meet This Week

Mass meeting for all YWCA members will be held Wednesday from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m. in parlors X and Y of the Union. This will be the only spring meeting for all YW members.

The purpose of this meeting will be to make an outline from the suggestions and comments of all the members for the policy the Y.W.C.A. should adopt in planning the fall program. An interest-finding questionnaire, to be filled out by the members will also be used as an indicator for specific groups needed in the fall program.

Request Approval.

Two new committees and an amendment to the constitution will be presented for the approval of the membership. The ability of the YWCA to find students summer jobs will be discussed at this meeting, and several opportunities for work and study will be presented.

Elect Freshman New President Of Ag 4-H Club

Gale Erylwin was elected president of the University 4-H club at their meeting Tuesday night. Gale is the first freshman ever to be elected president of an Ag club.

Virginia Smith was elected vice president and Doris Bamsberger, secretary and Edith Pumphery was elected treasurer.

Whether the club will be able to exist during the coming year is a question which is very much doubted, but it is hoped that by electing a freshman as president that the club may be easily perpetuated after the war.

Prairie Schooner Includes Work of Faculty Members

... In New Spring Edition

Featuring the work of 21 writers including members of the university faculty and alumnus the spring edition of the Prairie Schooner made its appearance yesterday.

Charles H. Patterson, professor of philosophy contributed an article entitled "Philosophy and the War" in which he defends the necessity of that subject during the present conflict.

"The American University Press" is the second of the article written by Emily Schossberger to appear in the Schooner. She is University Editor and Editor of the University of Nebraska Press.

Surmelian Autobiography.

Leon Surmelian, former student here, came to America at the age of 17 from Constantinople. His "Introduction to Mortality" is autobiographical and tells of the author's early childhood. Mr. Surmelian has written two other articles for the Schooner.

Some of the other well known contributors are Sprague O. Smith, William De Lisle, Frank Brookhouser, A. C. Edwards, and Edythe Hope Genee.

Unassigned ERC Men Take Test

Word has been received thru the office of Col. R. W. Biggs from the adjutant general in Washington, D. C. that eligibility to participate in the joint Army-Navy qualifying test to be given April 2 is limited to ERC college students who are unassigned and not repeat and are not enrolled in advanced RROTC courses.

Previously it had been announced that all Enlisted Reserve corps college men were eligible to take the tests.

Handkerchiefs, Haircuts Rule; UN Says Goodbye to ERC Men

Innocents, barbs and fraternity men were all represented as the second group of Enlisted Reserve Corps men left Friday morning at 7:30.

Luggage was light. New GI haircuts predominated. Conversation was scarce inside the car, but the crowd remained smiling and cheerful.

The train that took them as far as Union, consisted of an engine and one car. Those who visited longer with the crowd of relatives and friends before boarding had to stand.

Here and there a girl could be seen taking out her handkerchief, a father sheepishly slipping another bill into his son's hand, two brothers standing and looking at one another, not knowing what to say.

It was the last day for the sloppy cords that were just beginning to become a part of the wearer. It was the last flashy necktie that would be worn for a while. The diamond-checked socks made their last appearance before going into hibernation.

Characteristic of the departure of the new Cornhusker privates was this overheard conversation: "Don't forget to write, Bob."

"No, I won't, and take care of yourself, Mom."
